January 9, 1984

gwReport

(350)

for the George Washington University community | News & Public Affairs | Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

GW BASKETBALL FEATURED ON CBS

On Saturday, December 17, on CBS-TV's National College Basketball Game of the Week, (between N.C. State and Louisville) there was a halftime feature on one of George Washington's new basketball recruits. He is Max Blank, a six foot eight and a half inch center/forward currently attending George Washington High School in Philadelphia. Max is a Jewish Russian immigrant who has been in the United States just four years and who has been playing basketball for only the past three years. Regarded as one of the outstanding high school prospects in the country according to observers, Max signed a national letter of intent with George Washington this past fall. The CBS feature included a conversation with Max about his life, aspirations and basketball career, a conversation with his parents, a look at him in the classroom and showed him playing a game for GW High in which he scored 35 points and had 18 rebounds. Max is scheduled to enroll as a freshman at the university in the fall of this year. Also interviewed were GW Coach Gerry Gimelstob and Red Auerbach, GW alumnus, who is president and general manager of the Boston Celtics. Auerbach holds two degrees from George Washington, B.S. in P.E., 1940, and M.A. in Ed., 1941.

U.S. POSTMASTER GENERAL William Bolger, center, is shown with Christopher H. Sterling, director, GW Center for Telecommunications Studies, left, and Toshio Kosuge, Visiting Fulbright Scholar from Japan, before his December speech in the Telecommunications Forum series. The postmaster general discussed the problems, prospects and issues facing the Postal Service as it enters the electronic age.

HOMECOMING TO RETURN TO CAMPUS THE WEEKEND OF JANUARY 20-21

The popular custom of homecoming will return to The George Washington University campus on Friday and Saturday, January 20 and 21.

The activity planned for Friday, January 20, will center around a pep rally and party with basketball teams, coaches, cheerleaders and a banner contest. The Marvin Center third floor Continental Ballroom will be the location from 8:30 pm until whenever.

A brunch from 9:30 to 11:30 am in the Marvin Center second floor cafeteria will begin the festivities Saturday, January 21. A women's basketball game between George Washington and Rutgers will follow in the Charles E. Smith Center at 11:45 am. At 2 pm there will be a men's basketball game between GW and St. Joseph's University in the Smith Center. A Colonials post-game reception is scheduled for the Smith Center's Lettermen's Room at 4:30 pm.

The highlight of the weekend, planners feel, will be the semi-formal dinner dance with a live band in the GW University Club beginning at 7:30 pm Saturday evening and continuing until 1 am. Tickets for the dinner dance are $10 per person ($7 for students and children 12 and under) and are available from the Student Activities Office, Marvin Center 425/427.

Tickets for the basketball games ($3 total for both games) are available through the Men's Athletic Department in the Smith Center, Ext. 6650. The cost of the brunch is $4.37, payable at the door. The Friday evening pep rally and party and the Saturday afternoon Colonials post-game reception are free.

Members of the GW Student Association, the Student Activities Office, the Alumni Relations Office, the Marvin Center Governing Board, the Program Board, Bleacher Bums and the Departments of Men's and Women's Athletics are cooperating in planning the weekend.

Members of the administrative staff, faculty and students, as well as alumni, are encouraged to attend. For further information, call Ext. 7100.

THANK YOUS AND AWARDS AT PRIDE DAY CEREMONIES

In ceremonies on Friday, December 16, members of the Housekeeping Division of the Physical Plant Department received awards and words of appreciation for their fine work at the university throughout the year.

Speakers included Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl, Assistant Treasurer Robert E. Dickman, Physical Plant Director Robert F. Burch, Professor John Morgan, chairman of the executive committee of the Faculty Senate, and Director of Housekeeping Elbert Slaughter, who gave the opening and welcome. The benediction was given by Housekeeping Manager, Dormitories, Leroy O. Payton.

Awards were given to those with attendance records showing absences of five or less days because of illness during the year and there were awards for clean equipment. Complimentary letters for work well done were presented.

Day-shift clean equipment winners were Clyde Sitton, who is assigned to the Francis Scott Key Residence Hall, and to Carrie Bullock, who is at the Charles E. Smith Center.

Night-shift clean equipment award winners were Jeong Lee, whose area is the H.B. Burns Memorial Building, and Edward Love, who is assigned to Gibert Stuart and Lisner Halls.

PRIDE DAY--L to R, Leroy O. Payton, housekeeping manager, dormitories; Elizabeth Dixon, Cyril Duru and John Terry, all three dormitory foremen, are pictured after the December 16 Pride Day ceremonies in Marvin Theatre. Dixon, Duru and Terry were among those receiving complimentary letters. The letters the three received brought appreciation for their work in keeping the university residence halls in tip-top condition.

ADMINISTRATORS, FACULTY AND STUDENTS SERVE EOP COMMITTEE

A group of 15 administrators, faculty and students are currently serving on the EOP Advisory Committee. The group helps to determine policies for The George Washington University Educational Opportunity Program. The first advisory committee was appointed at the university 14 years ago in 1970. There has been a committee appointed annually since.

Current members are: Chairman, David A. Rowley, professor of chemistry and assistant dean, GSAS; Tracy Branson, Columbian College senior majoring in radio and television; Melvin Brock, EOP graduate assistant; LaVon V. Harris, Columbian College senior in speech communication; Robert E. Knowlton, associate professor of biology and assistant dean, Columbian College; Anthony Marinaccio, professor emeritus of education; Honey W. Nashman, assistant professor of human kinetics and leisure studies and director, Office of Laboratory Experiences; Sharon L. Thompson, SGBA senior, majoring in accounting; and ex officio, Peter Aron, assistant director, Division of Experimental Programs and instructor in clinical law; Vicki J. Baker, director of Student Financial Aid; Helen Cannaday, counselor for minority recruitment, Admissions Office; Gail S. Hanson, dean of students; Donald L. Ross, assistant director, Educational Opportunity Program; George W.G. Stoner, director of admissions; and Ronald A. Whitmore, director, Educational Opportunity Program.

LIBRARIES' HOURS THIS WEEK

For the next six days, January 9 through 15, the hours of the three university libraries will be as follows.

The Melvin Gelman Library will be open Monday and Tuesday, January 9 and 10, from 8:30 am to 5 pm. Wednesday through Friday, January 11 through 13, hours will be 8:30 am to 7 pm. Saturday, January 14, the Gelman Library will be open 10 am to 6 pm and Sunday, January 15, from 12 noon to 8 pm.

The Jacob Burns Law Library will be open from 8 am to 11:45 pm Monday, January 9, through Sunday, January 15.

The Paul Himmelfarb Health Sciences Library will be open for non-Medical Center personnel from 7:30 am to 6 pm, Monday, January 9, through Friday, January 13. The library is closed to non-medical personnel evenings and Saturday and Sunday. For more information, call Ext. 2982.

NO CHECKS AT CASHIER'S OFFICE DURING REGISTRATION

The Cashier's Office will be closed for all check-cashing services on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, January 11, 12, and 13, because of registration for the spring semester. Check-cashing services will resume on Monday, January 16, and will be available from 10 am to 4 pm weekdays.

SOME TWO AND A HALF MILLION PEOPLE USE MARVIN CENTER YEARLY RECENT STUDY SHOWS

According to building counts taken on Wednesday, October 19, and Tuesday, November 15, of last semester, it can be estimated that approximately 2.5 million people pass through the Marvin Center entrances during the course of a full calendar year, says Marvin Center Director Boris Bell.

On the two days selected, traffic was studied in terms of the four major building entrances and covered the building's full operational schedule (7 am to 12 midnight). Totals of 15,095 (October 19) and 13,767 (November 15) were recorded, making an average of 14,431 per day. Using these figures as representative of typical days in the regular school year and including estimated, scaled-down use patterns for regular school-year weekends and the summer sessions period, Bell feels it can be projected that approximately 2.5 million people come into the Marvin Center in a year. He says that speculation would indicate that no other university facility approaches the volume of traffic experienced by the center.

On October 19, there were 35 events in the building with overall attendance reaching 1,110, with an average attendance of 32. On November 15, there were 36 events with a total attendance of 741 and average attendance per event of 21.

AT DIMOCK

MFA THESIS CANDIDATE SHOW

The MFA Thesis Candidate Show, Winter 1984, will open Thursday, January 12, to run through Friday, February 10, in the Dimock Gallery, Art Department.

Master of Fine Arts candidates whose works will be shown are: Gene U. Choi, Kay Jackson and Kang W. Park (painting); Mary Heiss and Susan W. Schmuhl (design); C. Lowry, (visual communication); and Michael A. Savell (photography).

The exhibition will be open from 10 am to 5 pm, Monday through Friday.

FOGGY BOTTOM CHAMBER ENSEMBLE CONCERT IS SATURDAY, JANUARY 14

The Department of Music and the Dimock Gallery, Art Department wil present the Foggy Bottom Chamber Ensemble in a concert on Saturday, January 14, at 8 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. The ensemble members are George Marsh, violinist; David Howard, cellist; and Burnett Thompson, pianist. They will perform music of Mozart, Franck and Ives. Tickets will be available at the door. Prices are $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. For further information, call Ext. 7157.

WELCOME--Rev. Thomas F. Kehoe, chaplain, Catholic Student Center, GW, left, was welcomed to campus at a reception at the center on December 20. He is shown with Andrew Luterman, student representative on the Committee on Religious Life, center, and Dean of Students Gail S. Hanson. Fr. Kehoe succeeds Rev. Cary Hill as chaplain at the center.

INFORMAL RECEPTION FOR NEW STUDENTS TUESDAY

All members of the faculty and staff are invited to attend an informal reception to welcome students entering the university for spring semester 1984 on Tuesday, January 10, from 5 to 6 pm. The reception will be held in the Marvin Center's third floor Colonnade Gallery. Please call the Student Activities Office, Ext. 6555, if you plan to attend.

NEWSNOTES

GEORGE W. G. STONER, director of admissions, in his capacity as chairman of the United States College Committee of the European Council of International Schools (ECIS), has recently taken a leadership role in two programs abroad. In late October and early November, he directed and conducted a two-week recruiting tour of eight European countries, during which admissions representatives from 33 United States colleges and universities participated in 14 secondary school programs and gave informational sessions for approximately 5,000 students.

In mid-November, Stoner returned to Rome, Italy, to attend a workshop he had planned and arranged to precede a conference of European secondary school teachers and counselors. The workshop theme was "What Every Counselor Needs to Know about College Placement in the '80s". During the conference, he spoke to participants on "Ethical Implications of Marketing Practices in College Admissions."

GRANTS

ROBERT DUNN, professor of economics, $52,856 from the United States Information Agency, to edit International Economic Perspectives for USIA.

JOSEPH FOA, professor emeritus of engineering and applied science, and CHARLES GARRIS, associate professor of engineering, $54,033 from the Department of Defense/United States Air Force/Air Force Office of Scientific Research, for research on non-steady flow induction.

HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, professor and dean of engineering and applied science, $103,000 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration/Langley Research Center, for a research program in flight dynamics in the JIAFS at the NASA Langley Research Center.

DOUGLAS MILLER, associate professor of operations research, $16,250 from the University of Minnesota, for a probability analysis of network polymers formed under nonideal conditions.

OLLIE McNEIL, left, a member of the Thurston Hall housekeeping staff, who received an award for an exceptional attendance record, is shown with Elbert Slaughter, director of Housekeeping, at the reception after Pride Day ceremonies.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part-time, Doctoral Program in Public Policy. (To assist with policy analysis seminar coordination. Must understand hardware/software interfaces for microcomputers and micro-macro linkages, as well as software modeling routines, database packages, and graphics capabilities. English verbal and written communication skills essential.) Send resume to Professor R. Clark, Staughton Hall, Room 303, Ext. 7521.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Department of Engineering Administration. (Research and analysis in U.S. Naval Systems. Position requires a graduate-level education in Soviet Studies and International Security Policy and recent experience in quantitative methods and systems analysis.) Send resume with education, recent work experience and salary history to Professor Sam Rothman, Gelman Library, Room 623. No phone calls please.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Half-time, Pathology Department, (Individual should be knowledgeable with micro-computers and familiar with PASCAL and BASIC languages. Background in computer science, medical technology, chemistry, and/or biology helpful.) Send resume to Dr. S. Silver, Ross Hall Room 513, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

PROGRAMMER/RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Medicine Computer Center. (Bachelor's degree, preferably in a natural science, including courses in statistics and biology. Duties will range from writing software tools for support of clinical and administrative data management systems to telephone user support. One to two years VM/CMS programming in SAS, FORTRAN, PASCAL and other structured languages required. Additional experience should include user support and training.) Contact Shelly Winston, Ext. 4022.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, half-time, Department of Civil, Mechanical, and Environmental Engineering. (Perform research and development testing of unsteady flow air machines, particularly those involving energy seperation. Requires B.S. in mechanical engineering with one year of work experience with fluid mechanics and thermal instrumentation as well as working with air conditioning and heavy machinery. Position provides limited tuition benefits.) Send resume to Professor C.A. Garris, Academic Center, Room T-739.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

January 16, 1984

gwReport

(351)

for the George Washington University community — News & Public Affairs — Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

PROFESSOR ETZIONI APPEARS ON MacNEIL-LEHRER NEWS HOUR

University Professor Amitai Etzioni appeared on the MacNeil-Lehrer News Hour in a 14-minute segment on Monday, January 9, in a discussion of the need for dealing with violence and misbehavior in the nation's schools. The discussion followed up on President Reagan's recent announcement of his intention to involve the Justice Department and other law enforcement agencies in school discipline problems.

Dr. Etzioni emphasized the importance of developing self-discipline and motivation in students and pointed out that the study the President relies on (National Insititute of Education, 1978) shows that only 8 percent of the nation's schools have problems with "serious" violence while the other 92 percent have only minor or no such problems.

Appearing with Dr. Etzioni was Gary Bauer, deputy undersecretary of education. Both Dr. Etzioni and Dr. Bauer had four minutes for initial presentations and then six minutes were devoted to general discussion.

Dr. Bauer said that he felt that even if only 8 percent of the schools are experiencing violence of a serious nature, still there is a far larger percentage of schools with very real problems with what he called "unruly students," and that he felt the president's emphasis on the need for discipline is serving to focus national attention on the problem. He noted that teachers put problems of discipline in the classroom ahead of low pay in listing drawbacks to their profession. Dr. Etzioni insisted on the point that disciplinary action will not meet the fundamental need to develop self-discipline and motivation in young people. He said that if students do not find this guidance at home, then the schools must do more in this direction.

SPIA Alumni Association President Thomas V. Lydon, left, talked with U.S. Marine Corps Commandant Paul X. Kelley, before General Kelley's January 9 speech on "The State of the Corps." In the course of his remarks, General Kelley commented on the high quality of the young people now coming into the Marine Corps.

TWO SPIA MASTER'S CANDIDATES RECEIVE LTV SCHOLARSHIPS

Dr. William H. Lewis, professor of international affairs and political science and director of the SPIA Security Policy Studies Program, has announced that two graduate students will receive LTV scholarships for the spring semester of 1984.

Robert W. Crawford and Charles E. Gresham III, both candidates for master's degrees in the School of Public and International Affairs, will each receive $1,500 LTV Scholarship Awards because of outstanding academic performance. The funds will go towards furthering their studies in national security affairs.

SEAS GRADUATES WIN TOP PRIZES FROM WASH. SOCIETY OF ENGINEERS

Two 1983 spring graduates of the School of Engineering and Applied Science (SEAS) were awarded Young Engineers Prizes by the Washington Society of Engineers, November 17 at the Fort Meyer Officers Club in Arlington, Virginia.

Naji Younes of Washington, D.C., who earned a B.S. in mechanical engineering, won first prize for his paper "Rayleigh Thermometry." Mark Unkenholtz of Silver Spring, Maryland, who received a B.S. in operations research in computational science, won second prize for his paper "Optional Allocation of a

(Continued on back)

GW ALUMNUS CHIKARA HIGASHI IS ELECTED TO JAPANESE DIET

Chikara Higashi, a 1982 graduate of the School of Government and Business Administration (D.B.A), has been elected a member of the Japanese Diet. He ran third among six candidates in the second electoral district of Wakayama prefecture, a sufficient showing to assure him a seat in Japan's House of Representatives.

Chikara Higashi

Higashi defended his doctoral dissertation, directed by Professor of International Business G.P. Lauter, in 1982. His dissertation subject was "U.S. - Japanese Trade Policy Formulation and Frictions in Trade Relations: 1978-79." In October, 1983, the dissertation was published by Praeger Publishers under the title "Japanese Trade Policy Formulation" in a book now on the market. The foreword to this book was written by Japanese Prime Minister Nakasone and former Finance Minister Watanabe. Professor Lauter was in charge of updating and changing the

(Continued on back)

PROFESSOR LEON GINTZIG DIES

Leon I. Gintzig, professor of health services administration, associate dean of the School of Government and Business Administration, and former chairman of the Department of Health Services, died on January 7 at The George Washington University Medical Center.

Dr. Gintzig first became associated with George Washington in 1960 as associate professorial lecturer in hospital administration while he was at the Veterans Administration Hospital. In September of 1961, he became a member of the full-time faculty as associate professor of hospital administration. He was named full professor in 1964. He had been associate dean of SGBA since 1979.

Born in Winchendon, Massachusetts, he was graduated from Boston University, took a master's degree in hospital administration at Northwestern University and earned a doctorate at the University of Iowa. He was a resident of Bowie, Maryland.

It was the family's request, that in lieu of flowers, contributions be made to The George Washington University Medical Center to be used for cancer research. Contributions will be applied to the Department of Medicine, Education and Research Fund for Cancer. They may be sent to the GWU Medical Center, Miss Deborah Kremer, MFA Building, Room 406-B.

TOLCHINS TO LECTURE AT SGBA LUNCHEON JAN. 26

Susan J. Tolchin, professor of public administration, and Martin Tolchin, a congressional reporter for the New York Times, will present a lecture on their book, Dismantling America: The Rush to De-Regulate, Thursday, January 26 in the University Club's President's Room. Sponsored by the School of Government and Business Administration, the program is $9 for students and $10 for the general public including lunch. Refreshments will be available at 11:30, and lunch will be served at noon, followed by the lecture. For more information and reservations call the Scnool of Government and Business Administration Office of Alumni Relations and Development at Ext. 4803.

NEW STUDENTS--Professor John A. Frey, chairman of the Department of Romance Languages and Literatures, left, welcomed Ammar Kanaan of Damascus, Syria, center and Susan Loretan of Olean, New York, at the January 10 reception for students entering GW for spring semester 1984. Ammar will be an upperclassman in civil engineering. Susan will be a second-semester junior in education. Some 200 new students have registered.

(Continued from front)

Budget Toward Procurement of Aircraft and Ships."

This is the second consecutive year that George Washington SEAS students have garnered both first and second prizes in this competition. The awards consist of cash prizes and memberships in the Washington Society of Engineers.

DIMOCK GALERY HOLDS ART EXCHANGE JANUARY 24 AND 25

The Dimock Gallery will be holding an art exchange open to all university offices on Tuesday, January 24, and Wednesday, January 25, from 11 am to 5 pm, in Lisner Auditorium, Lower Lounge.

Any university offices wishing to borrow or exchange previously borrowed artworks may come and view the selection. If you wish to exchange pieces, the gallery staff asks that you bring them in on Tuesday, so they will be available for inspection.

Artworks from the GW permanent collection are loaned for a one-time fee of $15 per item. The money is used to maintain and increase the collection. Loans and/or exchanges will not be made after January 25 until the next loan period is scheduled.

Individual departments will be responsible for arranging transportation of the artworks, and for installing them and securing the necessary hardware. This can be coordinated through the Physical Plant Department. For more information, call the Dimock Gallery at Ext. 7091.

(Continued from front)

dissertation into a book.

Candidate Higashi was the subject of an extensive page-one profile in the Wall Street Journal of December 14, 1983, written by Urban C. Lehner from Arida, Japan. The December 20 Journal carried the news of Higashi's election in Japan on December 18, noting that he ran as an independent, accepting the mantle of the Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) after his victory, thus helping to give the LDP enough seats to win a bare majority in the lower house.

Dr. Higashi, 42, was graduated from Tokyo University and entered the finance ministry where he worked for 18 years. In 1974, the ministry sent him to the United States for doctoral studies. In 1981 and 1982, he served as a special assistant to the then finance minister, Michio Watanabe. He said in campaigning that, if elected, he would be the only member of the Diet to hold a doctorate from a U.S. university.

His campaign slogan was "clean politics." He pointed out often that he was born and raised in the electorial district where he was running, that he was the son of an impoverished teacher and that he got where he is today "through study and hard work." Due to the style of campaigning in the district, there was a great deal of repetition of his name. This was seen as an advantage to him since the Chinese characters for his name are among those first taught to first-grade students and mean literally "Eastern power."

Greetings from the university on his election have gone to him in letters from the Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Harold F. Bright and School of Government and Business Administration Dean Norma Maine Loeser.

CRASH DAVENPORT TO PLAY FOR HOMECOMING DINNER DANCE

Crash Davenport, a musical ensemble that has been asked to play all types of music, will be playing for the Homecoming dinner dance scheduled for this coming Sarurday, January 21, beginning at 7:30 pm in the GW University Club.

The two-day festivities, highlighted by the dance, will begin with a Friday, January 20, pep rally and party in the Marvin Center third floor Continental Room starting at 8:30 pm.

Saturday, January 21, will feature a brunch in the morning (9:30 to 11:30 am in the Marvin Center's second floor cafeteria) followed by women's and men's basketball games (11:45 am and 2 pm) in the Charles E. Smith Center with a Colonials post-game reception in the Letterman's Room. Homecoming will conclude with the dinner dance.

There are charges for the brunch ($4.37 payable at the door), the games ($3 for both) and the dinner dance ($10 per person or $7 for students and children 12 and under). Friday evening's party and the Colonials post-game reception are free. For more information, call Ext. 7100.

ACADEMIC PUBLICATIONS INTERIM PHONE NUMBERS

During the period of remodeling of the Academic Publications Office in the third floor of Rice Hall, beginning today, January 16, the Academic Publications phone may not always be staffed. If there is no answer at Ext. 6310, please call Ext. 7033 or leave a message at the Provost's Office, Ext. 6506.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

SUSAN J. TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, was interviewed November 29 on the Fred Fiske Show on WAMU Radio in connection with her book Dismantling America - The Rush to Deregulate, coauthored with her husband, Martin Tolchin, a New York Times congressional correspondent. She was interviewed, along with Martin Tolchin, on December 22, on the Larry King Show on WTOP Radio (CBS Network). She was interviewed by ABC Radio on December 5 and appeared on the WTTG-TV discussion program, "Panorama," on December 7.

PUBLICATIONS

MURIEL ATKIN, associate professor of history, an article, "Moscow's Disenchantment With Iran," in the journal, Survey, Autumn-Winter 1983.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, MICHAEL MARQUARDT, adjunct professor of education, and NEAL NADLER, graduate student in education and human development, with Angus Reynolds, a book, Technology Transfer: a Project Guide for International HRD, IHRDC Publications, Boston, Massachusetts, February, 1984.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JAMES M. BROWN, professor of law, has been elected to membership in Lambda Alpha, an honorary society which recognizes individual achievement, in recognition of his many contributions in land development and land use management and control program courses, in studies of seismic safety and in advising national research organizations on environmental issues.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, testified before the U.S. District Court against rules limiting peaceful demonstrations in front of the White House, on behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union, December 12.

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr professor of multinational management, chaired a session on the changing environment of Japanese business and the implications for the United States at the annual meeting of the Academy of International Business in San Francisco, December 29, 1983. He was the banquet speaker at a tri-state meeting of High 12 Clubs in Evansville, Indiana, December 16, 1983. His subject was "The Status of the World Economy: Outlook for 1984."

DONALD E. HAWKINS, professor of human kinetics and leisure studies and resident professor of medicine, presented a paper entitled "Employment Analysis and Human Resource Development Needs in the Caribbean Basin," at the Miami Conference on the Caribbean, sponsored by Caribbean/Central American Action, December 2. He presented a bibliography entitled "Perceptual and Socio-Cultural Dimensions of the Tourism Environment," which was the result of a cooperative effort between George Washington University, U.S. Man and the Biosphere, and the Organization of American States, at the first Annual Meeting of Caribbean Ministers of Tourism in Barbados, December 4-8. At the invitation of the Grenada Chamber of Commerce officials, he presented preliminary recommendations concerning the potential economic impact of completing the Point Saline Airport and constructing an additional 1500 hotel rooms, in Grenada, on December 9 and 10.

HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, professor and dean of engineering and applied science, has recently been named to the International Council of Computational Mechanics and the governing committee of the newly formed International Association for Computational Mechanics (IACM). IACM'S objectives are to advance the state of the art in computational mechanics, to provide for rapid dissemination of scientific advances to members, to coordinate scientific meetings, and to arrange scientific congresses.

GRANTS

JOHN LACHIN, research professor of statistics, $684,059 from DHHS/NIH/NIADDK, for a data coordinating center for a collaborative clinical trial.

AKBAR MONTASER, associate professor of chemistry, $58,118 from the Department of Energy, for research on new high temperature plasmas and sample introduction systems for analytical emission spectrometry.

SARAH SCHLESSELMAN, assistant professor of statistics, $151,730 from the Department of Defense/Army/Medical Research and Development Command for biostatistical services for the study of anatomical and functional sequelae of head injuries incurred in Vietnam.

ERIC SIRULNIK, professor of law, $47,000 from the D.C. Government/OCJP&A, for the Law School Clinical Assistance Program.

J. N. YANG, professor of engineering and applied science, $152,342 from the National Science Foundation, to study the random vibration of rotating machines under seismic excitation.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Anatomy. (Studies involve nervous system injury and nerve regeneration. B.S. required. Experience in electron microscopy, light microscopy/histological techniques and routine laboratory precedures is desirable. Available February 1.) Send resume to Dr. R.C. Bohn, Department of Anatomy, The George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, DC 20037. Ext. 2884.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Biochemistry. (Position entails study of role of thymus hormones in T-cell and lymphoma development and work with radioisotopes, scintillation spectrometry, and data analysis. B.A. or B.S. and some lab experience required.) Contact Dr. Marion Zatz, Department of Biochemistry, Ross Hall, Room 554, Ext. 2929.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

THE CERTIFICATE OF COMMENDATION presented to the I Street Mall by the Government of the District of Columbia in December was given to the Grounds Division of the Physical Plant Department by Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl in a brief ceremony on January 6. Shown here are, L to R, Jeffrey Goldman and Barbara Moseley, both landscape designers-horticultural technicians; GW Grounds Supervisor Louis Smith; and Vice President Diehl. The certificate will hang in the Grounds Division Offices.

January 23, 1984

gwReport

(352)

for the George Washington University community | News & Public Affairs | Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

RODERICK S. FRENCH

Roderick S. French, professor of philosophy and director of the Division of Experimental Programs, (DEP) joined the faculty in 1968. following service as special assistant to the director of the Office of Public Affairs of the Peace Corps. He became director of DEP in 1977.

A native of Oregon, he received his undergraduate degree from Kenyon College summa cum laude with honors in philosophy. He holds degrees from Episcopal Divinity School (M. Div.), from Union Theological Seminary (S.T.M.) and from The George Washington University (Ph.D. American Civilization). At Kenyon College, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Professor French has written and lectured widely on the role of the humanities in American life and education, as well as on preservation, theological and church history and debates on socio-political philosophy in America in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. He has served as general editor of the monograph series GW Washington Studies, which now number 10.

A member of the board of directors of the National Federation of State Humanities Councils, he was a charter member of the District of Columbia Community Humanities Council and served as co-chairman for two years. He is a member of the advisory committee on historical research of the Columbia Historical Society and a member of the society's board of managers. Co-founder of the annual Washington, D.C., Historical Studies Conference, he was chairman for six years. A former vice president of the American Society for Environmental History, he was a member of the editorial group for the society's journal Environmental Review. He has served on the advisory boards of the D.C. History Curriculum Project of the D.C. Public Schools and of the Washington Review of the Arts. He is a member of the board of directors of the Potomac River Basin Consortium and is a reviewer for the Divisions of Public Programs, Education Programs, State Programs and Museum Programs for the National Endowment for the Humanities. In 1979, he was cited by the Washington Review

(Continued on back)

Roderick S. French

William D. Johnson

BOARD OF TRUSTEES MAKES TWO APPOINTMENTS, APPROVES BUDGET

The Board of Trustees, at its January 19 meeting, made two major appointments and approved the university budget for 1984-1985.

Roderick S. French, now director of the Division of Experimental Programs, and professor of philosophy, was named vice president for academic affairs. William D. Johnson, currently associate provost and director of planning and budgeting, was appointed provost. Both appointments will become effective July 1, following the retirement of Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Harold F. Bright, who has served in his present capacity since 1969.

Commenting on the two appointments, President Lloyd H. Elliott said, "I am very proud of this team, chosen to succeed the extremely able Harold Bright. Both Dr. French and Mr. Johnson have my full confidence. Both of them are superbly qualified to serve the university in these top leadership roles. Harold Bright serves this university with real distinction and will be greatly missed but the action taken by the Board in these two appointments will make it possible for the university to continue and enhance the patterns of growth already established."

The 1984-1985 university budget in the amount of $134,586,000 (excluding the Medical Center) was approved by the Board including tutition increases not to exceed 10 percent annually over the next four years. This policy is seen as a way of making it easier for parents and students to be able to plan for educational expenditures in advance. In 1984-1985, full-time undergraduate tuition will rise from the current $6,100 to $6,710. Engineering undergraduates will pay $7,370 in 1984-1985, in place of their present tuition of $6,700.

According to a report of tuition charged by 35 major universities, prepared by the University of Notre Dame, The George Washington University was in 32nd place in 1982-1983. In spite of the university's large increase in tuition rates for 1983-1984, GW is still in 32nd place in the tuition figures listed in the Notre Dame report. The 1984-1985 tuition figure of $6,710 moves GW to the 30th place on the 1983-1984 scale.

WILLIAM D. JOHNSON

Associate Provost and Director of Planning and Budgeting Johnson came to The George Washington University in 1954 from the post of assistant bursar at the University of Virginia. He has served in a variety of administrative, financial and planning roles during his career of more than 35 years in higher education.

A graduate of Indiana University with a B.S. in accounting, Associate Provost Johnson served three years as a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army's Quartermaster Corps. In 1946-47, he was an auditor for the Commonwealth of Virginia. In 1947, he became associated with the University of Virginia as chief accountant and advanced to become assistant bursar. When he joined the George Washington University community in 1954, it was as comptroller, the position he held until 1968 when he became director of planning and budgeting. In this capacity, he has been responsible for coordinating the development of academic plans, and for developing multi-year program budgets to support approved plans. He has also been responsible for developing and administering the university's annual operating budget. He assumed the added responsibilities of associate provost on July 1, 1982.

Associate Provost Johnson serves the university as liaison officer to the Consortium of Universities of the Washington Metropolitan Area. He is currently president of the Friends of the Libraries of The George Washington University. A past president of the District of Columbia chapter of the Financial Executives Institute, he is a member of the organization's National Committee on Academic Relations. He holds membership in the National and Eastern Associations of College and University Business Officers and in the Greater Washington Board of Trade.

Mr. Johnson and his wife, Audrey, live in Alexandria, Virginia. They are the parents of one married daughter.

PRESIDENT ELLIOTT IS ONE OF THE WASHINGTON 500

President Lloyd H. Elliott has been selected as one of the Washington 500 by the magazine Washington Dossier. The Washington 500 is a new feature appearing in the magazine's January edition and is described as a new tradition "that attempts to take a snapshot of those individuals whom we (the editors) feel are at the center of power and influence in their particular circle."

RAYMOND BARRE, former prime minister of France, is shown leaving the Marvin Center Theatre, following his well recieved speech on "Economic Prospects for Western Europe" on January 11. To his right is Acting SPIA Dean Peter P. Hill. Mr. Barre's appearance was sponsored by the SPIA Alumni Association and the School of Government and Business Administration.

GW

STUDENT DIRECTORY PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENT ASSOCIATION

The GW Student Association has just published a new Student Directory--the first such guide to be published since the 1980-1981 academic year. The directory contains listings of all full and part-time graduate and undergraduate students registered as of September 1983, including a local phone number and address and a permanent address. The directory is free, and is available at the Student Association office, Marvin Center, Room 424. Call Ext. 7100 for more information.

(Continued from front)

for his outstanding contributions to the cultural life of Washington.

Dr. French is a member of the American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies, American Studies Association, Intellectual History Group (OAH), Society for the Advancement of American Philosophy and the Washington Philosophy Club.

He has served as a consultant in the humanities to a number or organizations, among them, the National League of Cities, the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the Foreign Service Institute. Professor French is currently serving on the steering committee for a study of priorities for the humanities in the 1980s being conducted by the National Humanities Alliance.

As a member of the faculty, he has served on various committees in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, Columbian College of Arts and Sciences, the Division of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, and the Center for Washington Area Studies. He played a principal role in the establishment of the GW Center for Washington Area Studies. He has been a member of the Faculty Senate Committee on the University and Urban Affairs. He is co-founder and co-chairman of the university's Dilthey Society. He has worked on a number of grant proposals and had an important part in the university's receiving $800,000 from the National Endowment for the Humanities through a challenge grant.

Professor French and his wife, Sally, live in nearby Georgetown.

REGISTRATION, second day, was still the scene of a good deal of activity as students completed their registrations for the Spring Semester.

STUDENT BOOK COLLECTORS' CONTEST ENTRIES DUE FEB. 10

Friday, February 10, at 4 pm is the deadline for entries in the Student Book Collectors' Contest, sponsored annually by the Friends of the Libraries of The George Washington University.

The contest is open to all students enrolled at the university in the current academic year. Books entered in the contest must be owned and must have been collected by the student. Accompanying the books must be a short written description of the collection and an annotated bibliography of no more than 25 titles selected from the collection as representative of the whole. First, second and third prizes will be given in the contest. The prizes are $300, $200 and $100.

The Friends' purpose in sponsoring the contest is to encourage GW students to become interested in book collecting and in building a personal library. The winning collections will be displayed for a month during the spring semester. For further information and entry forms, contact David Zeidberg, curator of Special Collections, Gelman Library, Ext. 7549.

ALUMNI SERVICE AWARDS NOMINATIONS DUE FEBRUARY 17

Nominations for Alumni Service Awards, which recognize volunteer alumni service to the university, to the General Alumni Association and to any one of the constituent alumni organizations, must be submitted no later than Friday, Febraury 17, to be considered for this year.

Nominations can be forwarded to Sandra H. Lear, director of alumni relations, to be transmitted to the Alumni Awards Committee. They can be addressed to her in care of General Alumni Association, Alumni House, 714 21st St., NW. Nomination forms are available from the Office of Alumni Relations at Alumni House.

There is also a special award category to honor non-alumni who merit recognition for service. Names of prospective candidates for this recognition may also be submitted at this time. Questions, call Ext. 6435.

DON'T FORGET TO WRITE

As of the date of the preparation of this GW Report, the newsnotes you see are all we had on hand. Please keep the notes and memos coming to us at Gelman Library.

SECOND FACULTY PUBLICATIONS BIBLIOGRAPHY NOW IN PREPARATION

The Office of the Provost is now collecting materials for a second edition of a bibliography of faculty publications. This edition will cover the period July 1982 to June 1983. The first bibliography of faculty publications was issued by the Office of the Provost in November 1982 in response to Faculty Senate Resolution 81/6. It contains titles of published works by GW faculty members in the 1981-1982 period, listed by department and school. Copies were sent to departmental chairmen for circulation. A limited number of copies is available from the Office of the Provost. Department chairmen are reminded to send in their lists for the upcoming edition as soon as possible.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, was the guest editor of a special issue of Ocean Development and International Law: Journal of Marine Affairs, on the theme "Antarctica and the Law of the Sea." He also wrote an article, "Antarctica and the Law of the Sea: An Introductory Overview," for the issue, Vol. 13, No. 3, pp. 277-290.

JAMES C. KING, professor of German, an article, "Gedankengang, Gedankensprung: Der Herausgeber sucht einen Exkurs Notkers des Deuthschen zu ergrunden," in the Yearbook of the Seminar for Germanic Philology, Vol. 5, 1983.

JAMES WILLIS ROBB, professor of Romance languages, an article, "Vasconcelos y Reyes: anverso y reverso de una medalla," in Revista de la Universidad de Mexico, Mexico, XXXIX:32, December 1983, pp. 13-17.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, presented a paper entitled "Marine Pollution and the Southern Ocean: Problems and Prospects," at the Southern Regional Meeting of the International Studies Association in Atlanta, December 15-17, 1983.

THEODORE PERROS, professor of chemistry and of forensic sciences, has been appointed a Federal Commissioner on the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin by President Reagan, and serves as a member of its executive committee. Professor Perros presented a seminar entitled "Forensic Chemistry-A New Discipline," at the Department of Chemistry of Maryland University on December 2.

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, professor of psychology and director of the Counseling Center, MICHAEL KAISER, counselor, and THEODORE HEAVENER, counselor, presented a poster session entitled "How the Study of Attrition Relates to Evaluation of Psychotherapy," at the American Association of Behavioral Therapists 17th Annual Convention, December 9, in Washington, D.C.

NEIL A. TILKENS, associate professor of music, presented a lecture-recital on aspects of the relationship between Robert Schumann, Clara Schumann, and Johannes Brahms, at Western Maryland College, in Westminster, Maryland on December 10. The program was sponsored by the Carroll County Music Teachers Association in observance of the 150th year after Brahms' birth. A major work for the piano by each of the three composers was featured.

SUSAN J. TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, gave a talk before the Washington Council of Lawyers December 1 in connection with her book, Dismantling America - the Rush to Deregulate, coauthored with her husband, Martin Tolchin, New York Times congressional correspondent. On December 6, she spoke to the National Capital Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration plenary session; November 22, she testified before the New York State Commission on Financial Services Deregulation. December 2, she spoke at the University of Southern California Washington Center. On December 19, Professor Tolchin and Martin Tolchin gave a presentation on deregulation at the law firm of Arnold & Porter. On January 5, the Tolchins spoke at the Palm Beach Round Table in Palm Beach, Florida.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT part-time, Department of Biological Sciences. (Isolate organelles from plant tissues and measure enzymes. Experience in membrane biochemistry. 20 hours per week, January-May.) Contact Dr. Robert P. Donaldson, Lisner Hall, Room 307, Department of Biological Sciences, Ext. 6094 or 6090.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

January 30, 1984

gwReport

(353)

for the George Washington University community | News & Public Affairs | Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

BENJAMIN T. ROME HALL IS DEDICATED ON JANUARY 23

In a brief ceremony on January 23, the north tower of the academic center was dedicated as the Benjamin T. Rome Hall of The George Washington University.

Participating in the ceremony were University Marshal Robert G. Jones, Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl, President Lloyd H. Elliott and Mr. Rome. Mr. Rome is chairman of the board of the George Hyman Construction Company.

In welcoming remarks, Vice President Diehl commented, "This building is appropriately named. Like our honoree, it survived a series of challenges -- assembly of land, zoning, financing -- including getting a bill through the Congress of the United States in one day. The George Hyman Construction Company is no stranger to our campus and we are pleased to have this permanent reminder of our association." He traced briefly the history of the design, which was started in 1975, and noted that the building provides 60,000 square feet of space in 11 stories.

President Elliott, in dedicating the hall, quoted the poet John Masefield who wrote, "There are few earthly things more splendid than a university." He stated, "Today, it is my great pleasure to add one more name to the growing list which began with those who first persuaded the Congress in 1821 to grant a charter for the establishment of this institution." Calling the ceremony a historic moment, he said the formal act of naming a structure is a solemn commitment. "What we do here will become and remain a part of the history of this institution for centures to come," Dr. Elliott declared, "On behalf of the university I express to the Hyman Construction Company and to its chairman, Benjamin T. Rome, our deepest appreciation."

In his response, Mr. Rome said, "I am, at heart, a frustrated teacher." He related how, almost 60 years ago, when he was graduated from Johns Hopkins University, he had an opportunity to stay on in the math department, grading papers, helping with the freshmen and working towards advanced degrees in math. He said he liked the idea but "unfortunately, it was not to be. I wound up spending most of my adult life out in the mud, the rain and the snow working on construction jobs." He noted that in recent years he has had the privilege of serving as a trustee at two institutions of higher learning, that he found this service rewarding but not the same as being on the faculty. "Now, by your action today," he said, "everything has changed. I am now seated in the cloistered halls of academia -- with a tenure longer than any provided for in the rules of the AAUP."

A native Washingtonian, Mr. Rome holds the degree of

(Continued on back)

Mr. Benjamin T. Rome, left, with President Elliott

PRESIDENT ELLIOTT APPOINTS COMMISSION FOR THE YEAR 2000

President Lloyd H. Elliott has appointed a Commission for the Year 2000 to engage in long-range planning for The George Washington University.

Serving as chairman will be Assistant Provost for Affirmative Action Marianne R. Phelps.

In the memorandum appointing commission members, President Elliott observed that while major improvements have been made in recent years to many educational activities of the university, including new libraries and library resources, additional teaching and research laboratories, new equipment, added academic programs, and a number of important faculty appointments, still a comprehensive examination of academic progress has not taken place. Noting that the university's financial foundation is a bit stronger and more stable now, the president said that it seems timely to take a careful look at the mission and programs of George Washington to determine what new directions or new emphases, if any, might be considered and what programs may be due for re-shaping or possible discontinuance.

President Elliott emphasized his desire that the commission's study be as "altogether open and broadly inclusive" as possible. Speaking of the commission at the January 20 meeting of the Faculty Senate, he said, "It would be my hope that everyone will indeed feel this is a study in which each and every person has a chance to participate and give ideas. It would also be my hope that the entire process would be widely publicized and even more widely participated in."

In his memorandum, he suggested that the commission invite deans, vice presidents and directors of independent programs to submit data, plans and proposals as each may see fit; that the General Alumni Association, the Faculty Senate of the university, the George Washington University Student Association, other organized constituencies and individuals within the university and interested citizens beyond the campus boundaries be invited to provide ideas and information to the commission. He stated that the commission members should feel free to request data or information from any and all offices and officers of the university as their study may require. He asked the commission to encourage all who are interested in the long-range plans of the university to offer ideas, suggestions and opinions in order to make the study open and inclusive.

With regard to the timetable, he said he expected that some 18 months would be required for the completion of the study and that a preliminary draft should be available for wide distribution and assessment by January 1, 1985, with a final report ready for the May meeting of the Board of Trustees in 1985.

President Elliott commented that the commi-commission's task will not be easy. "It is one which must be done, however," he said, "if this institution is to continue the climb to national and international leadership among the universities of this world. Nothing less should be our goal and your deliberations should give us guidance for the decades immediately ahead. It is my conviction that GW may now respond more adequately than at any time before to the opportunities and responsibilities which history, location and the needs of society may offer."

Serving on the commission with Chairman Phelps will be: John G. Boswell, chairman, Education Department and professor of education; L. Thompson Bowles, dean for academic affairs, Medical Center, and professor of surgery; Edward A. Caress,

(Continued on back)

DEAN EUGENE KELLY APPEARS ON PBS "LATENIGHT AMERICA"

Dean Eugene Kelly of the School of Education and Human Development appeared on the PBS television show "LateNight America" on January 12 in a half-hour discussion with Dr. Raymond Moore, a proponent of home schools.

Dean Kelly disputed Dr. Moore's contention that children generally should be kept out of school and at home until they are about eight or ten years of age. Dean Kelly emphasized the need for a comprehensive educational policy that would provide support and education for parents in addition to the children's attending school. Asked about the declining quality of schools, Dean Kelly acknowledged that improvements are called for in several areas and said that these improvements require strong support and involvement of parents and other citizens, not an avoidance of the schools. In response to telephone questions coming in from callers across the nation, Kelly encouraged those calling to become constructively involved with teachers for the improvement of schools.

Challenging Dr. Moore's assertion that research supports the idea of keeping children at home until they are eight or ten, Dean Kelly noted that recent studies showed positive results from such programs as Headstart. He said some studies were at best inconclusive on the merits of home or group education for advantaged children and that most researchers in early childhood studies support a combination of parent education and child development and education programs for four- and five-year-olds. He said that the home school movement, while receiving considerable media attention, is small in relation to kindergarten programs which enroll about 90 percent of five-year-olds and nursery programs with 50 percent of four-year-olds.

"LateNight America" is telecast to approximately 100 stations.

GW

L. THOMPSON BOWLES IS FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURER IN FEBRUARY

L. Thompson Bowles, professor of surgery and dean of the Medical Center for academic affairs, will speak on "The Biological Effects of Stress in Everyday Living" on Wednesday, February 1, at 8 pm in the Continental Room, 3rd floor, Marvin Center. This will be the February lecture in the First Wednesday Lecture Series, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office. There is no charge but those planning to attend should call Ext. 6435 to reserve a space. Dinner, for both members and non-members of the GW University Club, will be available ahead of time, beginning at 6:30 pm. Call the club directly for reservations, Ext. 6610.

(Commission,
Continued from front)

assistant dean, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and professor of chemistry; William R. Johnson, acting director, Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies and associate professor of history; William H. Marlow, director, Institute for Management Science and Engineering and professor of operations research; Robert E. Park, professor of law; and Harry E. Yeide, chairman, Religion Deparment, and professor of religion.

Serving as rapporteur for the commission will be Susan J. Tolchin, professor of public administration.

Consultants to the commission will be Roderick S. French, director, Division of Experimental Programs (vice president-designate for academic affairs) and William D. Johnson, associate provost and director of planning and budgeting (provost-designate).

LAW ALUMNI RELATIONS MOVES

The Law Alumni Relations Office has been relocated from the Gelman Library to the Jacob Burns Library Extension at 716 20th Street, NW. The office is now on the 4th floor, south wing. The telephone extension remains the same, Ext. 6420.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT SERIES CATALOGUES ARE AVAILABLE

Catalogues for the Personal Development Series of groups and workshops sponsored by the Counseling Center are available around campus and at the center, 718 21st Street, NW (Building N). The series of group offerings is designed to teach students new skills to help them reduce stress and to take full advantage of George Washington's academic environment. All programs are free and are also available to faculty and staff on a space available basis. For more information, call the center, Ext. 6550.

(Rome Hall,
Continued from front)

Bachelor of Engineering from Johns Hopkins University and the Master of Architecture from the Catholic University of America. He has served Johns Hopkins as a member of the advisory council of the School of Advanced International Studies since 1972. Johns Hopkins conferred on him the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1977 and the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters in 1982. He was a trustee of the Catholic University of America from 1968 to 1970 and is now an honorary trustee. In 1977, Catholic University awarded him the Cardinal Gibbons medal for distinguished and meritorious services to the university. May 11, 1975, at commencement ceremonies there, he was presented with a citation from Paul VI which invested him with the rank of Knight Commander of the Order of St. Sylvester, one of the highest honors given to lay persons by the Roman Catholic Church. He received the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters in 1980 from the Catholic University.

Mr. Rome's career has been with the George Hyman Construction Company since 1929. He was president from 1958 to 1969 and has been chairman of the board since then. A member of the board of trustees of the George and Sadie Hyman Foundation since 1955, he has been president since 1978.

HOMECOMING--Edward W. Gnehm, (B.A. 1966, M.A. 1968, SPIA) posed with GW cheerleaders Carolyn Russo, left, and Bethany D'Amico at the Colonials' reception following the Homecoming basketball games January 21.

ADMISSIONS OFFICE SEEKS UNDERGRADUATE WRITERS

If you are a currently enrolled GW undergraduate, the Office of Admissions would like to learn about your campus experiences, for purposes of publication in a new recruiting brochure highlighting GW student life. The publication will be the final component of a series of three booklets featuring faculty, alumni, and students, respectively. Articles may be short and diverse in focus but should be as detailed and objective as possible, so that the completed booklet will present a comprehensive campus portrait.

Articles should be about 500 words in length--preferably in double-spaced, typed form, but legible handwriting is also acceptable. Please include a paragraph giving your hometown, undergraduate division and major, career goals, etc. If your contribution is accepted for inclusion in the brochure, the Admmissions Office will take your picture to accompany the text.

The deadline for receipt of submissions is Friday, April 6, 1984. Final selections for publication will be made by the staff of the Office of Admissions. All manuscripts will be subject to minor editing. Please give your reflections on GW life and learning, and submit them to Kimberly Ashworth, Publications Coordinator, Office of Admissions, Rice Hall, 2nd Floor.

MFA Candidate Michael Savell, and Gail Mishkin, GW assistant curator of art, examine Savell's hand-colored silver print of "Benches #5" in the Dimock Gallery. The print is one of the 48 works by MFA candidates in the gallery's MFA Thesis Candidate Show which will run through February 10.

1983 FEDERAL TAX EXEMPT STATUS EXPIRES FEBRUARY 15

Federal tax form W-4, item 6, allows certain employees to claim exemption from tax withholding by certifying that they "did not owe any Federal income tax and had a right to a full refund of ALL income tax withheld" for the previous year AND that they expect a similar situation to exist in the current year. This exemption from tax withholding is valid for only one calendar year at a time and expires annually in February.

Employees who are eligible to continue their 1983 exemption from tax withholding in 1984 must complete a form W-4 by February 15, 1984. Failure to recertify by February 15 will result in the withholding of Federal taxes as though the employee has zero withholding allowances.

Forms W-4 are available at the Records and Benefits Office of Personnel Services, Building GG, 2125 G Street, NW, or at the University Payroll Office, Academic Center, 1st floor.

Please note that this section of form W-4 is used mostly by student employees. This announcement does not apply to the rest of form W-4 which is used for claiming marital status, dependents and withholding allowances. These items remain in effect until changed by the employee.

MARIAN McNABB DIES

Marian McNabb, studio lecturer in piano in the Department of Music, died suddenly at her home in Washington on Friday, January 20. She had been a member of the music faculty since 1963 and held the position of University Organist from 1972-79.

Ms. McNabb received the Bachelor of Music degree from the Univerisity of Kansas and the Master of Sacred Music degree from the Union Theological Seminary. After coming to Washington in 1949, she became active and held offices in several professional organizations, including the Friday Morning Music Club, Mu Phi Epsilon national music fraternity, the American Guild of Organists, the National Federation of Music Clubs, the Arts Club of Washington, and Zonta International. She was continually involved in the study of sacred music and keyboard pedagogy and received a faculty research grant from GW in 1970.

As an organist, Ms. McNabb had appeared in recitals in Washington as well as throughout the United States and Europe. While at GW, she also founded a student music club, Pro Musica, which has provided an additional student performing outlet as well as lectures and workshops.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

S. ROBERT LICHTER, assistant professor of political science, was interviewed on "Laborvision," a cable TV program sponsored by the AFL-CIO, discussing the portrayal of working people in television entertainment.

PETER WERRES, associate professorial lecturer in German, was interviewed November 5 for the program "Business Times," on the New York City Cable TV Network ESPN. He discussed recent trends in German society, business practices and culture.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part-time, Department of Anatomy. (Studies involving central nervous system and polypeptide hormone. B.S. in chemistry or biology required. Prior laboratory experience with morphologic or biochemical techniques desirable. Position available immediatley.) Send resume to Dr. R. J. Walsh, Department of Anatomy, The George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 I St., NW, Washington D.C., 20037, Ext. 2889.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, half-time, Pathology Department. (Individual needed for design of instruction on micro-computers. Must be able to work as a liaison between content specialists and computer programmers. Master's degree preferred in instructional design or educational technology. Experience in screen formatting and video interaction preferred.) Send resume to Dr. S. Silver, Ross Hall, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037, Room 513.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Program in History and Public Policy. (Experience in history and public policy and ability to write quickly and creatively, to perform research on funding sources, to devise systems for keeping records on a micro-computer, and to handle special projects.) Contact Professor E. Berkowitz, Ext. 8174.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

February 6, 1984

gwReport

(354)

for the George Washington University community — News & Public Affairs — Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

U.S. OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT APPROVES SGBA EXECUTIVE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The School of Government and Business Administration has been notified that its Contemporary Executive Development (CED) Program has been approved by the United States Office of Personnel Management (OPM) as "an alternate program" for the training of Senior Executive Service (SES) candidates. This approval was requested last spring by SGBA.

The approval means that SES candidates who complete the university's CED Program will be considered to have equivalent training to those who have completed the executive development seminars conducted by the OPM at Denver, Colorado; Kings Point, New York; and Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

This recognition has only been given to two other educational institutions by OPM. They are Harvard University and the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. At the Industrial College, certification applies to 10 United States civilian attendees yearly in the college's class of 200. George Washington's CED Program graduated 87 over the period of its first three courses (September, 1982-October, 1983). The current GW CED session, which began January 31, has 31 participants enrolled.

"IN GOOD COMPANY," part of the Portraits in Motion Studio Theatre series at the National Portrait Gallery, featured GW students in the university's Master of Fine Arts in Theatre program in performances January 27 and 28 at the gallery. The students and the famous women figures they portrayed were, L to R, Catherine Zizik (Edna St. Vincent Millay); Ethel Hammer (Victoria Claflin Woodhull); Hala Sharhan (Isadora Duncan); Susan Alison Keady (Zelda Fitzgerald); Patricia Tulli (Louise Bryant); and, partially hidden, Victoria Walsh (Tallulah Bankhead). The program was conceived and directed by Leslie Jacobson, resident director of GW University Theatre.

Jacqueline Peterson

JACQUELINE PETERSON TO BECOME UNIVERSITY CASHIER FEBRUARY 8

Jacqueline Peterson, currently senior fiscal supervisor in the Office of Student Accounts, has been selected for the position of university cashier. She will assume her new responsibilities on February 8. She succeeds Mrs. Lelia O. Kent, who retired from the university in December.

Mrs. Peterson came to Washington from Minnesota in March, 1973, and joined the university as a fiscal supervisor in Student Accounts. She was named senior fiscal supervisor in Febraury, 1978. Before coming to George Washington, she had been assistant director of personnel and payroll at Macalester College in St. Paul, Minnesota.

IT'S CAREER AWARENESS WEEK

This week, February 6 through 10, is Career Awareness Week '84. Sponsored by the university and coordinated by the Student and Alumni Career Services Center, the program is designed to provide tips on choosing a career, job-hunting and building an existing career.

More than 50 workshops and programs are scheduled--most of which will last approximately one hour. They will take place in various rooms in the Marvin Center. Concurrent sessions will revolve around the three themes of choosing a career, getting a job and maintaining a career.

Deciding on a career --is for those who are exploring various possibilities, and is meant to give a basic introduction to career fields and career decision-making strategies. Programs will cover careers in advertising and public relations, international business and economics, information systems, health and medicine, and engineering and computer science, as well getting appropriate internships and choosing and getting into graduate school.

Obtaining a job--is designed for both the entry-level and experienced professional, and will examine strategies for obtaining a position in a tight job market. Programs will include networking, resume writing and effective interviewing, marketing a liberal arts degree, and handling the stress of job-seeking. Employers such as the Marriott Corporation and Riggs National Bank will hold open houses.

Building a career--is planned for those already working in their chosen fields, and will include information on current issues, employers and strategies for success. Programs will cover such topics as computer literacy, black professionals

(Continued on back)

UNIVERSITY THEATRE PRESENTS ACTORS IN REPERTORY FEB. 9-11

The George Washington University Theatre will present "Actors in Repertory," performances by Master of Fine Arts acting candidates Thursday, February 9, through Saturday, February 11, at 8 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. Candidate Patricia Tulli will appear in her original "Act Won, Scene Two." Candidate Susan Alison Keady will appear in her creation "The Wooden Horse."

Tickets are $6 general addmission, $3 for students and senior citizens. Box office hours are 12:30 to 5 pm Monday through Friday. Call Ext. 6178.

TWO GUITARS AND A FLUTE, FACULTY RECITAL FEBRUARY 13

John Albertson and Brian Head, guitarists, and Penelope Fischer, flautist, will appear in a faculty recital on Monday, February 13, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. The performance is open without charge. The three artists will appear in various combinations performing music of Scarlatti, Ponce, Poulenc, Feld, Scheidler, Kuhlau, Ibert, Carlevaro and Villa-Lobos.

John Albertson is adjunct assistant professor of music. Penelope Fischer is studio instructor in flute. Brian Head will be guest artist for the recital. For more information, call Ext. 6245.

OUR CHANGING CAMPUS

(Editor's Note: In cooperation with the Faculty Senate Committee on Physical Facilities, the Office of the Vice President and Treasurer provides this updated information on construction and renovation on campus.)

At the National Law Center, construction of the addition to the Jacob Burns Law Library and the classroom building north of Stockton Hall is complete and these new facilities are in use. Two additional phases remain. Interior remodeling of the Law Library and Stockton through the second floor will be completed during this semester to provide student lounges, expanding library study facilities, Law School clinic offices and support space. During the summer term the final phase of remodeling (spaces above the second floor) will be completed. Overall target for completion of construction is August-Septemeber 1984.

We have substantially completed interior remodeling of portions of Monroe-Government for SGBA and portions of Lisner Hall for Biological Sciences faculty and support space and an additional classroom in Bell Hall.

Guthridge Hall student housing renovations and general building system upgrading are proceeding on schedule with a March 1984 target for completion.

Construction in Samson Hall is in process. Work on the first floor (chiefly Forensic Science research labs) will be complete in early June. Remodeling of the second floor for NROTC office and support space should be completed in mid-March.

We have completed the zoning process incident to construction of the University Support Building on the 2000 block of F St. We anticipate receiving a building permit and starting construction in March. Target for completion is the end of 1984.

Under planning are radio-TV facilities in spaces leased from the United Church on 20th Street, a Medical Facilities building addition to the H.B. Burns Building and computer graphics and design spaces in Tompkins Hall.

JAMES O. HORTON TO SPEAK ON GENDER ROLES IN ANTEBELLUM BLACK SOCIETY ON FEBRUARY 8

James O. Horton, associate professor of American history and civilization, will speak on "The Burden of Sex and Race: Gender Roles in Antebellum Black Society" on Wednesday, February 8, at noon in Room 202 of the Gelman Library. The talk is sponsored by the Friends of the Libraries of The George Washington University and is being given in conjuction with the celebration of Black History Month (February). There is no charge for the lecture. Those attending are invited to bring their lunches. Coffee will be served.

(Continued from front)

of the 1980s, the legislative process, GW Women's Network, survival skills, and issues facing the new technical professional.

A complete schedule of events is available from the Student and Alumni Career Services Center, Academic Center T-509. All programs are free and open to the public.

"EYES ON GW" EXHIBTION TO OPEN IN COLONNADE GALLERY

"Eyes on GW: Seeking an Image for the Campus" is the title of the exhibition scheduled to open in the third floor Colonnade Gallery of the Marvin Center on Thursday, February 9. The exhibition will include maps, drawings, photographs and text material documenting existing conditions and offering a variety of proposals.

Six GW graduate students in urban and regional planning in the Community Planning and Design Studio have produced the exhibition. The group studied visual and physical aspects of the campus and developed a series of alternatives which they feel would enhance the image of the campus. The alternatives explored ranged from simple and practical solutions to whimsical ideas and fantasy. Some of the solutions propose the use of strong landmarks, enhanced campus entrances and sculptural elements.

The exhibition, which will run through Tuesday, March 20, is sponsored by the Governing Board of the Marvin Center and the Department of Urban and Regional Planning, School of Government and Business Administration. Colonnade Gallery hours are the same as those of the Marvin Center.

The six graduate students who participated in the project which forms the basis for the exhibition are Rebecca Brandt, Nancy McCrea, Joe McGrath, Elissa Rozov, Andy Shapiro and Andrea Wohlfield.

The project was directed by Sherwin Greene, associate professor of urban and regional planning. The students were assisted in the early stages of the project by Joseph A. Passonneau, a local consultant, architect and planner, who is a former dean of the School of Architecture of Washington University in St. Louis.

BOOKWORKS BY MICHAEL J. DENNIS IN SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

A small exhibition of hand-made books with abstract images is on view in the Special Collections Reading Room of the Gelman Library through February 24. The exhibit, titled "Bookworks by Michael J. Dennis," is accompanied by an educational display explaining and illustrating traditional and alternative book structures.

The display features descriptions and examples of various means of book binding. Traditionally bound books are accompanied by alternative book structures such as the concertina, an adaptation of the scroll; palm leaf books, which are bound with cord at one point on each side so they can be fanned out in the palm of the hand; coptic binding, the earliest known method of sewing a book through folds; and non-adhesive binding, where sections are sewn without glue through a rigid support system running the whole length of the book's spine.

The books contain abstract images made of inlaid paper and casein paint. The development of the unusual inlaid paper medium in which Dennis works stemmed from techniques learned in the study of hand binding.

Michael J. Dennis, the artist, received his B.A. in design in 1980 from American University and earned his M.F.A. from the George Washington University in 1983. He is currently teaching in GW's Art Department. The Special Collections Room is located on the second floor of the Gelman Library. The exhibit is open from 8:30 am to 5 pm, Monday through Friday.

AT&T corporate vice president-strategic planning Lee S. Cutcliff, right, visited with GW graduate student in telecommunications Betsy Bancroft, left, and Visiting Assistant Professor of Communication and Theatre Louisa Nielsen, after his talk, "The New AT&T Faces the Future," at the January 26 Telecommunications Forum.

STUDENT TEACHERS IN PIANO OFFER FREE PIANO LESSONS

The GW music pedagogy class, under the direction of Professor of Music George Steiner, is offering private piano lessons during the spring semester to a limited number of students beginning immediately. The lessons are free and non-credit. The studio practice facilities of the Music Department will be made available to those students selected. Applicants should contact the Music Department as soon as possible. Call Ext. 6245. Students with no previous experience in piano are especially encouraged to apply.

RECREATION AND INTRAMURAL DEPT. OFFERS SPRING CHOICES

The Department of Recreation and Intramurals has begun this semester's schedule of intramural athletics. All programs are open to faculty, staff and students with valid I.D. cards, and are free of charge.

Aerobics classes are offered Monday, Wednesday and Friday at noon and 5:30 pm. The classes last one hour, and are limited to the first 100 who come.

Yoga classes are held Thursday evenings at 5:30 pm. To participate you must sign up at the Recreation and Intramurals Office, Room 103, Smith Center.

Basketball, co-rec volleyball, co-rec innertube water polo and indoor soccer team tournaments will be held throughout the semester. You may sign up for a team, or as an individual to be placed on a team.

Individual tournaments will be held in table tennis, badminton, handball, racquetball and squash. Sign up at the Smith Center and attend the participants' meeting.

The master swim program is designed for you if you are a swimmer who needs a coach to put you on a workout program and encourage you to keep going.

The surf-and-turf chart will keep track of any jogging, swimming or bicycling that you do on your own.

The department will also be conducting clinics throughout the semester in racquetball, squash, weightlifting and massage technique.

Call Ext. 6250 for further details. All activities except aerobics require advance registration.

At the recent ACTIVITIES FAIR in Marvin Center John Ormasa, resident director of Thurston Hall and newly elected president of Bacchus (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students), right, talked with Dan Costello, president of the Inter-Fraternity Forum. Ormasa is a graduate student in SPIA. Costello is a sophomore in Columbian College.

NEWSNOTES

GRANTS

LINDA DePAUW, professor of American history, $109,463 from the GSA/National Historical Publications and Records Commission, for the Documentary History of the First Federal Congress.

CHARLES M. GILMORE, professor of engineering and applied science, $46,300 from the Department of Defense/ Navy/David W. Taylor Naval Ship R & D Center, for a study on zirconium oxide, aluminum oxide ceramic coating system.

HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, professor and dean of Engineering and applied science, $144,723 from the NASA/Langley Research Center, for a cooperative agreement aeroacoustics program in the JIAFS. Also, $221,692 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration/Langley Research Center, for a research program in structures and dynamics.

EUGENE W. KELLY, professor and dean of education and human development, $25,000 from the Danforth Foundation, for a study of professional development of institutional personnel.

NOZER SINGPURWALLA, professor of operations research and statistics, $65,000 from the Department of Defense/ Army/ARO, for research in some methodological and modelling aspects of reliability theory.

WILLIAM F.E. LONG, professor of economics and dean of the Division of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, $55,000 from NASA for research on the operation of a system for life sciences.

RICHARD E. MERRITT, assistant research professor of biochemistry, $22,210 from the JWK International Corporation for a review of state programs concerning cancer prevention.

AKBAR MONTASER, associate professor of chemistry, $33,000 from the American Chemical Society, for research on new high temperature plasmas and sample introduction systems for analytical atomic emission spectrometry.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Surgery. (Must be a registered professional nurse to assist as surgical investigational coordinator. Full-time responsibilities for coordinating clinical investigation projects. Incumbent will be a member of clinical research team and will actively participate in the organization, development and completion of projects studying aspects of surgical patient care.) Contact Dr. Glenn W. Geelhoed at Ext. 4427.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

February 13, 1984

gwReport

(355)

for the George Washington University community | News & Public Affairs | Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

HENRY CISNEROS TO SPEAK AT FEBRUARY 20 CONVOCATION

George Washington University alumnus Henry Cisneros, mayor of San Antonio, will speak at the February 20 Winter Convocation in the Charles E. Smith Center. He will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws and the university's Alumni Achievement Award.

Some 1,000 degrees will be conferred at the convocation, scheduled for 1 p.m. President Lloyd H. Elliott, will confer honorary degrees and degrees in course and will deliver the traditional charge to the graduates. Reverend Thomas F. Kehoe, chaplain, Newman Catholic Student Center, will give the invocation and benediction and music will be provided by the Potomac Brass Ensemble under the direction of Roy J. Guenther.

In addition to Mayor Cisneros, Dr. Seymour Alpert, professor emeritus of anesthesiology and former vice president for development; Franz Bader, Washington art figure; and Jessie Bernard, author and leader in the fields of education and sociology; will receive honorary degrees. Dr. Alpert will receive the Doctor of Laws, Mr. Bader the Doctor of Fine Arts and Dr. Bernard the Doctor of Humanities.

Henry Cisneros

Alumni Achievement Awards will be presented to Dr. Cisneros, who holds the Doctor of Business Administration from the university (1976); Dr. Vincent L. DeQuattro, (M.D. 1960); Charles Alvin Gabriel (M.E.A. 1963); William Reed Howard (B.A. 1954 and LL.B. 1956); and Roxie Collie (Simpson) Laybourne (M.A. 1950). University Trustee Nancy B. Dudley, president of the General Alumni Association, will present the recipients for the awards.

Mayor of San Antonio since 1981, Dr. Cisneros was re-elected to his second term in 1983 with 94.2 percent of the vote. He began his professional experience there in 1968 as an administrative assistant in the Office of the City Manager. He came to Washington, D.C., in 1970 with

(Continued on back)

FOUR FUTURE ENGINEERS from Malaysia are shown at a recent party given by the English for International Students Program to open the spring semester. They are, L to R, Normala, Zainon, Nooreha, and Noor Rita. Noor Rita is a student of civil engineering. Her friends are studying electrical engineering.

SEMINAR ON BENEFITS, PLANNING AND INVESTMENTS TO BE MARCH 31

A faculty-staff seminar on fringe benefits, financial planning and investments, will be held on Saturday, March 31, from 8:30 am to 4:45 pm in the Marvin Theatre. The seminar is co-sponsored by the Faculty Senate Committees on University Development and Resources and on Appointment, Salary and Promotion Policies (including Fringe Benefits). This is the third year that such a seminar has been offered.

Morning sessions will be devoted to various aspects of TIAA-CREF benefits with emphasis on the pension program. In the afternoon, the many advantages of charitable planned giving, personal financial planning and investment opportunities will be discussed. Question and answer periods will follow both the morning and afternoon sessions.

President Lloyd H. Elliott will be the speaker at the optional lunch which will be available between the am and pm sessions. There is a small fee for the seminar: $5 for one person, $7.50 for two. Cost of the optional lunch in the GW University Club is $9.50.

If you wish to attend, please submit the reservation form you received in campus mail to the Development Office, Gelman Library 701, by Friday, February 24. Questions, call Jerry Anderson at Ext. 8714.

BELL ATLANTIC AND THE CSO ARE FORUM TOPIC FEBRUARY 16

Richard Schramm, vice president and associate general counsel, Bell Atlantic, and James C. Ehlinger, government relations, Central Service Organization, will discuss the topic, "The Local Operating Companies: Bell Atlantic and the CSO," at the Telecommunications Forum, Thursday, February 16, from 4 to 5:15 pm in Room 426 of the Marvin Center. Their discussion will be followed by a question and answer period.

GW MEDICAL CENTER OBSERVES BLACK HISTORY MONTH

A special program in observance of Black History Month will be held Wednesday, February 15, at 3 pm in the Marvin Center Colonnade Room. The theme of the program is "Black Leadership Influence in America: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

Theron Bell, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Minority Business and Development; Paul Berry, Channel 7 television news personality; and Reginald Mason, M.D., resident, primary care, internal medicine, the GW Medical Center, will be featured speakers. The program is free and open to the public. For more information call Ext. 8486.

On February 29, the university's Third Annual Black History Commemoration is scheduled for the Marvin Center Continental Room from 3:45 to 5:45 pm. Details will appear in the GW Report of Febraury 27.

COMMUNICATION AND THEATRE PRESENTS "WOMEN IN POWER"

The Communication and Theatre Department will present Women in Power by Aristophanes in the Marvin Center Theatre Thursday through Saturday, February 23-25, and Thursday through Saturday, March 1-3, at 8 pm, and Sunday, March 4, at 2 pm.

Tickets are on sale at the Marvin Center Box Office. General admission is $6, for students and senior citizens $3. For information or reservations, call Ext. 6178.

ANNUAL STUDENT SHOW OPENS THURSDAY IN DIMOCK GALLERY

The annual student show, works by GW art students, both graduate and undergraduate, opens Thursday, February 16, in the Dimock Gallery. The exhibition will present all media including painting, drawing, sculpture, ceramics, photography, printmaking, visual communications and design. Some of the works will be for sale. The show will run through Friday, March 2. Gallery hours are 10 am to 5 pm weekdays.

DR. CLARA LOVETT TO BE DEAN OF COLUMBIAN COLLEGE

Clara M. Lovett, chief of the European Division of the Library of Congress, has been chosen to become dean of Columbian College of Arts and Sciences on July 1 following the retirement of Dean Calvin D. Linton who has been dean since 1957. Dr. Lovett's appointment was announced by President Lloyd H. Elliott on February 8.

In making the announcement, President Elliott said, "I am very pleased to welcome Clara Lovett to The George Washington University. She has an outstanding record of academic leadership and scholarly accomplishment, and is an ideal choice to succeed our greatly respected Dean Linton."

The dean-designate said, "I look forward very much to coming to The George Washington University on July 1. With the help of the strong faculty and fine students of Columbian College, I will endeavor to preserve and enhance its reputation for excellent teaching and scholarship."

Before joining the Library of Congress, Dr. Lovett was assistant provost at Baruch College of the City University of New York from 1980 to 1982. She served as chairperson of Baruch College's Department of History and, from 1971 to 1979, she taught undergraduate and graduate courses in modern European history both at Baruch and at the Graduate School of the City University of New York. Since 1979, she has served as a visting lecturer at the Foreign Service Institute of the Department of State.

Clara Lovett

Dr. Lovett earned a Diploma in Modern Languages from the University of Trieste (Italy) in 1962, an M.A. in European History from the University of Texas in 1967, and a Ph.D. in European History from the University of Texas in 1970. She has published extensively in the fields of both Italian and European history, including four books and at least 18 articles and essays. American the National League of Cities and then served in 1971-1972 as a White House Fellow/ Assistant to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. He was elected to the City Council of San Antonio at the age of 27, the youngest person ever to serve in that body. He served on President Reagan's National Bipartisan (Kissinger) Commission on Central America which presented its final report to the president on January 11.

(Continued on back)

Cisneros,
(Continued from front)

Dr. Alpert joined the Department of Anesthesiology in 1948 and became a full professor in 1961. He served as associate chairman from 1949 to 1969 when he was appointed vice president for development. He continued as an active member of the Anesthesiology Department but without administrative responsibilities and became professor emeritus on July 1, 1983, which was also the date of his retirement from the post of vice president for development. The hospital addition and Walter G. Ross Hall came into being largely through funds raised by the Medical Center Committee of which Dr. Alpert became chairman in 1965. He was co-chairman of the national medical library study that set guidelines and laid groundwork for the federal matching funds program for medical libraries, a program which later contributed to the growth of GW's Paul Himmelfarb Health Sciences Library. While he was vice president, contributions to the university's Annual Fund increased by a factor of eight and the number of donors increased four-fold. He organized successful capital campaigns for the Charles E. Smith Center, the Jacob Burns Law Library, and most recently, advanced major gifts for the National Law Center expansion. The Seymour Alpert Professorship in Anesthesiology was established in 1983 by colleagues and friends. In addition to his service to the university, he has worked tirelessly in community, charitable and medical organizations and has received numerous honors for these endeavors.

Franz Bader is recognized as occupying a singular position in the world of contemporary art in Washington. A native of Austria, he fled the Nazi occupation and came to the United States in 1939. First associated with Whyte's bookstore and gallery, he established the Franz Bader Gallery in 1952. This gallery presented for the Washington public works not only of modern European masters but also of American avant garde artists, many of whom were unknown. For over four decades, Bader has sought out and encouraged a variety of western and non-western artistic expressions. His contributions to the cultural life of Washington are widely acknowledged. He is a photographic artist whose works have been exhibited in numerous museums and galleries.

Jessie Bernard, author, educator and sociologist, was the first female professor at Princeton University in 1959. In the 1930s, she served for several years as social science analyst in the Department of Labor. In the 1940s, she was a member of the faculty at Lindenwood College in Missouri, moving to Pennsylvania State University in 1947 to remain until 1964. That year she moved to Washington, D.C. and has since been a Visiting Fellow at the National Institute of Education and Scholar-in-Residence at the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. At GW, she has served on dissertation examining committees and has been a guest lecturer on occasion. She was chosen to give the opening address for International Women's Year in 1975 and to chair the opening observance of the year at the United Nations. Dr. Bernard has written over a hunderd professional articles and 18 books, the most recent, The Female World (1981). In 1977, the American Sociological Association established an award to recognize outstanding scholarly contributions to the sociological study of women and called it the Jessie Bernard Award.

Dr. Vincent L. DeQuattro, professor of medicine at the University of Southern California's School of Medicine, began his long association with that institution in 1964 as an assistant professor. He became associate professor and chief, Hypertension Service, in 1970 and full professor in 1978. Prior to entering medical school, he pursued research in GW's Department of Pharmacology. His professional activities include service as a Fellow in Cardiovascular Disease, 1981-1982, White Memorial Medical Center; and as a visiting scientist, NIH Scientific Exchange in Hypertension at Myasnikov Institute of Cardiology, Moscow, in 1982. A prolific writer, he serves as an editorial consultant on various boards and engages in a variety of community services in California.

General Charles A. Gabriel has been serving as chief of staff of the U.S. Air Force since July, 1982. In this post, he is the senior uniformed officer responsible for some one million people serving in active duty, Guard, Reserve, and civilian forces in over 3,000 locations around the world. A graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, he is also a graduate of the Command and Staff Course at the Naval War College and of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. He has served in South Korea, Germany, and other locations in Europe, at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado, and in Thailand. Just prior to assuming his present position, General Gabriel was commander, Allied Air Forces Central Europe, at Ramstein Air Base, Germany.

William R. Howard, president and chief executive officer of Piedmont Aviation, Inc. earned his first pilot's license at the age of 16. He received training during World War II from Britain's Royal Air Force, later serving with the U.S. Army Air Force in Europe and the Middle East. From 1947 to 1955, he served on the Washington staff of a U.S. senator. Upon graduation from law school, he joined the Atlanta law firm of Gambrell, Russell and Forbes. There, he served exclusively as legal counsel for Eastern Airlines. He joined Eastern in 1967 and served in positions of increasing responsibility until he became president of Piedmont Aviation in May 1981. Involved in many community and civic groups, he is currently vice president of the Greater Winston-Salem Chamber of Commerce in North Carolina.

Roxie C.S. Laybourne, has been since 1969, research associate, Smithsonian Institution, Department of Vertebrate Zoology, Division of Birds, and since 1975, zoologist, Division of Law Enforcement, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. She is consultant to the General Electric Company, Pratt and Whitney Aircraft, the Federal Aviation Administration, the National Transportation Safety Board and the U.S. Air Force. Her knowledge of bird life is extensively sought for a number of applications. With the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, she assisted with the breeding program for the propagation of the whooping crane. She has been recognized by educational and professional societies, among them the International Ornithological Congress. Her extensive research includes definitive work on the microscopic structure of the downy feathers of birds worldwide.

INFONET LONG DISTANCE SYSTEM TO REPLACE TDX SYSTEM MARCH 1

A new long distance system for faculty and staff of the University and the Medical Center is scheduled to go into effect on March 1.

InfoNet long distance system will replace the TDX system on that date. Since September, 1983, InfoNet has been providing long distance service to the University student residence halls telephone system.

The InfoNet System offers expanded capablilities including direct dial calling to all 50 states and principal cities in Canada as well as providing for international calls. The new system will also permit access to a telephone company operator for assistance with both domestic and international calls as well as collect and credit card calls.

An improved security system governing the access codes and a charge monitoring system will be a part of the InfoNet services provided to the University.

The InfoNet System will provide sufficient long distance trunks and access lines to ensure that the faculty and staff should no longer have the problems associated with the current system, such as busy signals and the calling-back procedure. The only busy signal the caller should experience with the new system would be when the long distance number is actually busy.

A memorandum will be sent to all deans, department chairmen, administrative officers, department heads and project directors which will explain in detail the system changeover.

Each individual who will be using InfoNet will receive a card with a new authorization number and a set of instructions.

GW

(Lovett,
Continued from front)

history was also one of the areas of concentration in her graduate studies.

Professor Lovett's most recent book, The Democratic Movement in Italy, 1830-1876, won the 1982 H.R. Marraro Prize of the Society for Italian Historical Studies, and another work, Giuseppe Ferrari and the Italian Revolution, won the Phi Alpha Theta Book Award in 1981. She is a member of the American Historical Association, American Association for Higher Education, and a former member of the Board of Directors of the Institute for Research in History.

Dr. Lovett and her husband, Benjamin F. Brown, live in Northwest Washington.

ASHE-ERIC HIGHER EDUCATION RESEARCH REPORT APPEARS

Jonathan D. Fife, associate professor of education and series editor of the ASHE-ERIC Higher Education Research Report Series, informs us of the availability of Report No. 6, Competence, Admissions, and Articulation: Returning to the Basics of Higher Education, by Jean L. Preer. The report reviews the interrelationships of higher education institutions and secondary schools in establishing, measuring and promoting student competence. The reports are available at $6.50 each from the Association for the Study of Higher Education, The George Washington University, One Dupont Circle, Suite 630, Washington, D.C. 20036.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

JOAN KEEFE, lecturer in French and English, an article, "Albert Needed Angels for his Family Branches," in the Wall Street Journal, December 9.

S. ROBERT LICHTER, assistant professor of political science, two articles; "Prime Time Crime: Who and Why," in the Wall Street Journal, January 6, co-authored with Linda Lichter; and "Men and Women in Business and the Media," in the recently published Business Forum, Winter 1983, pp. 41-44, co-authored with Stanley Rothman.

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, an article, "The Managerial Ethic and Productivity Improvement," in Public Productivity Review, September, 1983, pp. 223-250.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, two articles, "Theory of Spread Spectrum Communications," and "A Simplified Phasor Analysis," in the book Spread Spectrum Communications, IEEE Press, 1983, distributed by John Wiley and Sons.

JOHN J. TAORMINA, slide curator, Art Deparment, two articles, "Splendid Seascapes at Guarisco," and "Local Art on File," in The Washington Gallery/Museum News, January 1984, Vol. II, No. 1.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Cardiology Division, Department of Medicine. (Full-time research coordinator to assist in clinical drug trials and other research projects. Minimum requirements, B.S. degree, preferably with experience in cardiovascular diseases or computer data analysis.) Contact Dr. Richard J. Katz, Cardiology Division, Burns Clinic, Ext. 4183.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Regional Rehabilitation Continuing Education Program. (Individual to work full-time on federal training grant. Must have bachelor's degree and knowledge of vocational rehabilitation or related fields. Preferably some experience or interest in computer applications.) Contact Dr. Donald Linkowski, Ext. 7204.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, half-time, Department of Physiology. (B.S. in chemistry preferred. Duties involve studies of cardiac energy metabolism.) Send resume to Dr. Joanne Kelleher, Department of Physiology, Ross Hall, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C., 20037.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

February 27, 1984

gwReport

(356)

for the George Washington University community | News & Public Affairs | Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

GW COMMISSION ON YEAR 2000 IS LOOKING FOR YOUR IDEAS

The Commission on the Year 2000, appointed in January by President Lloyd H. Elliott to assess the university's missions and to examine academic programs to determine new directions for emphasis or change, is asking for participation by all members of the George Washington University community. One of the commission's tasks, specifically assigned by the president, is that of giving careful consideration to ideas submitted by members of all GW constituencies. The commission is looking for suggestions, thoughts and opinions on any topic related to its responsibilities. Response will be welcomed from members of the faculty, administrators, staff, alumni, students and trustees as well as any interested individuals outside the immediate GW community.

Comments should be submitted by May 1, 1984, and may be sent to Commission Chairman Marianne R. Phelps, or to any commission member. Names and office locations are as follows: Marianne R. Phelps, Rice Hall, 8th Floor; John G. Boswell, Building C, Room 506 B; L. Thompson Bowles, Ross Hall, Room 713; Edward A. Caress, Academic Center, T-212; William R. Johnson, Gelman Library, Room 601 D; William H. Marlow, Staughton Hall, Room 314; Robert E. Park, Stuart Hall, Room 202; Susan J. Tolchin, Monroe Hall, Room 302 E, and Harry E. Yeide, Building O, Room 101.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Names and titles of commission members appeared in the January 30, 1984, issue of GW Report.)

BLACK HISTORY MONTH EVENT TO FEATURE DOROTHY GILLIAM

Washington Post columnist Dorothy Gilliam will address the theme "Black Americans and the Struggle for Education" on Wednesday, February 29, at the university's third annual Black History Commemoration. The event is scheduled for the Marvin Center third floor Continental Room between 3:45 and 5:45 pm. Dorothy Gilliam will speak at approximately 4 pm. Faculty, students and staff are invited to attend and participate in this celebration. A reception will follow the program. For more information, call Ext. 7402.

GREEKS' ELEGANT MYTHOLOGY IS MARCH LECTURE SERIES TOPIC

The Classics Department of The George Washington University will sponsor a series of five lectures by Bernard M. W. Knox, director of the Center for Hellenic Studies, on "The Elegant Mythology of the Greeks" in March.

The lectures will take place at 11 am March 3, 10, 17, 24, and 31, all Saturdays. The first lecture will be in Ross Hall, Room 101. All other lectures will be in Building C, Room 108. Admission is $1 for an individual lecture or $4 for the series.

HONORARY DEGREE recipients posed with President Lloyd H. Elliott, center, before the Winter Convocation. They are L to R, Henry Cisneros, Doctor of Laws; Franz Bader, Doctor of Fine Arts; Jessie Bernard, Doctor of Humanities; and Seymour Alpert, Doctor of Laws.

TANGIBLE OPTIMISM, EDUCATION BOTH IMPORTANT SAYS CISNEROS

In a wide-ranging address to graduates at the February 20 Winter Convocation in the Charles E. Smith Center, Mayor Henry Cisneros of San Antonio, firmly stated his belief that there is a need for tangible optimism in American life today. "Education is by definition an act of optimism," he said. "It is an investment of resources for the future, an investment of the skills and talents of professors of great institutions such as this one."

Referring to John Naisbitt's 1983 book Megatrends as an examination of the fabric of American life at this time, he traced some of the author's observations and added analytical comments of his own. The mayor noted the fundamental transformation of the American economy since the 1960s and said the question of jobs may well dominate the rest of the 1980s. Observing that the education we have had before now has been achieved only in the three Rs, he said, quoting Governor Brown of California, "Now it's the three Cs, calculating, computing and communications." He said that as difficult as the divisions are in American society today, tending to be along racial and ethnic lines, still in 10 or 15 years, the divisions between those who are technologically literate and those who are technologically illiterate may be even more difficult. He noted that while the private sector is rapidly changing itself to meet the technological era, the institutions of society are moving more slowly. "How we transform our public bureaucracy to be able to make decisions quickly is one of the public challenges ahead," he stated, adding, "One of the critical issues will be how we maintain the American ideals to meet the technological challenges of this era."

He commented on the decentralization of American political life and said he found the decentralization more pervasive in the periodicals industry and noted a similar phenomenon in the broadcast industry. He said that one of the forms of decentralization will be in some regional universitites and that those who prepare themselves by planning will be in a better position than those who do not.

Cisneros said, "There is always a place for man-made decisions." He pointed to the

(Continued on back)

GRADUATE STUDENTS Andrew Shapiro, left, and Elissa Rozov, who worked on preparing the current exhibition in the Marvin Center Colonnade Gallery, "Eyes on GW: Seeking an Image for the Campus," are shown at the opening reception. The exhibition continues through March 20.

GEORGE WASHINGTON AWARDS NOMINATIONS DUE FEBRUARY 29

The Joint Committee of Faculty and Students is seeking nominations for the eigth annual George Washington Awards, to be presented at the spring commencements.

The awards were established in 1976 to give special recognition to members of the GW community whose accomplishments have had a broad impact and whose service has been above and beyond that which is usual or expected.

All students, faculty, administrators and staff of the university may submit nominations or be nominated. Guidelines and forms for nominations can be obtained from the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs, 4th floor, Rice Hall.

Deadline for nominations is Wednesday, February 29, at 5 pm. Up to 10 awards will be presented at the spring commencements. For more information, contact the Office of Student Affairs, Ext. 7210.

"GEORGE CALLING" PHONATHON IS MARCH 5 TO APRIL 5 THIS YEAR

The "George Calling" Phonathon will be held every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from March 5 to April 5 this year. This is the annual phone campaign to raise funds for the university from alumni and friends. Dinner will be served at 6 pm and calling will be from 7 to 9:30 pm. Faculty and staff who have not signed up for their school's phoning nights are urged to do so now. Call B.J. Moreland for DCE&SS at Ext. 6370, Harvey Snyder for EDU at Ext. 4980, Marianne Phelps for GSAS at Ext. 6508, Bill Smith for non-alumni faculty and staff at Ext. 7210, Marvin Ickow for Columbian College at 342-0250, Ed Gomez for SGBA at Ext. 6414, Dick Pronk for ENG at 320-3100 and Skip Gnehm for SPIA at 632-0316. The goal this year is $156,000.

AN EVENING OF OPERA DUOS AND TRIOS IS NEXT IN GW SERIES

The GW Music Concert Series will present an evening of opera duos and trios on Monday, March 5, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. The event is open without charge.

Featured artists will be: Elizabeth Kirkpatrick, soprano; Anastasios Vrenios, tenor; Barry Hahn, baritone; and Stephen Prussing, piano. They will perform music of Mozart, Verdi, Molicone, Gershwin and Puccini. For more information, call Ext. 6245.

MARDI GRAS WEEK IN GW CLUB

Everyone is invited to patronize the GW University Club during lunch for Mardi Gras week from February 27 to March 2 and on the following Monday and Tuesday, March 5 and 6. Lunch is served from 11:30 am to 3 pm in the main dining room.

(Cisneros,
Continued from front)

experience of New York in becoming a great port as a result of the construction of the Erie Canal, of Houston, Texas, in preparing for the expansion of the oil industry of Lowell, Massachusetts in combining a program of historic preservation and cooperation with the Wang corporation, and the enterprise shown in the establishment of the Research Triangle in Raleigh-Durham, North Carolina. He said he believes that very exciting public-private partnerships will dominate this period of decentralization in American life.

Commenting on his experience as a member of the Kissinger Commission on Central America, he said, "Never again will our country have the luxury of being able to view the problems of countries to the south of us as somehow unimportant to our own national affairs." He told the graduates, "For the rest of your productive lives, rest assured that you will be involved in one way or another in the problems of these nations that share a hemisphere with us."

In speaking of the need for tangible optimism today, he cited the Morrill Act of 1862, passed by Congress in what he called "the nation's darkest hour," the Civil War. He said this was the act that created the land grant college system and that from this act flowed the school system, the engineering system and the farm system. He interpreted this congressional action as an expression of optimism and faith in education as it related to the future of our country. "So in 1969, at the time of Sputnik, it was an education and engineering response that put an American on the moon in 10 years," he added.

"Americans are by definition an optimistic and self-reliant people," he told his listeners. He said he wanted to share a quotation from the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy becuase it "captures the sense of this notion of optimism and self reliance." The quotation read, "It is not fate nor is it chance, nor is it the irresistible tides of history that determine our destinies as individuals or as a nation. Rather it is reason and principle and the work of our own hands." Mayor Cisneros observed,"It has been so for every generation of Americans and it will be so for this one, personified by these graduates today."

President Elliot in his charge to the graduates, told them, "No greater use can be made of your learning in your life ahead than to find new ways in which all peoples may live together in enhanced respect, reduced fear, and strengthened understanding. Your education at this university will serve both you and your country well if you can indeed contribute, even in some small way, to the alleviation of tension--in your neighborhood, in your country or in our world."

PHYSICAL PLANT NOTE ON WORK NEEDED BEFORE JUNE 30, 1984

The Physical Plant Department (PPD) advises us that the expansion of university facilites coupled with reduction of personnel due to budget constrictions has seriously reduced PPD's ability to do even small alterations and improvement work using in-house staff.

Consequently, if work is desired that must be completed prior to June 30, 1984, those requesting the work should be prepared to pay the additional cost of having the work done by contract. PPD tells us that the appropriate building manager should be contacted for advice and assistance.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING STUDENT TED DELIANIDES test-drives his car during the 54th annual Engineer's Week competition. Delianides also won the Egg Drop contest using a device that supported an egg in a tube weighted with a sandbag, allowing the egg to drop unbroken from a height of 300 feet.

SOLVING THE MIDDLE EAST PUZZLE IS MARCH FIRST WEDNESDAY TOPIC

Bernard Reich, professor of political science and international affairs, will examine the various forces and factors that affect the relative stability and the prospects for peace in the Middle East in a lecture in the Continental Room of the Marvin Center on Wednesday, March 7, at 8 pm. The talk, part of the First Wednesday Lecture Series sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office, is open without charge. However, those planning to attend should call Ext. 6435 to reserve a space. The GW University Club will be serving dinner beforehand, for both members and non-members, beginning at 6:30 pm. Call Ext. 6610 for dinner reservations.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

DIANE APOSTOLOS-CAPPADONA, lecturer in religion, served as co-chair of the session "Uses and Abuses of the Visual Arts in Teaching Religion" at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Religion, in Dallas, Texas, December 19, with Doug Adams of the Graduate Theological Union, Berkeley.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, delivered a paper entitled, "Wu Chia-chi (1618-84): An Early Ch'ing Poet and Proto-Anthropologist," at the Washington Area Traditional China Colloquim at Georgetown University, February 4. On January 24, he gave a lecture, "Flowers and Gardens in Chinese Poetry," at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, gave the keynote address at a conference on "The Treaty of Paris in a Changing States System," January 26-27, organized by the Center for the History of British Political Thought (for which Professor of History LOIS G. SCHWOERER is a member of the steering committee). Professor Cunliffe's lecture was delivered in the Rotunda of the British Embassy. He was introduced by the British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Wright, who afterward hosted a reception. Other GW participants in the conference included Professors PETER P. HILL and PETER KLAREN.

STEPHEN S. FULLER, professor of urban planning, addressed the Planning and Development Committee of the Greater Washington Board of Trade to discuss his recently published report, "The Changing Economy of the Washington Area," January 4. He also appeared on Channel 32's "Common Cents," January 7 and 9, discussing the Washington economy's recent performance and its changing structure.

PETER P. HILL, professor of history, was a commentator at the conference on "The Treaty of Paris in a Changing States System" organized by the Center for the History of British Political Thought. On January 27, at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, he commented on the paper given by Professor Claude Fohlen of the Sorbonne, "A French View of the Treaty of Paris."

HERMAN HOBBS, professor of physics, participated in a two-day symposium January 11 and 12 at the Goddard Space Flight Center, and presented a paper entitled "Whisker Growth Experiments Which Anticipate Some Special Effects of a Space Station Enivironment." The research on the subject was supported by a contract from NASA under the Innovative Uses of the Space Station Program.

YOUNG-KEY KIM-RENAUD, assistant professorial lecturer in East Asian languages and literature, presented a paper entitled, "In Search of Translation Equivalence for Culture-Bound Speech Styles," at the Symposium on International Cultural Perspectives in Literature and Language, sponsored by George Mason Univeristy, November 4 and 5. She also gave a lecture, "The Honorific System in Korean: Its Nature and Translation Problems," on December 30, at Seoul National University, Seoul, Korea.

PETER F. KLAREN, professor of history, served as a commentator for a panel on "New Directions on Andean History," at the Andean Studies Committee at the Conference on Latin American History, at the annual meeting of the American Historical Association in San Francisco, December 28-30. He also chaired a panel on the impact of the treaty of Paris on the Americas, for the symposium on "The Treaty of Paris in a Changing States System," sponsored by the Folger Institute's Center for the History of British Political Thought and the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, January 26-27.

NICHOLAS T. LAPPAS, associate professor of forensic sciences, spoke before the Fairfax County Bar Association on the topic of the pharmacological and toxicological aspects of driving while intoxicated, December 14.

S. DONNA LIND, associate professor of health services administration, has been named the first Florence Marie Hall Visiting Professor in the Allied Health Sciences at the University of Texas in Galveston, Texas.

JOHN LOBUTS, associate professor of management science, presented a paper entitled "Risk-Free Decision-Making" at the Association of Business Simulation and Experimental Learning (ABSEL) conference, January 4-6, in Honolulu, Hawaii. The paper was co-authored by CAROL PENNEWILL, research associate, and was selected from the 96 others presented as the most innovative and awarded the 1984 ABSEL plaque.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history and director of the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, was elected preservation officer of the Latrobe Chapter of the Society of Architectural Historians, December 12.

LARRY McGOWAN, professor of obstetrics and gynocology and director of the Division of Gynocologic Oncology, has been appointed by Margaret M. Heckler, Secretary of Health and Human Services, to a four-year term on the Maternal and Child Health Committee of the Health Resources and Service Administration.

DORN McGRATH, Jr., professor of urban planning, addressed the Georgetown Citizen's Association on the comprehensive plan of the National Capital, January 9. On January 16, he spoke to the Civic Association of Chevy Chase Village on the subject of traffic regulation and transportation planning.

NADINE NATOV, professor of Russian, chaired the annual meeting of the North American Dostoevsky Society (NADS), of which she is president. The meeting took place at the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages Conference in New York, December 28. She also served as a discussant of the papers delivered. In her capacity as executive secretary of the International Dostoevsky Society (IDS), she presented a report on the results of the fifth International Dostoevsky Symposium, which was held in France in August, and informed the audience of the activites and recent publications of the IDS and the NADS.

MICHAEL J. SODARO, assistant professor of political science and international affairs, discussed the implications of Yuri Andropov's death in a live interview with Nelson Benton on WMAR-TV in Baltimore, February 10.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, half-time, Hematology Section. (In vitro growth of hematologic stem cells. B.S. degree required. Knowledge of basic sterile techniques essential.) Contact Dr. Clara Chan, Hematology Section, VA Medical Center, 50 Irving St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20422, 745-8134.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, full-time, Institute for Management Science and Engineering, (Experience in public administration desirable. Must have a B.A., research experience, computer experience with data base, spread sheet and word processing software and strong English communication skills. Duties involve model documentation, technical writing, data/collection/automation/management, administration of project control and project planning, assistance with research proposal writing, control of hardware and software project components, library research and conference coordination.) Send resume to Dr. R.H. Clark, Institute for Management Science and Engineering, Staughton Hall Room 303.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, half-time, Department of Physiology. (B.S. in chemistry. Duties involve studies of cardiac energy metabolism.) Send resume to Dr. Joanne Kelleher, Department of Physiology, Ross Hall, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer

March 5, 1984

gwReport

(357)

for the George Washington University community | News & Public Affairs | Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

FINE ARTS FACULTY EXHIBITION OPENS IN DIMOCK THURSDAY

An exhibition of works by members of the university's full-time fine arts faculty will open Thursday, March 8, to run through Wednesday, April 4.

The exhibition will include paintings, prints, sculpture, ceramics, drawing and photography.

Faculty artists whose works will be shown are Constance Costigan, H.I. Gates, Fuller Griffith, Jerry Lake, Sam Molina, Turker Ozdogan, Arthur Hall Smith, Jeffrey Stephanic, Douglas Teller, William Woodward and Frank Wright.

Gallery hours are 10 am to 5 pm weekdays.

"THE SAVING OF THE PRESIDENT" TO BE SHOWN AT FRIENDS FORUM

The Friends Forum of the Friends of the Libraries will present Dr. Dennis O'Leary, dean for clinical affairs, GWU Medical Center, narrating a special showing of the film, "The Saving of the President" on Wednesday, March 7, at 12 noon, in Gelman Library, Room 202. The film is a documentary depicting the work of the GWU Medical Team from the time Mr. Reagan was brought to the Emergency Room through his convalescence in the hospital.

The Friends Forum is open to everyone. Those who wish may bring their lunches. Coffee will be served.

REGISTRATION FOR MARCH 31 FINANCIAL SEMINAR EXTENDED

The registration for the March 31st faculty-staff seminar on fringe benefits, financial planning and investments has been extended to Friday, March 9 at 5 pm. The seminar is co-sponsored by the Faculty Senate Committees on University Development and Resources and on Appointment, Salary and Promotion Policies (including Fringe Benefits).

President Lloyd H. Elliott will be the speaker at the optional lunch in the GW University Club between the morning and afternoon sessions. The fee for the seminar is $5 for one person and $7.50 for two. Cost of the lunch is $9.50.

The seminars have been popular the last two years and have provided faculty and staff with useful information. If you wish to attend, please submit the reservation form you should have received in campus mail to the Development Office, Gelman Library 701, by March 9. Questions? Call Jerry Anderson at Ext. 8714.

ST. PATRICK'S WEEK AT THE GW CLUB IS MARCH 12 TO 16

The GW University Club will observe St. Patrick's Week, Monday through Friday, March 12 through 16, with menus offering special Irish dishes at lunch time. Various festivities are being planned. For luncheon reservations, call Ext. 6610.

NEARLY SPRING--On a warm afternoon at the end of February, Lynn Kronman, Lucia Migliaccio and Todd Thoma, (L to R) all graduate students in Health Services Administration, took the opportunity to enjoy the campus.

GW OPERA THEATRE PLANS GALA OPERA EVENING MARCH 9

The George Washington University is sponsoring a Gala Opera Evening on Friday, March 9, at 8 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. The gala will be directed by Frances Smith Cohen and Francis Conlon.

The evening will be a combination of operatic and dance scenes, including Mahler's "Songs of a Wayfarer" and scenes from Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" and Donizetti's "The Elixir of Love." There will be a sequence of choreographed arias from the operas "Madame Butterfly," "La Traviata," "Eugene Onegin" and "La Boheme."

The vocal artists will be sopranos Joyce Bell and Jeannette LaVoy, mezzo-soprano Debby Wenner-Wittrup, tenor Christopher Hux, and baritone Stephen Wellman. The dancers will be Shelley Chaffin North and Janet Beller, soloists for the Wolf Trap Opera Company and the Jewish Community Center's "Center Dance Ensemble," and Nancy Jo Brouwer, Brenda Hotard, and Meryl Shapiro.

Tickets are $10. Proceeds of the evening will benefit the George Washington University Opera Theatre. For more information, call Ext. 6245.

REMINDER ON INFONET NUMBERS

The Office of Business Affairs reminds all members of the faculty and staff who have been authorized to have an Infonet number for long-distance calling that the numbers are now available. The numbers on cards and accompanying information for use should be picked up from the Telecommunications Office on the fifth floor of Rice Hall between 9 am and 5 pm Monday through Friday.

TELEPHONE NUMBER CORRECTION

In the "Ready Telephone Reference to Service," published by the Office of the Vice President and Treasurer, an incorrect telephone extension appeared for the headings Pest Control, Exterminating Service and Insect Problems. The correct number for all three headings is Ext. 7575.

"THE NIGHT WE WON THE SUPERBOWL," Frank Wright's oil on canvas, is one of some 40 works by fine arts faculty members in the upcoming Dimock Gallery show.

LYN NOFZIGER TO SPEAK ON ELECTION PROSPECTS

The George Washington University Program Board will host "An Election Update" by Lyn Nofziger, partner, Nofziger-Bragg Communications and former White House Assistant for Political Affairs, Tuesday, March 6, at 7:30 pm in the Marvin Center Theatre. The program is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Program Board at Ext. 7313.

JEREMY TUNSTALL TO SPEAK ON MEDIA POLITICS AT MARCH 8 TELECOMMUNICATIONS FORUM

The Telecommunications Forum will present Jeremy Tunstall, visiting scholar from City College of London in the United Kingdom, Thursday, March 8, from 4 to 5:15 pm, Marvin Center, Room 426. The subject of the lecture and discussion will be "Media Politics in the New Era: The U.S., U.K. and France Compared." The program is free and open to the public. For more information, call Ext. 7062.

NEW WAVE THEATRE AT LISNER

"The Photographer/Far from the Truth," a collaborative theatre-epic based on music by Phillip Glass, will be presented at Lisner Auditorium on Friday, March 9, at 8 pm.

"The Photographer" met with critical acclaim during its fall, 1983, run at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in New York. Inspired by the life of Victorian photographer Eadweard Muybridge, the work is presented in a three-part structure of play/concert/dance. A production of the Brooklyn Academy of Music's "Next Wave" Touring Program, this performance is produced by District Curators, Inc., and is made possible with support from the university's Department of Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies, the Washington Patrons Committee and Photographic Sponsors, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

For information on where to purchase tickets, call Ext. 6800. General admission is $20, and student tickets are $15. Students may be interested in an open dress rehearsal on Friday, March 9, from 1 to 6 pm, with an admission charge of $5.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

DIANE APOSTOLOS-CAPPADONA, lecturer in religion, has edited and contributed to Art, Creativity and the Sacred: An Anthology in Religion and Art, published by the Crossroad Publishing Company, New York. DAVID A. ALTSHULER, Charles E. Smith Professor of Judaic Studies, and Linda A. Altshuler, director of the B'nai B'rith Klutznick Museum, co-authored the article

"Judaism and Art," pp. 155-164, for the anthology. Also, an article, "From Angst to Encounter: Nathan Scott's Journey in Theology and Literature," in the fall 1983 issue of Horizons, Vol. 10.2, pp. 304-317.

JAMES R. BARTH, professor of economics, and JOSEPH PELZMAN, associate professor of economics, a book, International Debt: Conflict and Resolution, published by the Department of Economics, George Mason University. The book is last in a series on U.S. bank lending to lesser developed countries and Eastern bloc nations.

JAMES R. BARTH, professor of economics, an article, "Financial Crises and the Role of the Lender of Last Resort," with Robert E. Keleher in Economic Review, published by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, January, pp. 58-67.

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, an article, "Future Directions in Financial Management: An Educator's View," in Armed Forces Comptroller, Winter, 1984, pp. 8-11.

JOSEPH J. CORDES, associate professor of economics, and ROBERT S. GOLDFARB, professor of economics, an article, "Alternate Rationales for Severance Pay Compensation Under Airline Deregulation," in Public Choice, Vol. 41, No. 3, 1983. pp. 351-369.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professsor, reviews of An End to Kings, by William Everdell, in the Washington Post Book World, January 22; Dream West, by David Nevin, in the New York Times Book Review, January 29; and "A Lincoln Memorial," a review of The Lincoln Image: Abraham Lincoln and the Popular Print, by Harold Holzer, Gabor S. Boritt and Mark E. Neely, in the Washington Post Book World, February 12. Also, an article, "This Ocean of Difficulties," from his book George Washington: Man and Monument, in the third edition of Portrait of America, a two-volume collection of essays published by Houghton Mifflin, 1983, edited by Stephen B. Oates.

JAMES DEAKIN, adjunct associate professor of journalism, and faculty associate for political communications studies, Division of Experimental Programs, a book, Straight Stuff: The Reporters, the White House, and the Truth, January 1984, William Morrow and Company.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, a translation of his 1976 book Social Problems, published in Japanese, by Shisei Do, 1984.

FARIBORZ GHADAR, professor of international business, and PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr professor of multinational management, a book, The Multinational Enterprise in Transition, co-authored with Dora Khambata, (GW D.B.A. 1974) associate professor of international business at American University, published by the Darwin Press, (second edition), 1984.

ROBERT S. GOLDFARB, professor of economics, an article, "The Effectiveness of Odd-Even Gasoline Rationing," co-authored with Michael R. Metzger, in Atlantic Economic Journal, December, 1983, Vol. XI, No. 4, pp. 49-58.

SHELDON E. HABER, professor of economics, an article, "Wage Structure in Internal Labor Markets and Marginal Productivity Theory," in Atlantic Economic Journal, December, 1983, Vol. XI, No. 4, pp. 66-70.

ALF HILTEBEITEL, professor of religion, an article, "Die Gluhende Axt: Symbolik, Struktur und Dramatik in Chandogya Upanishad 6," published in an international Festschrift for Mircea Eliade, edited by Hans Peter Duerr, Sehnsucht nach dem Ursprung: Zu Mircea Eliade, (Frankfurt am Main:Syndikat 1983,) pp. 394-405. The article translated into German by Mohan Krischke Ramaswamy, had the English title "The Heated Axe: Symbolism, Structure, and Drama in Chandogya Upanishad 6."

CHRISTOPHER JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, a book review of Stanley Hoffmann's Duties Beyond Borders: On the Limits and Possibilities of Ethical International Politics (1981) in the American Political Science Review, Vol. 77 (December, 1983), pp. 1094-1095, and a review article of Gunnar Alexandersson's The Baltic Straights (1982), and of Ruth Lapidoth-Eschelbacher's The Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden (1982), in the American Journal of International Law, Vol. 78 (January, 1984), pp. 252-255.

MARVIN S. KATZMAN, assistant professor of business administration, and KENNETH J. SMITH, doctoral candidate in accounting, an article, "Stress and Internal Auditors," in the February issue of CGA Magazine, Canada's national magazine for professional accountants and financial executives.

MELVIN P. LADER, assistant professor of art, an article, "Arshile Gorky's The Artist and His Mother: Further Study of its Evolution, Sources and Meaning," in Arts Magazine, Vol. 58, No. 5, Janury 1984, pp. 96-104.

THELMA Z. LAVINE, Elton Professor of Philosophy, a book, From Socrates to Sartre: The Philosophic Quest, published by Bantam Books, 426 pp., February, 1984. The book formed the basis for her nationally broadcast television series of the same name.

S. ROBERT LICHTER, assistant professor of political science, three articles: "What are Moviemakers Made Of?" in Public Opinion, December/January, pp. 14-18, co-authored with Stanley Rothman; "How Liberal are Bureaucrats?" in Regulation, November/December, 1983, pp. 16-22, co-authored with Stanley Rothman; and "Prime Time Crime: How and Why," in the Wall Street Journal, January 9, co-authored with Linda Lichter.

W. THOMAS MALLISON, professor of law and director of the International and Comparative Law Program, a book, Armed Conflict in Lebanon, 1982: Humanitarian Law in a Real World Setting, co-authored with Sally V. Mallison, American Educational Trust, Washington, D.C., 1983.

ROBERT PARRIS, professor of music, "Duo for Flute and Violin," published by Mobart Music Publications, Hillsdale, New York.

JOSEPH PELZMAN, associate professor of economics, an article, "Economic Costs of Tariffs and Quotas on Textile and Apparel Products Imported into the United States," in Weltwirtschaftliches Archiv, 1983, pp. 523-542.

LOIS G. SCHWOERER, professor of histroy, an article, "The Contributions of the Declaration of Rights to Anglo-American Radicalism," in the book The Origins of Anglo-American Radicalism, edited by Margaret and James Jacob, London, 1984, pp. 105-124.

MICHAEL J. SODARO, assistant professor of political science and international affairs, and SHARON L. WOLCHIK, assistant professor of international affairs and political science, have edited a book entitled Foreign and Domestic Policy in Eastern Europe, published by the Macmillan Press in London, and by St. Martin's Press in New York.

ROBERT H. WALKER, professor of American civilization, an essay, "Urban Home and Family," from his book Life in the Age of Enterprise, in the third edition of Portrait of America, a two-volume collection of essays published by Houghton Mifflin, 1983, edited by Stephen B. Oates.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, gave a lecture entitled "Moral Action in the Poetry of Wu Chia-chi (1618-84)," at Columbia University, February 16.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, gave a lecture entitled, "George Washington, Real and Symbolic Hero," to the Valley Forge Pennsylvania Historical Society, February 22.

JAMES BARTH, professor of economics, JOSEPH CORDES, associate professor of economics, and SHELDON HABER, professor of economics, were the authors of a paper entitled "Employee Characteristics and Firm Size: Are There Any Systemic Empirical Relationships," that was summarized in an article in the Wall Street Journal, February 6.

ALLYN ENDERLYN, director of the management certificate programs of CCEW, gave a speech entitled, "Making it Through Middle Management," to the Northern Virginia Chapter of the National Association of Bank Women, February 22.

DENNIS E. GALE, associate professor of urban and regional planning, presented a lecture entitled "Neighborhood Revitalization: A Five-City Comparison," to the staff of the Center for Demographic Studies of the U.S. Bureau of the Census in Suitland, Maryland, February 14. The lecture was based on research funded by a grant from the university's Center for Washington Area Studies.

HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, professor and dean of engineering and applied science, was recently named a member of the newly formed Educational Advisory Board of the National Academy of Engineering (NAE). The board provides a mechanism for continuing oversight of the health of engineering education and for developing proposals for NAE actions which can further strengthen engineering education.

JOSEPH PELZMAN, associate professor of economics, was invited by the Ministry of Industry in Lima, Peru, to present two papers: "An Evaluation of the Impact of the U.S. Generalized System of Preferences on Latin-American Trade," and "The Carribean Basin Economic Recovery Act: Probable Impact on Latin America," February 5-11.

SAM ROTHMAN, professor of engineering and applied science, participated in a panel discussion with the Philosophical Society of Washington, entitled "Technology Transfer from American Universities via Foreign Graduate Students," Friday, February 10, at the John Wesley Powell Auditorium of the Cosmos Club.

CARL STEINER, professor of German, presented a paper entitled "Heinar Kipphardt's In der Sache J. Robert Oppenheimer and Bruder Eichmann: Two Plays in Search of Political Answers," at the December 1983 Centennial Modern Language Association Convention in New York.

JOHN J. TAORMINA, slide curator of the art department, has organized a traveling educational exhibition at the Cleveland Museum of Art. The exhibit explains and illustrates the lithographic process, and relates the process to the final printed image. The exhibit will be on display at the Cleveland Museum through March 25. It includes 31 prints from the museum's permanent collection, including works by Picasso, Miro, Burchfield and Stella.

DEWEY D. WALLACE, JR., professor of religion, an article, "The Anglican Appeal to Lutheran Sources: Philipp Melanchthon's Reputation in Seventeenth Century England," in Historical Magazine of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Vol. LII, December, 1983.

GRANTS

ALBERT J. CARON, research professor of psychology, $76,511 from the Department of Health and Human Services/ National Institutes of Health/National Institute of Mental Health, for a study of the knowledge of event relations in infancy.

EDMUND HARPER, associate professor of physics, DONALD LEHMAN, professor of physics, and FRANCISCO PRATS, professor of physics, $75,000 from the Department of Energy-Oak Ridge Operations, for investigations of structure and electro-magnetic interactions.

ROBERT IANACONE, associate professor of special education, $67,000 from the Department of Education/OSE, for a program of leadership training in vocational/special education at the doctoral level. Also, $70,942 from the Department of Education for a career educators education specialist training program.

JOHN KENDRICK, professor of ecomomics, was extensively interviewed for a cover-story article, "The Revival of Productivity," in Business Week, February 13, pp. 92-100.

RAYMOND E. LOCKARD, associate professor of biochemistry, $65,648 from the Department of Health and Human Services/ National Institutes of Health/National Institute of General Medical Sciences, for research in the topography of 18S ribosomal RNA in the 40S subunit.

JOHN LOGSDON, professor of public affairs and political science, $14,455 from the National Science Foundation, for research in strategic planning for science and technology.

WILLIAM H. MARLOW, professor of operations research, $39,250 from the Department of Defense/Navy/Office of Naval Research, for research on readiness forecasting.

ROBERT C. WATERS, professor of engineering administration, $59,435 from the U.S. Department of Transportation, RSPA, for an evaluation of maritime protection practices and proposals on U.S. dry bulk trades.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Anatomy, (NIH Post-doctoral position in neurobiology available immediately. Major area of research is inter-actions of non-ionizing radiation with developing brain. Experience in autoradiography, light and electron microscopy desirable). Contact Dr. Ernest Albert, Department of Anatomy, George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

March 19, 1984

gwReport

(358)

for the George Washington University community — News & Public Affairs — Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

SHARON J. ROGERS IS NAMED TO BE UNIVERSITY LIBRARIAN

Dr. Sharon J. Rogers has been named university librarian by President Lloyd H. Elliott. Associate Dean of Libraries and Learning Resources at Bowling Green State University since 1982, Dr. Rogers is also president-elect of the Association of College and Research Libraries, the professional organization of librarians in higher education.

"Dr. Rogers has all the qualifications and experience needed to head up our excellent University Library. I look forward to her arrival, and have high expectations for the leadership she will provide in the continuation of our effort to build an even stronger facility," said President Elliott on announcing the appointment, which will be effective July 1, 1984.

In accepting the position, Dr. Rogers said, "I am very impressed with the strength of the University's commitment to enhance Gelman Library, and I look forward to working with the entire campus community to further integrate the library into research and teaching activities."

Dr. Rogers has also served as library director of public services and held the faculty rank of associate professor of library sciences during her tenure at Bowling Green, which began in 1980. Prior to that she was coordinator of library programs and associate professor of library administration at the University of Toledo in Ohio, from 1977-1980.

Rogers received the Ph.D. in Sociology at Washington State University in 1976. From 1972-1976, she had been an instructor in social sciences in the School of Business Administration at Alfred University in Alfred, N.Y., and was a National Science Foundation Trainee in the Department of Sociology at Washington State University from 1969-1972.

Dr. Sharon J. Rogers

After receiving the M.A. in Library Science from the University of Minnesota in 1967, Dr. Rogers was reference librarian and head, Government Documents Section, in the

(Continued on back)

PHONATHON VOLUNTEERS (l to r) Connie Sugarman, Hardy Jones and Greg Reisz telephoned potential donors to the Annual Fund during a recent "George Calling" evening in Room 410, Marvin Center. Callers that evening came from GW's medical and allied health communities. To volunteer for the Phonathon, which continues through March 29, call Ext. 6415.

LIDO CIVIC CLUB SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS DUE APRIL 6

The Lido Civic Club of Washington, D.C., will again this year award a scholarship to an undergraduate of some Italian ancestry who is attending either American University, The Catholic University of America, Georgetown University or The George Washington University.

The competition is open to any student who is currently enrolled in a full-time undergraduate program, except second-semester seniors. Those applying must demonstrate financial need and have a permanent residence within a 50-mile radius of Washington, D.C.

The Lido Club will award one scholarship of approximately $1,000 to $2,000. The award will be made to the university on behalf of the student and will be designated as a tuition award.

Application forms and transcripts are due Friday, April 6. George Washington University may forward applications from all candidates who meet the qualifications.

For further information, students should see Andrea Stewart in the Graduate Fellowship Information Center, Gelman Library, Room 621 D, Ext. 6217.

DANCE CONSTRUCTION COMPANY IS PART OF DANCE SPOTLIGHT

Maida Withers' Dance Construction Company is one of four dance troupes performing at the Marvin Center on Friday, March 23, at 8 pm. Maida Withers is GW associate professor of human kinetics and leisure studies. The other three companies are Rachel Lampert and Dancers, New York; Vindhaxor, Sweden; and the Murray Spaulding Dance Theatre of Washington. The event marks the first in a series, entitled Dance Spotlight, produced by Murray Spaulding and the DC Dance Center to foster cultural exchange.

Tickets are $8 general admission and $5 for students. They can be purchased in advance at TicketPlace, or at the door. For more information, call 332-4480.

STATES AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS ERA IS MARCH 22 FORUM TOPIC

Kenneth G. Hurwitz, executive director of the Maryland Public Service Commission; Sheldon Switzer, economist with the Maryland Commission; and Melvin L. Doxie, executive director of the D.C. Public Service Commission, will discuss the topic "The States and the New Telecommunications Era" on Thursday, March 22, at the Telecommunications Forum. The forum, a series of informal lectures and discussions sponsored by the GW Center for Telecommunications Studies, is open without charge. The forum is scheduled for 4 to 5:15 pm in Marvin Center, Room 426. A question and answer period will follow the discussion. For more information, call Ext. 7062.

THREE ARTISTS TO APPEAR IN FACULTY RECITAL MARCH 26

Penelope Fischer, flute; Stanley King, oboe and recorder; and Marilyn Mangold Garst, harpsichord, will appear in a faculty recital in the GW Music concert series on Monday, March 26, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre.

The three artists will appear in various combinations performing works by Quantz, J.S. Bach, Couperin, Handel and Telemann. Fischer is studio instructor in flute; King, studio instructor in recorder; and Garst, adjunct assistant professor of music.

The recital is open without charge. For more information, call Ext. 6245.

RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVE IS WEDNESDAY, MARCH 28

The university-sponsored Red Cross Blood Drive is scheduled for Wednesday, March 28. It will be held in the Marvin Center third floor Continental Room from 11 am to 5 pm. To expedite processing, donations will be by appointment. Please call Ext. 6555 to schedule a time. For answers to questions about donor eligibility, call the Red Cross at 737-8300.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES POSTPONES ACTION ON PROPOSED PHASE-OUT OF LAW EVENING DIVISION

The Board of Trustees, at its March 15 meeting, postponed final action on the proposed phase-out of the evening division of the National Law Center's program. Board Chairman Glen A. Wilkinson said following the meeting that the matter will be taken up again at a board meeting in the near future.

10TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION PLANNED FOR GELMAN LIBRARY

A number of events are scheduled for the week of March 26 in observance of the 10th anniversary of the Melvin Gelman Library.

Monday, March 26, through Sunday, April 1, there will be amnesty for overdue books which may be returned without the payment of fines. This grace does not apply to reserve materials.

Tuesday and Wednesday, March 27 and 28, there will be a series of demonstrations of the many services provided for the university community by the library's departments. The Cataloging Department will show its capabilities in creating card catalog records and in maintaining the library computer system's database. The Circulation Desk will demonstrate the circulation functions of the library's computer system. The Reference Desk will show its online reference services and its ability to search the scholarly and professional literature. The Media Resources Department will give laser videodisc demonstrations as well as tours and demonstrations of the department's other resources. There will be demonstrations of the use of IBM Personal Computers for online indexing of special collections and the use of the OCLS computer system to locate and borrow books and journal articles on interlibrary loan.

The award ceremony for winners of the Student Book Collectors Contest, sponsored annually by the Friends of the Libraries, is scheduled for Wednesday, March 28, at 2:30 pm in the Gelman Library lobby.

The Gelman Library 10th Anniversary party will follow immediately in the lobby. There will be remarks by Acting University Librarian Connie McCarthy and Mrs. Estelle Gelman. SAGA is creating a cake which is to be a replica of the library. This is being constructed of eight separate cakes. The party will be highlighted by balloons and lemonade for everybody.

President Lloyd H. Elliott and the Friends of the Libraries invite everyone in the university community to attend a 4 pm ceremony in the Marvin Center Theatre to celebrate the acquistion of the one millionth volume for the Gelman Library. A reception will follow in the GW University Club, Marvin Center, third floor.

For any further information, call Ext. 6455.

(Continued from front)

Washington State University Library system. She received the B.A., summa cum laude, from Bethel College, in St. Paul, Minnesota, in 1963.

In addition to her leadership role in the Association of College and Research Libraries, Dr. Rogers is a member of the American Library Association, the American Sociological Association, and the American Political Science Association. She has also written extensively on library science topics.

INFONET IS REALLY HERE
DO YOU HAVE YOUR CARD?

GW Report has learned that there are still quite a few people who have been authorized to have an Infonet number for long-distance calling who have not picked up their Infonet numbers and information. These are available from the Telecommunications Office on the fifth floor of Rice Hall between 9 am and 5 pm Monday through Friday. March has been the transitional period between the TDX system and Infonet, which was officialy put into operation March 1. Those planning to make long-distance calls will need to have the Infonet numbers since as of Saturday, March 31, TDX will no longer be operational.

JOAN LARKIN TO APPEAR ## IN POETRY READING MARCH 26

Joan Larkin, a teacher of creative writing at Brooklyn College, will present a poetry reading on Monday, March 26, at 8 pm, in Room B-120 of the Academic Center. Ms. Larkin has written one book of poems, "Housework," and edited two anthologies, "Amazon Poetry" and "Lesbian Poetry." The reading is sponsored by the Jenny McKean Moore Fund for Writers, the Department of English and the Division of Experimental Programs. For more information, call Ext. 6180.

TEACHING FRENCH AS A FOREIGN ## LANGUAGE SUBJECT OF LECTURE

In conjunction with its current intensive study of language curriculum, the Department of Romance Languages and Literatures and the local chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French (AATF) sponsored a lecture on "Modern Perspectives and Evolution of the Teaching of French as a Foreign Language" given by Jean-Marc Care of the Paris-based Office of Studies on French Language and Civilization on February 27. The lecture session was chaired by Associate Professor of French Jean-Francois Thibault. Associate Professor of French Gregory Ludlow is currently serving as president of the local chapter of AATF. Members of the GW Romance Languages faculty were joined at the event by colleagues from Georgetown University and the University of the District of Columbia.

ASHE-ERIC HIGHER EDUCATION
REPORT 7 APPEARS

Jonathan D. Fife, associate professor of education and series editor of the ASHE-ERIC Higher Education Research Report Series, has announced the availability of Report No. 7, Public Service in Higher Education: Practices and Priorities, by Patricia H. Crosson. The report examines three major areas of public service: community service, service to state and local government, and service to business and industry, and describes how institutions can organize and serve each. Copies of the report are available for $6.50 from the Association for the Study of Higher Education, The George Washington University, One Dupont Circle, NW, Suite 630, Washington, D.C. 20036.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH speaker Dorothy Gilliam, Washington Post columnist, left; Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Dr. Harold F. Bright, center; and Brad Berry, president of the Black Peoples' Union, were photographed before the university's Black History celebration at the end of February. Brad was one of 17 black GW students who received certificates in recognition of a QPI of 3.5 or better.

ISS INTERNATIONAL DINNER ## IS SATURDAY, MARCH 24

The International Students Society annual International Dinner will take place on Saturday, March 24, beginning at 7:30 pm in the Marvin Center first floor. The event will feature international food and entertainment with dancing to follow. Many embassies and international restaurants will prepare delicacies for the occasion. A number of ambassadors and other members of the diplomatic corps have been invited to be present.

Tickets are $15 for singles and $25 for couples. They are available at the Marvin Center Information Desk or call Ext. 2089 or 387-1442.

LEGIONETTES Harriet Little, left, and Mary Bayliss, were two of a band of eight cheerleaders who urged on Lloyd's Legions during the March 7 basketball game between Lloyd Elliott's team of faculty and staff members and Bob Guarasci's student team in the main gym in the Smith Center. The students won 35 to 33.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

LYNN H. CLARK, assistant director of the Student and Alumni Career Services Center, was interviewed January 6 by Kathryn Greenfield, television reporter for Post-Newsweek Stations Inc., regarding job opportunities for spring graduates. The interview was aired on Detroit and Miami news stations.

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, was interviewed by WPOP in Hartford, Connecticut, WRC Radio in Washington, D.C., and WRC-TV in Washington, D.C., in connection with George Washington's Birthday, February 20. Also, he was interviewed by Tom Braden and Ron Nessen on WRC Radio, Washington, D.C., March 9. The discussion focussed on Dr. Cunliffe's article on "counterfactual history," titled "What If-?"published in American Heritage, December 1982.

SUSAN TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, was interviewed on Nightwatch, CBS-TV, in Washington, D.C., February 2; on Cable Network Noon News, on CNN in Dallas, Texas, January 24; on the American Business Network in Washington, D.C., February 6; and on WRC-Radio in Washington, D.C., January 3.

PUBLICATIONS

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, a review, "The Hazards of Hindsight" of The March of Folly: From Troy to Vietnam, by Barbara W. Tuchman, in U.S.A. Today, March 9, 1984.

ROBERT W. HOLMSTROM, associate professor of psychology, an article, "Relationship Between Alexithymia and Somatic Complaints in a Normal Sample," in Psychotherapy and Psychosomatics, Vol. 41, No. 1, co-authored with D.E. Cooper.

STEPHEN A. KARP, associate professor of psychology, an article, "Field Dependence in Young Anorectic and Obese Women," in Psychotherapy and Psychosomatics, Vol. 41, No. 1, co-authored with H.I. Basseches.

JOHN M. LOGSDON, professor of public affairs and political science, two articles; "U.S.-European Cooperation in Space Science: a 25-Year Perspective," in Science, January 6; and "Space Commercialization: How Soon the Payoffs?" in Futures, Vol. 16, No. 1, February.

GRANTS

REGINALD GILLIAM, visiting professor of public affairs, $10,000 from the American Association of Mesbics, Inc., for research on technical assistance to economic development organizational groups.

JOHN LOGSDON, professor of public affairs and political science, $18,857 from the Department of the Interior/United States Geological Survey, for an investigation and analysis of the scientific programs of the Office of Energy and Marine Geology in the context of national energy and minerals policy.

W.D. MAURER, professor of engineering and applied science, $32,070 from the International Business Machines Corporation, to study the development of standard practices and educational modules for inspection of software code.

J.T.B. OBEYSEKERA, research scientist, the International Institute for Water Resources, SEAS, $5,886 from the D.C. Government/Environmental Services, for research on the correlation of flow and water quality variables at Chain Bridge, the Potomac River.

NOZER SINGPURWALLA, professor of operations research and of statistics, $55,338 from the Department of Defense/Navy/Office of Naval Research, for research in reliability, maintainability, and reliability standards.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Chemistry Department. (Ph.D. required in physical chemistry or engineering. Duties include theoretical model development and analysis of experimental data in combustion.) Call David Ramaker, Ext. 6934.

PROJECT COORDINATOR, Department of Statistics, Biostatistics Center. (Responsible position in administration and coordination of several grants, contracts and subcontracts at off-campus medical research facility. Assist directors in administration of $2.5 million annual budget and staff of 40 people. Experience with budgeting, contract administration and personnel issues necessary. B.A. required plus two years related experience.) Resumes to Susan Ligon, Biostatistics Center, 7979 Old Georgetown Rd., Bethesda, Md. 20814.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Biochemistry Laboratory. (Perform receptor ligand assays for determining affinity constants and kinetic properties and tissue distribution studies using radioligands. Position available immediately. B.S. degree preferable with some previous experience.) Contact G. Rosen, Radiopharmaceutical, Ext. 3371.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

March 26, 1984

gwReport

(359)

for the George Washington University community | News & Public Affairs | Jane Lingo, editor (202)676-6460

ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT RECEIVES HIGH RANKING IN NATIONAL STUDY

The American Economic Review, the journal of the major professional association in economics, includes an article in its March, 1984, issue by Paul Davis and Gustav Papanek, "Faculty Ratings of Major Economics Departments by Citations." The article ranks Ph.D.- granting institutions by the number of citations of written work by their faculty. Numbers of citations were taken from the Social Science Citation Index, a periodical which compiles references from 5,200 social science publications from 45 countries. Authors Davis and Papanek used the average number of citations for 1978 and 1981 "to avoid any bias as a result of selecting a single year."

Of the 122 Ph.D.- granting departments listed with positive citations, The George Washington University Department of Economics ranks 25th by total number of citations, 39th by mean number of citations per faculty member, and 26th by total number when a correction is made for age of faculty and when only a small percent of the department faculty's published work was cited. The GW Department of Economics had an average of 14.6 citations per faculty member.

Robert S. Goldfarb, professor of economics and chairman, commented, "This study of the quality of the economics departments suggests that the George Washington department ranks in the top fifth to three-tenths of those departments granting Ph.D.s."

KENNETH EVERINGHAM IS NEW CAREER SERVICES ASST. DIRECTOR

Kenneth Everingham has joined the Student and Alumni Career Services Center as assistant director. He replaces Barbara Fitzgerald-McLean, who left to become associated with a computer company. Everingham will serve as liaison with the School of Engineering and Applied Science and will oversee acquisitions of the Career Resource Library.

The new assistant director has seven years of experience in career counseling. His most recent position was senior counselor with the American University Career Center. He holds the degree of Master of Education in Guidance and Counseling from George Mason University and a bachelor's degree from San Diego State University.

PUBLISHER'S INVITATION

Capital Corruption: The New Attack on American Democracy by University Professor Amitai Etzioni has been published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. GW administrators, faculty and staff are invited by the publisher to join the author at Sidney Kramer Books, 1722 H Street, NW, from 5:30 to 7 pm, on Thursday, April 5. Refreshments will be served.

PRESENTATION--President Lloyd H. Elliott, left, and OAS Secretary General Alejandro Orfila are shown at the recent presentation of a Reynolds and Reynolds computer to the Geography Department. The manuals the president is receiving accompanied the computer, a gift of the Pan American Development Foundation.

ONE MORE CHANCE FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 31 FINANCIAL SEMINAR

Nearly 100 participants have already signed up for the March 31 faculty-staff seminar on fringe benefits, financial planning and investments. The morning and afternoon sessions will be separated by an optional lunch in the GW University Club. President Lloyd H. Elliott will speak at the lunch.

The fee for the seminar is $5 for one person and $7.50 for two. Cost of the lunch is $9.50.

A few places remain for the seminar. If you wish to attend and have not registered, call the seminar coordinator at Ext. 8714 by noon on Thursday, March 29.

FIRST WEDNESDAY lecturer Bernard Reich, professor of political science and international affairs, spoke to a crowd of more than 200 on the problems of the Middle East at the March lecture, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office.

THROUGH THE EYES OF STUDENTS ANNUAL PHOTOJOURNALISM SHOW

"Through the Eyes of Students," the annual exhibition of works by students in photojournalism, will open in the Colonnade Gallery of the Marvin Center on Tuesday, March 27, with a 4 to 6 pm reception.

Juried by staff photographers of the National Geographic Society, the exhibition will present photographs by students in journalism classes 140, 141 and 142.

The exhibition, sponsored by the Governing Board of the Marvin Center and the Journalism Department, will continue through Friday, April 20.

Colonnade Gallery hours are 8 am to 10 pm daily.

GELMAN LIBRARY EVENTS ARE THIS WEDNESDAY, MARCH 28

In events planned for this Wednesday, March 28, the Melvin Gelman Library will observe its 10th anniversary and will receive its one millionth volume.

The anniversary party is scheduled for 3 pm in the first floor lobby, immediately following the awards ceremony for winners of the Student Book Collectors Contest. At the party, Acting Librarian Connie McCarthy and Mrs. Estelle Gelman will cut the eight-part cake, a replica of the library. There will be balloons and lemonade for all.

The acquisition of the one millionth volume will take place at a 4 pm ceremony in the Marvin Center Theatre. President Lloyd H. Elliott and the Friends of the Libraries invite everyone to this event. There will be a reception following in the GW University Club.

For any further information, call Ext. 6455.

DON'T FORGET WEDNESDAY'S RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVE

Wednesday, March 28, is the day of the university sponsored Red Cross Blood Drive. For those who have signed up to give, the hours are 11 am to 5 pm. The location is the Marvin Center third floor Continental Room. If you would like to make an appointment to donate, call the Student Activities Office at Ext. 6455. For questions on donor eligibility, call the Red Cross at 737-8300.

GW Music

STRING QUARTET AND WOODWIND QUINTET APRIL 4

The GW Music Concert Series will present a String Quartet and Woodwind Quintet on Wednesday, April 4, at 8 pm in Room B-120 of the Academic Center. Catherine Pickar will conduct. The concert is open without charge. For more information, call Ext. 6245.

ISLAMIC PHILOSOPHY TOPIC OF FIRST WEDNESDAY TALK

University Professor of Islamic Studies Seyyed Hossein Nasr will speak on "Islamic Philosophy: Eastern Understanding, Western Interpretation" on Wednesday, April 4, at 8 pm in the Continental Room of the Marvin Center. This is the April lecture in the First Wednesday Lecture Series, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office. The event is free but those planning to attend should call Ext. 6435 to reserve space. Dinner, for both members and non-members of the GW University Club, will be served before the lecture, beginning at 6:30 pm. Call Ext. 6610 for dinner reservations.

SYMPOSIUM ON RHODES TAVERN TO BE HELD FRIDAY, APRIL 6

A symposium, "Lessons Learned from Rhodes Tavern," sponsored by the Latrobe Chapter of the Society of Architectural Historians, the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, the Center for Washington Area Studies and the Special Collections Division of Gelman Library, will be held at the university on Friday, April 6, from 2 to 5 pm in Room 202 of Gelman Library.

Speakers will include William Murtagh, National Trust for Historic Preservation; Keith Melder, Smithsonian Institution; Nicholas Pappas, Fellow of the American Institute of Architects, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation; Constance Werner Ramirez, National Preservation Institute; and Lelia Smith, Cultural Alliance of Greater Washington.

Reservations are $4 with a price of $2.50 for students (with a copy of student ID). Checks should be made payable to Latrobe Chapter, SAH, and forwarded to: April 6 Symposium, Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, George Washington University, Washington,D.C., 20052, or in GW Campus Mail, to: Graduate Studies Program, Building P, 101.

DANCE PRODUCTION GROUPS IN INFORMAL PERFORMANCE

Members of the Dance Production Groups will appear in an informal performance on Friday, March 30, at 8 pm in Building K, 817 23rd Street. The performance is free. Call Ext. 6577.

AEROBICS EVERY DAY

Aerobics classes are now available every day from 12 noon to 1 pm and from 5:30 to 6 pm, Monday through Friday.
The free classes are offered by the Recreation and Intramural Program in the Charles E. Smith Center. Faculty, students and staff are encouraged to attend. Just show your university ID on the way in the door of the Smith Center, main arena.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

JAMES D. FOLEY. professor of engineering and applied science, an article, "Managing the Design of User-Computer Interfaces," in Computer Graphics World, December, 1983, Vol. 6, No. 12.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, a monograph Human Resource Development: The Perspective of Business and Industry, published by the ERIC Clearinghouse on Adult, Career, and Vocational Education.

MICHAEL J. SODARO, assistant professor of political science and international affairs, a chapter "Limits to Dissent in the GDR: Fragmentation, Cooptation and Repression," in Jane L. Curry, ed., Dissent in Eastern Europe by Praeger Publishers, 1983.

FINE ARTS FACULTY member H.I. Gates, left, talked with sculpture and design student David Healy at the current exhibition of the works of full-time fine arts faculty members in the Dimock Gallery. They are standing in front of Gates' sculpture, "Time Slot." The exhibition continues through April 4.

JOHN J. TAORMINA, curator of slides, the Art Department, two articles: "GWU's Dimock Gallery: Dedicated to Education"; and "Focusing on Fashion at Martin Gallery" in The Washington GalleryMuseum News, March, 1984.

SUSAN J. TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, an article "EDB and the Hurry to Deregulate," in Concord Monitor, February 13, 1984.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, a lecture "Endô Shusaku: Moral Dilemmas in Modern Japanese Fiction," for the Japan-America Society at the Foreign Service Club, January 27.

CHARLES E. DIEHL, vice president and treasurer, testimony on credit conditions and the prospects for recovery and employment, before the U.S. House of Representatives' Subcommittee on Domestic Monetary Policy of the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs on March 6.

HARVEY B. FEIGENBAUM, assistant professor of political science, has been asked by Canada's Royal Commission on Industrial Policy to undertake a study of public enterprise in advanced industrial societies.

DONALD E. HAWKINS, professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, gave several lectures on "Airport Security Training" and "Developing Human Resources for the Egyptian Hotel and Tourism Industry," for the Ministry of Tourism and Civil Aviation in Cairo, Egypt, January 20-29. He also addressed the faculty and staff of the Middle East Hotel Training Institute in Ismalia, Egypt. On January 31, he made a speech at the Harlem Caribbean Basin Trade Conference on "Tourism and Hotel Investment Opportunities in the Caribbean."

HERMAN H. HOBBS, professor of physics, presented a paper "Growth of Long Cobalt Whiskers by Chemical Reduction" at a meeting of the American Physical Society in San Antonio, Texas, in February. An abstract of the paper was published in the Bulletin of the American Physical Society, Vol. 13, No. 4, December, 1983.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, presented a paper "Trends in Regional Resource Management: The Case of Antarctica" at the Spring 1984 Conference of the National Capital Area Political Science Association, jointly sponsored by the International Studies Association, held at Mount Vernon College, February 25.

GORDON LIPPITT, professor of behavioral sciences, was selected by the National YMCA to present the John R. Mott Foundation Seminar on February 15 and 16.

JOHN M. LOGSDON, professor of public affairs and political science, has beem named a member of the NASA Historical Advisory Committee, and of the editorial board of Chemical Engineering News.
He lectured at the Institute of Air and Space Law at McGill University in Montreal, February 28 and 29; made a luncheon speech to Congressional Science Fellows, February 13; and testified before the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Science, Technology and Space, March 1.

JONATHAN D. MORENO, assistant professor of philosophy, gave a paper, "Eaton's Theory of Logical Form," and participated in a panel on the teaching of American philosophy at the annual meeting of the Society for the Advancement of American Philosophy, at Seattle University, March 1-3.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, gave an address, "Preparing Today's Adult Educators," at a meeting of the American Association for Adult and Continuing Education/Metropolitan Washington Chapter, February 15.

PHYLLIS PALMER, assistant professor of women's studies and of American civilization, discussed "Racial Divisions in Housework," as a participant on a panel, "Women and Economics," at a Women's History Conference, at Radcliffe College, March 10.

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, director of the Counseling Center, was invited to present a paper at the Northeastern Counseling Center Directors' Annual Meeting at Franklin and Marshall College on Sunday, March 11. The paper was entitled "Improving the Nature of Counseling/Psychotherapy Through the Study of the Delivery System."

SUSAN TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, spoke at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, Texas on "The Rush to Deregulate," January 23; to the Federal Executive Women in Dallas, Texas, on "New Approaches to Federal Regulation," January 24; at the national convention of the Consumer Federation of America, on "The Impact of Deregulation on the Consumer," February 16; and at a National Press Club Authors' Rap Session on "The Rush to Deregulate," February 22.

T. THORNE WIGGERS, coordinator of outreach and consultation at the Counseling Center, presented a paper entitled "Understanding our Differences: Psychological Type and Communication for the Retreat Process," as part of a panel presentation on long range planning and the retreat process, at the Southeastern Theatre Association Conference in Arlington, Virginia, March 9.

GRANTS

ROBERT JOSEPH HARRINGTON, associate professor of engineering, $13,200 from the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company, for an interactive program for use with the electro-magnetics program.

JUDITH MILLER JONES, director of the National Health Policy Forum, $5,000 from the University of California, San Francisco, in support of the National Health Policy Forum.

JOHN LOGSDON, professor of public affairs and political science, $18,857 from the Department of the Interior/United States Geological Survey, for an investigation and analysis of the scientific programs of the Office of Energy and Marine Geology in the context of national energy and minerals policy.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Cancer Chemotherapy Laboratory.
(B.A. or B.S. in biology or related science and one year or more laboratroy experience. Experience with cell culture methods, media preparation, cloning procedures and basic biochemical techniques is preferred. Additional experience in methodology, such as chromatography, GLC, HPLC, would be an asset.) Submit resume to Dr. Katherine A. Kennedy, Ross Hall, Room 624, by April 6.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

April 2, 1984

GW Report

(360)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

DR. ETZIONI SUGGESTS REFORMS IN AMERICAN POLITICAL LIFE

"If the framers of the Constitution had wanted us to vote by dollars, they would have put it in the Constitution," University Professor Amitai Etzioni said at a press conference held in connection with the publication of his book Capital Corruption on March 26 by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich.

The book, subtitled "The New Attack on American Democracy," addresses key questions of the scope of political corruption, its debilitating effect on the American political system, the mistakes made by political experts, the sources of the problem and ways to marshal a drive to clean up American politics.

Author Etzioni suggests that no single reform will work. Several mutually reinforcing ones are needed, he says, including:

* The public financing of congressional elections, which is now available to presidential candidates;
* Reducing the cost and time spent running for office. Shortening the campaign period to five months and providing some free access to media for all candidates. Limiting the total spending in a campaign to $200,000 and PAC (Political Action Committee) contributions to $75,000;
* Introducing new curbs on lobbying, a lobbyist to be defined as anyone who spends 20 percent of his or her time trying to influence the government;
* Increasing Congress members' salaries by 30 percent in exchange for a commitment to freeze all outside income from lectures, fees, etc., and limiting gifts to the same level as they are now in the executive branch ($25 or less).
* Providing enforcement agencies, from the Federal Election Commission to the FBI, with the resources their work requires.

The press conference was attended by members of the media from local, national and international news organizations.

SPEECH AND HEARING DAY IS FRIDAY, APRIL 6

All members of the GW faculty and staff as well as students are invited to participate in the first annual Speech and Hearing Day Friday, April 6, from 9 am to 5 pm. The day is sponsored by the National Student Speech-Language-Hearing Association. Free speech and hearing screenings will be offered throughout the day at the GW Speech and Hearing Center. No appointments are necessary. Information regarding hearing consultation and other services offered by the center will be available.

The center is located in Building C, 2201 G Street, NW, Room 407. For more information, call Ext. 7360.

LUTHER RICE JOURNAL PRESENTATION--L to R, William H. Brackney, Lloyd H. Elliott and Lynn E. May.

SPACE TELECOMMUNICATIONS IS FORUM TOPIC FOR APRIL 5

"The New Era in Space Telecommunications" will be the subject for discussion at the April 5 Telecommunications Forum, sponsored by the GW Center for Telecommunications Studies. Speakers will be Christopher J. Vizas II, executive vice president of Orion Satellite Corporation, and Steve Levy of Hogan and Hartson, counsel to International Relay Inc. The forum is scheduled for 4 pm in Room 426 of the Marvin Center. A question and answer period will follow. There is no admission charge.

GW TOWN MEETING TO FOCUS ON PRIVACY IN THESE TIMES

"1984: Are the Days of Our Private Lives Numbered?" will be the question for discussion at the GW Town Meeting on Friday, April 6. Scheduled for 3 pm in George's, Marvin Center, fifth floor, the Town Meeting is sponsored by the Student Activities Office and other interested students and staff. Everyone is invited to come and voice an opinion.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY--L to R, Acting Gelman Library Director Connie McCarthy, Mrs. Estelle Gelman, President Lloyd H. Elliott, and George assembled for cake-cutting in celebration of the 10th anniversary of the Melvin Gelman Library on March 28. In a ceremony following at 4 pm, the library received its one millionth volume, the Property of Samuel Blodget, an early landowner in the District of Columbia.

PUBLICATION COPY OF LUTHER RICE JOURNAL RECEIVED BY GW

Dispensations of Providence, the Journal and Selected Letters of Luther Rice, 1803 to 1830, edited by William H. Brackney, a commemorative edition, has been recieved by the university and placed in the Special Collections Division of the Gelman Library.

A publication copy of the journal was presented to President Lloyd H. Elliott and Curator of Special Collections David Zeidberg by William H. Brackney, executive director of the American Baptist Historical Society, the editor, and Lynn E. May Jr., executive director of the Historical Commission, the Southern Baptist Convention, in a recent ceremony at the university.

The journal has been published jointly by the American Baptist Historical Society of Rochester, New York; the George Washington University; and the Historical Commission, Southern Baptist Convention of Nashville, Tennessee.

Editor Brackney says, in his preface, "This publication began as part of the Luther Rice Bicentennial Program which, in several events in 1983, commemorated the life and ministry of a prominent figure of Baptist life in America and one to whom Baptists, north and south, owe a lifelong debt."

The journal is divided into three parts: the Formative Years; from Ordination to Baptism, Voyage to India; and the Tireless Itinerant. There is also a chronology of Luther Rice, as well as a Rice family chart and a note on sources.

GW UNITED STATES SAVINGS BONDS CAMPAIGN OPENS TODAY

Beginning today, April 2, the university is sponsoring a United States Savings Bonds campaign, through payroll deduction.

Changes in the earnings potential implemented by the Department of the Treasury in 1982 and 1983 are said to make the purchase of savings bonds more attractive to university faculty and staff. The campaign will continue through Friday, April 20.

Coordinators have been designated by vice presidents and deans in their repsective areas to assist the Records and Benefits Division of the Department of Personnel Services in the campaign.

An individual from your division will be contacting you shortly to provide you with information on savings bonds including a Savings Bond Authorization Card to complete if you wish to purchase bonds through payroll deductions. The deductions will begin in June for authorization cards received during the campaign. For information, call Ext.4480.

FELLOWSHIP INFORMATION MEETINGS ON APRIL 5, 6

The Graduate Fellowship Information Center has scheduled information meetings on Thursday, April 5, and Friday April 6.

The April 5 meeting at 4 pm in Marvin Center, Room 414, is primarily for graduate students. Professor Jonathan Moreno, faculty coordinator for national fellowship awards, will discuss the various national fellowship opportunities. Andrea Stewart, director of the Graduate Fellowship Information Center, will review the services offered by the center and discuss other fellowship opportunities available to graduate students.

The Friday, April 6 meeting, (3 pm, Marvin Center, Rooms 413-414) is especially for juniors.

Both meetings are open to anyone interested. Professor Moreno and Andrea Stewart will speak at both meetings. For more information, call Ext. 6217.

NEWS NOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, participated in a panel discussion dealing with perspectives on decision making in uncertain times, at the annual conference of the Northern Virgina chapter of the American Society for Public Administration in Alexandria, March 16.

GEORGE R. BOZZINI, associate professor of English, attended the 18th Annual Convention of Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages, (TESOL), in Houston, Texas, March 8-11.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, has been appointed one of the judges for the National Medal for Literature.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history and director of the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, served on the 1984 Honor Awards Jury for the National Trust for Historic Preservation in Washington, D.C., March 14-16. The jury is responsible for selecting the most distinguished accomplishments in preservation from the previous year, and for designating a recipient for the Louise du Pont Crowninshield Award, the highest honor in the preservation field. Longstreth was elected to the board of directors of the Art Deco Foundation and Trust in Washington, D.C. on March 4.

IRVIN C. MOHLER, director of the Office of Sponsored Research, was featured on "P.M. Magazine" on Channel 5, March 20, with his collection of miniature renditions of circus life. He is a member of the Circus Model Builders Association, a national organization dedicated to preserving the tradition of the American circus. The entire circus, built by Mohler, occupies a 20 by 25 foot area.

PATRIOTIC SERVICE AWARDS from the U.S. Department of the Treasury were presented recently to five members of the university community by Carl Lee, second row, center, area manager, U.S. Savings Bonds, Department of the Treasury, in recognition of their service to the U.S. Saving Bonds Program in last year's campaign. Receiving awards were, first row, l to r, Betty Schlesinger, supervisor, Payroll Office; Evelyn Thomason, supervisor, and Paulan Ricketts, benefits specialist, both of Records and Benefits; and second row, Vice President for Administration and Research Carl J. Lange, left, and Thomas A. Rogers Jr., manager, Records and Benefits, right.

JONATHAN D. MORENO, assistant professor of philosophy, has received an Andrew W. Mellon Fellowship in association with the Aspen Institute for Humanistic studies for 1984-1985. His primary responsibility as a fellow will be to participate in seminars at the Aspen Institute for several weeks this summer.

PHYLLIS PALMER, assistant professor of women's studies and of American civilization, has been appointed to a three year term on the District of Columbia Community Humanities Council, the state-level authority for grants given under the National Endowment for the Humanities.

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, professor of psychology and director of the Counseling Center, was invited to participate in a workshop on bibliotherapy at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D.C., March 16. The workshop was sponsored by the Department of Bibliotherapy, Division of Clinical Support Programs, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Bibliotherapy Roundtable and the National Association of Poetry Therapy. Dr. Phillips presented a paper, "Biblio/Poetry Therapy as Expressive Arts Therapy."

GRANTS

JOSEPHINE DONOVAN, visiting associate professor of women's studies, $7,200 from the Women's Research and Educational Institute, for the 1983-1984 Congressional Fellowships on Women and Public Policy.

REGINALD GILLIAM, visiting professor of public affairs, $10,000 from the American Association of Mesbics, Inc., for research on technical assistance to economic development organizational groups.

WILLIAM B. GRIFFITH, associate professor of philosophy, $9,900 from the National Endowment for the Humanities, in support of the 1984 Washington Colloquium on Humanities and Public Policy.

JOHN M. LACHIN, research professor of statistics, $91,500 from the Interstate Drug Exhcange, for statistical analyses for the preperation of a new drug application for Derusil.

W.D. MAURER, professor of engineering and applied science, $32,070 from the International Business Machines Corporation, to study the development of standard practices and educational modules for inspection of software code.

RICHARD E. MERRITT, director of the Intergovernmental Health Policy Project, $451,368 from the Department of Health and Human Services/PHS/Health Care Financing Administration, in support of the Intergovernmental Health Policy Project.

J.T.B. OBEYSEKERA, research scientist, the International Institute for Water Resources, SEAS, $5,886 from the D.C. Government/Environmental Services, for research on the correlation of flow and water quality variables at Chain Bridge, the Potomac River.

NOZER SINGPURWALLA, professor of operations research and of statistics, $55,338 from the Department of Defense/Navy/-Office of Naval Research, for research in reliability, maintainability, and reliability standards.

JANN-NAN YANG, professor of engineering and applied science, $34,565 from the State University of New York at Buffalo, to study the active control of civil engineering structures under earthquake exitation.

VUJICA YEVJEVICH, research professor of engineering, $126,200 from the National Science Foundation, for research on the validity range of new free-surface unsteady flow equations with bottom curvatures.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, half-time, Department of Biochemistry. (B.S. with nursing backround required. Position entails studies of positive imagery therapy. Laboratory techniques include radioimmunoassay, immune systems assays and administering psychiatric profiles. Experience in these areas desirable.) Contact Dr. Nicholas Hall, Department of Biochemistry, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037, Ext. 8431.

RESEARCH SCIENTIST, Institute for Artificial Intelligence, Engineering Administration Department, SEAS. (Research and analysis in automatic generation of documentation, standards, and work breakdown descriptions pertaining to modeling and simulation efforts. Recent experience in computer languages, systems engineering, and quantitative methods required. Ph.D. in related field.) Send resume with education, work experience, and salary history to Professor B.G. Silverman, Gelman Library 636A, 2130 H St., NW, Washington, D.C., 20052. No calls please.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

April 9, 1984

GW Report

(361)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

LAW CLASS OF 1934 TO HOLD 50TH REUNION

The Honorable J. William Fulbright, former United States senator from Arkansas, and Eugene C. Carusi, a former GW trustee, are serving as class co-chairmen for the 50th anniversary reunion of the GW law class of 1934, scheduled for Friday, April 13.

Honorary chairman for the reunion is GW Honorary Trustee Jacob Burns, (LL.B. 1924, LL.D 1970) who this year observes his 60th anniversary as a law graduate.

The program will begin at 10 am in the fifth floor faculty lounge in the new addition to the Jacob Burns Law Library. There will be a bus tour of the campus at 11:30 am followed by a noon reception in Marvin Center's third floor Colonnade Gallery. At a luncheon at 12:45 pm in the GW University Club, golden membership cards will be issued to members of the 50-year class as well as to any previous graduates who have not yet received theirs. Spouses and guests are welcome at the reunion. For more information, call Ext. 4999.

THE COLUMBIAN WOMEN TO OBSERVE 90TH BIRTHDAY

The Columbian Women of The George Washington University, an alumni group that sponsors scholarships for GW students, will observe its 90th anniversary on April 14 as part of GW Alumni Weekend.

The group was founded in 1894 because of the concern of the young women in the university's Corcoran Scientific School for a young woman whose father had been killed in the Ford's Theatre fire of 1893, making it impossible for her to continue her studies.

The program will include a 1:30 pm fashion show in the Marvin Center Theatre featuring costumes from the 1890s to the 1980s, to be followed by a 3:30 pm anniversary reception in the GW University Club. For more inforamtion, call Ext. 6435.

GW

COLONIAL CLUB'S SPORTS AWARDS DINNER IS APRIL 18

The Colonial Club's 26th Annual Sports Awards Dinner will be held on Wednesday, April 18, in the Marvin Center's third floor Continental Ballroom.

A reception with a cash bar will begin at 5:30 pm with dinner at 6:30 pm. Spouses and guests are invited. If there is anyone who would like to sponsor the cost of an athlete's dinner, this would be appreciated. For more information, call Ext. 6657.

HONORS MEETING--L to R, Professor of Mathematics and Department Chairman T.P.G. Liverman; Assistant Director of Mathematics, Office of Instructional Services, D.C. Public Schools Bessie Howard; and Superintendent of D.C. Public Schools Floretta Dukes McKenzie conferred following a recent Honors Institute Advisory Board Meeting at Superintendent McKenzie's office. The meeting was concerned with the status of efforts undertaken to improve mathematics and science education in the D.C. Public School System including participation by area universities.

ALUMNI WEEKEND 1984

Members of the classes of 1934 and of all previous classes will be honored guests on the first day of Alumni Weekend 1984, Friday, April 13.

The GW General Alumni Association has invited all members of 1934 classes and previous classes to an hour-long reception in their honor beginning at 11:30 am in the third floor Colonnade Gallery of Marvin Center. A luncheon will follow at 12:30 pm in the GW University Club. The Troubadours will offer choral selections during the luncheon.

Members of the GW law class of 1934 and all previous classes will be taking part in a special reunion on Friday, April 13, and will join other honored guests at the 11:30 am reception.

The School of Government and Business Administration Annual Alumni Reception is scheduled for Friday evening, April 13, from 5:30 to 7:30 pm. The speaker will be Erik Winslow, chairman of SGBA's Department of Management Science. SGBA's outstanding alumnus award will go to Robert W. Fleming, B.A., 1941.

Saturday, April 14, a hospitality suite will be maintained from 9:30 am to 4:30 pm for all alumni and their families. Between 10 am and noon, separate receptions and open houses are planned by the Education Alumni Association, the Engineer Alumni Association, the Law Alumni Association and the School of Public and International Affairs Alumni Association.

A picnic barbecue is scheduled for the period between noon and 3:30 pm in the Monroe Hall Quadrangle behind Alumni House. If rain forces the picnic indoors to the Strong Hall Lounge,it will be between noon and 2 pm.

The noon to 5 pm Fun Day activities, sponsored by SGBA, are also part of Alumni Weekend 1984.

The Columbian Women 90th anniversary observance is part of Alumni Weekend as well.

The Alumni Service Awards Presentation/Dinner Dance from 6:30 to 11 pm in the Market Square first floor dining room of Marvin Center will conclude the weekend's activities. Alumni service awards will be presented to those alumni who have given invaluable service to the university. University faculty and friends who have contributed to the success of programs sponsored by the General Alumni Association and the Alumni Relations Office will be honored.

For more information about Alumni Weekend 1984, call Ext. 6435. There is a charge for the picnic barbecue and for the dinner dance.

UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE NOTE

The George Washington University Bookstore will begin today, April 9, to reset the Textbook Department shelves for the 1984 Summer Sessions. Bookstore Manager Monroe Hurwitz asks that all faculty members advise students that any books needed to finish the current semester should be purchased as soon as possible.

JAZZ BAND AND TROUBADOURS TO APPEAR THIS EVENING

The GW Jazz Band, under the direction of William Wright, and the GW Troubadours, under the direction of Catherine Pickar, will appear together in a concert, this evening, Monday, March 9, at 8:30 pm, at George's on the fifth floor of the Marvin Center. The event is open without charge.

ROBERT C. DEWITT NAMED FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR

Robert C. DeWitt, a graduate student in East Asian Studies, has been named a Fulbright Scholar in Singapore for 1984-85. He will undertake a study of Chinese Singaporean authors during his tenure under the Fulbright program. DeWitt received his undergraduate degree in 1981 from Brigham Young University and is a candidate for the Master of Arts from George Washington. He expects to receive his master's degree in May.

FUN DAY IS APRIL 14

At the university's second annual Fun Day, Saturday, April 14, from noon to 5 pm, planners promise something for everyone.

Not only will there be an elephant but a camel as well. There will be aerobic dancers, magicians, musicians, a great variety of food, actors, clowns, and games of chance. Students, faculty staff, alumni and Foggy Bottom residents are all invited to enjoy the kaleidoscopic program.

There is one detail we should all note. Fun Day will take place in fair weather only.

1983 MARYLAND TAX EXEMPT STATUS EXPIRES APRIL 30

Maryland tax form MW-507, item 3, allows certain employees who reside in Maryland to claim exemption from tax witholding by certifying that they "did not owe any Maryland income tax and had a right to a full refund of ALL income tax witheld" for the previous year AND that they expect a similar situation to exist in the current year. This exemption from tax witholding is valid for only one calendar year at a time and expires annually in April.

Employees who are eligible to continue their 1983 exemption from tax witholding in 1984 must complete a form MW-507 by April 30, 1984. Failure to recertify by April 30 will result in the witholding of Maryland taxes as though the employee has zero witholding allowances.

Forms MW-507 are available at the Records and Benefits Office of Personnel Services, Building GG, or at the University Payroll Office, Academic

(Continued on back)

(Continued from front)

Center, first floor.

Please note that this section of form MW-507 is used mostly by student employees. This announcement does not apply to the rest of form MW-507 which is used for claiming dependents and witholding allowances. These items remain in effect until changed by the employee.

PROFESSOR E.J.B. LEWIS DIES

Professor of Accounting E.J.B. Lewis died March 31 at his home in Washington, D.C. He was 66.

Born in Pittsburgh, he was graduated from the University of Western Ontario, and received a master's degree in business administration and accounting from Northwestern University.

He came to Washington in 1942 as a naval officer and, during World War II, became special assistant to the fiscal director of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance. In 1946, he went work as a civilian in the Bureau of Aeronautics at the Navy Department and later served as a deputy controller. He remained there until 1960.

In 1946, he became a member of the university's part-time faculty and, in 1960, joined the full-time faculty. He was chairman of the Department of Accounting from 1966 to 1970 and also served as assistant dean of the School of Government and Business Administration.

Professor Lewis was a past president of the Government Accountants' Association and the Panama Canal Society of Washington. He was a member of the National Chamber of Commerce Government Operations and Expenditures Committee and testified many times before government agencies. From 1961 to 1967, he was editor of Federal Accountant, a quarterly professional journal.

In 1979, he received a George Washington Award for his contributions to the university community. He was also the recipient of the King Gold Medal Award of the Federal Government Accountants'Association.

FIRST PLACE WINNER Cyndi Hammond is congratulated by Journalism Chairman Philip Robbins after she came in first among the award winners at the opening of the current exhibition, "Through the Eyes of Students," works by students in photojournalism. The show continues in Marvin Center's Colonnade Gallery through April 20.

FACULTY-STUDENT SPRING DANCE CONCERT TO BE APRIL 12, 13, 14

The George Washington University Dance Production Groups will give three performances of its Faculty-Student Spring Dance Concert on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 12, 13 and 14, at 8 pm in the Marvin Center Theatre.

The concerts will feature a commissioned work, "Out of Order," by Wendy Woodson, lecturer in human kinetics and leisure studies. Teddy Klaus, composer and lecturer in human kinetica and leisure studies, has composed a music score for the dance.

Eight GW students in dance will present their originally choreographed works. They are: Brenda Hotard, Denine Johnson, Jessie Jones, Debra Kaplowe, Joshua Levy, Lauren Seelye-Harris and Meryl Shapiro.

Tickets are $4.50 general admission and $3.50 for students and senior citizens. Call Ext. 6577 for reservations and information.

NEWS NOTES

ANNUAL AWARDS SHOW OPENS THIS WEEK IN DIMOCK

The Annual Awards Show will open Wednesday, April 11, with a 5 to 7 pm reception and awards presentation in the Dimock Gallery. The show includes the David Lloyd Kreeger Awards Competition.

The show will present the works of graduate students and seniors who are majors in the Department of Art. Art media included will be ceramics and sculptural ceramics, drawing, painting, photography, printmaking, sculpture, visual communication and design.

Gallery hours are 10 am to 5 pm weekdays. The exhibition will continue through April 27.

INTERVIEWS

LINDA GRANT DePAUW, professor of history, was interviewed on the ratification of the Constitution by New York State for WHA, Wisconsin Public Radio, February 22. The program is called "The Eleventh Pillar," after her book The Eleventh Pillar: New York State and the Federal Constitution, (New York, Cornell University Press, 1966.)

PUBLICATIONS

JOHN EFTIS, professor of engineering and applied science and adjunct professor of appled mathematics, a paper, "Influence of Load Biaxialty on the Fracture Characteristics of Two Collinear Cracks, in International Journal of Fracture, Vol. 24, No. 1, 1984, pp. 59-80.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, an article, "The United States Action in Grenada: Reflections on the Lawfulness of Invasion," in the American Journal of International Law, Vol. 78, January 1984, pp. 131-144. Also a book review of Howard L. Lax's Political Risk in the International Oil and Gas Industry, in Perspective, Vol. 12, November/December, 1983, p. 178.

THELMA Z. LAVINE, Elton Professor of Philosophy, a paper, "Pragmatism and the Constitution in the Culture of Modernism," in Transactions of the Charles S. Peirce Society, Winter, 1984, Vol. XX, No. 1, pp. 1-19.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, an article, "Analysis of Intergrated Voice/Data Multiplexing," in the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers Transactions on Communications, Vol. 32, No. 2, February, pp. 140-147.

DEWEY D. WALLACE JR., professor of religion, an article, "Socinianism, Justification by Faith, and the sources of John Locke's The Reasonableness of Christianity," in the Journal of the History of Ideas, January-March, Vol. XLV, pp. 49-66.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JOHN G. ALLEE, professor of English, presented a paper, entitled "Life in the Two Religious Houses in Medieval Greenland," at the 59th annual meeting of the Medieval Academy of America held at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, March 23.

DAVID A. ALTSHULER, associate professor of religion in the Charles E. Smith Chair of Judaic Studies, recieved the $1,500 Kenneth B. Smilen/Present Tense literary award for general nonfiction for his book, The Precious Legacy, published in conjunction with a recent Smithsonian Institution exhibit of treasures from the Jewish Museum in Prague, Czechoslovakia. The award is named for its benefactor and the literary magazine published by the American Jewish Committee.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, served as a discussant on a panel on the evolution of Chinese travel literature from Song to Ming, at the 36th annual meeting of the Association for Asia Studies, at the Washington Hilton Hotel, March 24.

CHRISTOPHER DEERING, assistant professor of political science, has been anamed a Congresional Fellow by the American Political Science Association for the year 1984-1985. He is one of four political scientists selected for the fellowships.

LINDA GRANT DEPAUW, professor of history, was a guest speaker at the Naval Supply Systems Woman of the Year Award Luncheon. She spoke on heroic traditions for navy women at sea. She spoke March 15 at the Virginia Beach Maritime Historical Museum series entitled "The Sea: Our Heritage and our Legacy," on the topic seafaring women.

ROBERT PARRIS, professor of music, is the composer of "The Book of Imaginary Beings, Part II," which had its world premiere at the Corcoran Gallery March 19. Part I premiered in 1973. The Washington Post described Parris as "a composer of luxuriant imagination, aided by a brilliant sense of instrumental color and tempered by structural discipline."

GRANTS

ROLF CLARK, research professor of operations research, and WILLIAM H. MARLOW, professor of operations research, $170,000 from the Department of Defense/Navy/Office of Naval Research, for resource dynamics research.

EDWARD DELLA TORRE, professor of engineering and applied science, $130,000 from the Control Data Corporation, for research in PMR Media Magnetic Microstructure Analysis.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part-time, Department of Anatomy. (Responsible for setting up and maintaining immuno histochemical and electron microscopic procedures. Knowledge in use of antibodies and antisera, and experience in neuroanatomy research and techniques required.) Send resume and three references to Bonnie Goad, George Washington University Medical Center, Department of Anatomy, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C., 20037.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

April 16, 1984

GW Report

(362)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

GELMAN LIBRARY'S ONE MILLIONTH VOLUME

The Samuel Blodget Property Ledger, the one millionth volume to come into the collection of the Melvin Gelman Library, is closely connected to the history of the City of Washington.

The rare volume was presented to the university by Mr. Albert Small during the recent celebration of the Gelman Library's 10th anniversary. Mr. Small, president of the Southern Engineering Company of Washington, is a member of the Friends of the Libraries. In accepting the volume, President Elliott called it "a very special book."

The manuscript is a tall ledger book of the late 19th century, bound in half black calf stamped in gold with brown cloth covers. A detailed handwritten account of the real estate transactions carried out by Samuel Blodget over a period of many years, beginning prior to 1800, the records were set down by several different individuals in an attempt to establish for Blodget's heirs the correct order of transfer of the property he owned in the area that became the District of Columbia. Among his holdings were properties called "Jamaica" and "The Widow's Mite" which included a large part of what is now northwest Washington.

Blodget was one of several advisors who convinced President Washington to raise funds for the construction of public buildings through the sale of land. He served as superintendent of public buildings for a period of two years, from approximately 1792 to 1794. The ledger is seen as an important addition to the university's collection of Washingtoniana.

FELLOWSHIP AND AWARD APPLICATIONS DUE

The Graduate Fellowship Information Center (GFIC) makes us aware of the following opportunities for fellowships and awards.

The American College Testing Program (ACT) and the National Academic Advising Association (NACADA) will sponsor Outstanding Advisors Awards and Outstanding Institutional Advising Program Awards in the area of academic advising. Deadline for nominations is Tuesday, May 1. Sample applications and additional information are available in the GFIC, Ext. 6217.

The Young Mortgage Bankers Committees Scholarship for 1984-1985 will be awarded to a resident of Northern Virginia, suburban Maryland or the District of Columbia. The recipient will be a junior in a four-year college located in one of these areas who may be directing his or her education toward mortgage banking or a related field. The award will be $1,000. Financial need and academic record will

(Continued on back)

STUDENT BOOK COLLECTORS CONTEST WINNERS with Friends of the Libraries President William D. Johnson, second from right, L to R, Michael Rhode, David P. Moskowitz and Ronald P. Rinaldi.

HILLEL FOUNDATION AND GW EXCHANGE PROPERTIES

Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl and Rabbi Gerald Serotta, director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at GW, announced April 6 that an agreement has been reached concerning a joint real estate transaction involving an exchange of Hillel's property at 2129 F Street and the university's property at 23rd and H Streets.

Hillel's efforts in its search for larger, up-graded campus accomodations will be realized when funding becomes available and construction for the new quarters at the new location can begin.

The old Hillel house was recently demolished by the Foundation. Land will soon be cleared. In this unique property swap, the university acquires Hillel's land at 2129 F Street and Hillel will build at 23rd and H Streets. Vice President Diehl said the university is considering several options for use of the newly acquired property with one possibility being an additional outdoor recreation area for students.

According to Mr. Diehl and Rabbi Serotta, the transfer benefits both Hillel and GW.

MUSIC OF WOMEN COMPOSERS IS FOCUS OF CONCERT

The George Washington University Glee Club and Troubadours will present a program of music of women composers on Monday, April 23, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre.

Opening comments on the historical perspective of women in music will be given by Char Mollison, executive director of Women's Equity Action League (WEAL). The Glee Club and Troubadours will perform unaccompanied choral works by Mary Brahe, Susan Benton, Alice Parker, Dede Duson, Emma Lou Diemer, and Bertha Donahue.

Jane White, soprano soloist and GW adjunct assistant professor of voice, will perform songs by Esther Williamson Ballou.

The program is open to the public without charge.

STUDENT PHONATHON RESULTS EXCEED LAST YEAR'S TOTAL

"The most gratifying aspect of this year's phonathon," Director of Alumni Support Jane Scott Brown says, "was the overwhelming student participation." Some 150 student participants raised $21,000 for student financial aid as compared to $3,500 last year. She predicts this will be the most successful phonathon yet.

The university's "George Calling" Phonathon for the Annual Fund shows promising results thus far. As of the week of April 9, $149,720 has been raised. This is just short of last year's total and the Law Phonathon is yet to be held.

Jane Scott Brown extends special thanks to the 500 alumni, faculty, staff and students who participated.

PHONATHON VOLUNTEER Teresa Fay, a Columbian College senior, talks with a potential donor.

NOTICE OF PRE-AWARD REVIEW

The Department of Labor's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs is currently conducting a pre-award review of the university's Affirmative Action Program. Ms. Romaine Burnett is the primary Equal Opportunity Specialist performing the review. Anyone wishing to speak with Ms. Burnett may do so by calling her on Ext. 5872 or visiting her in Room 301, Building T, located at 2110 G Street, NW.

STUDENT BOOK COLLECTORS SHOW VARIED INTERESTS

The subject areas of the books owned by the three winners in the Student Book Collectors Contest, sponsored by the Friends of the Libraries, range from the past to the future.

First prize winner Ronald P. Rinaldi titles his collection "The Spirit of '76: the American Revolution." A senior in Columbian College majoring in American studies, he has been active in a Revolutionary War re-enactment group. He has been an intern at the Division of Military History in the Smithsonian Institution for more than three years. His collection is said to reflect his expertise in the history of the American Revolution, particularly the life of the Continental soldiers.

"The Books of the Boy Scout Movement" is the collection title of David P. Moskowitz, who received second prize. He is also a Columbian College senior, majoring in environmental studies. His collection is divided into three parts: editions of the Boy Scout handbook, including one dated 1917; official publications of the Boy Scouts of America; and unofficially published books about the Scouts. There is an original edition of the Explorer Manual as well as examples of the dime novel literature that sprang up about the Scouting movement.

Michael Rhode, a freshman in Columbian College, whose collection placed third, has titled it "Science Fiction and Fantasy Art." Rhode has been interested in the two subjects since he was about 11 years old and his entire science fiction collection includes around 1,200 volumes. His books about science fiction art and artists were the focus of his entry in the contest.

GW TROUBADOURS CONCERT IS WEDNESDAY, APRIL 18

The GW Troubadours, under the direction of Catherine Pickar, will appear in concert on Wednesday, April 18, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre.

The program will consist of vocal music from the 1920s through the 1970s with a focus on music from the Big Band era. There will also be a segment of classical music. Troubadour member Steve Hilmy, a senior majoring in music, makes the majority of the a capella arrangements used by the group.

There will be an admission charge of $5 for this particular concert. Proceeds of the event will be used to defray some of the costs of the Troubadours' upcoming trip to perform in Portugal be factors considered by the selection committee. Applications are due Monday, April 30. For more information, call GFIC.

For tickets, call Lori Nieswander, Ext.4909.

(Continued from front)

The Robert Ferber Award for Consumer Research is sponsored by The Journal of Consumer Research and the Association for Consumer Research. An award of $750 will be given for the best article-length manuscript on an interdisciplinary aspect of consumer behavior. The applicants submitting this manuscript must have received the doctoral degree after July 31, 1981. In addition to receiving the cash award, the Robert Ferber winner will see the article featured in The Journal of Consumer Research and will have an invitation to present it as a paper at the annual Association for Consumer Research conference. For more information, contact the Journal of Consumer Research, Office of the Editor, Graduate School of Management, University of California, Los Angeles, CA 90024. The deadline is Tuesday, May 1.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS FORUM TO HEAR SPEAKERS FROM HILL

Speakers from Capital Hill will discuss "Congress and Telecommunications Policy" at the April 19 session of the Telecommunications Forum beginning at 4 pm in Marvin Center, Room 426.

Tom Cohen, minority counsel, Committee on Science, Commerce and Transportation of the U.S. Senate, and Tom Rogers, counsel, Subcommittee on Telecommunications, Consumer Protection and Finance of the Committee on Energy and Commerce, U.S. House of Representatives, will be the speakers. An informal discussion will follow their presentations.

The Telecommunications Forum series of lectures and discussions, sponsored by the GW Center for Telecommunications Studies, is open to everyone without charge.

ALUMNI TOUR PROGRAMS

The Alumni Relations Office informs us there's still time to sign up for one or more of the following trips:

Turkey, (May 22 to June 6) join Ellen Reeder Williams, assistant professor of art on a tour of classical sites of Asia Minor;

U.S.A. (June 6 to 17) a trip on the Mississippi Queen, said to be a unique way to start the summer, steamboatin' on the river.

Kenya Safari (September 20 to October 3) an African safari to satisfy exotic taste in trips; and Oberammergau and Romantic Europe (July 21 to August 4) see this once-in-a-decade performance and travel to the historic cities of Munich, Budapest, Salzburg and Vienna.

For more information, call the Alumni Relations Office at Ext. 6435.

THE OPERATIONS RESEARCH DEPARTMENT of SEAS recently conducted two classes in operations research in the computer laboratory at Staughton Hall for math students from the neighborhood School Without Walls, located in the Grant School building. Here Professor and Chairman Donald Gross speaks to the visiting students.

FOURTH ANNUAL CHALK-IN IS THURSDAY, APRIL 19

The Counseling Center is sponsoring its fourth annual Chalk-in Thursday, April 19, in the Gelman Library Courtyard, from noon to 1:30 pm. (The rain date is Wednesday, April 25, at the same time.)

At the Chalk-in, members of the Counseling Center staff will encourage everyone in the vicinity of the courtyard to use an array of multicolored chalks to write or draw on the pavement expressing the mixed emotions that come with the end of the semester. University neighbors will be welcome to take part in the Chalk-in.

The event is organized by the Counseling Center's coordinator of art therapy services, Sandy Geller. For more information, call Ext. 6550.

MAIL SERVICE SEMINAR AND WORKSHOP, APRIL 25

For the convenience of office staffs and faculty, the University Mail Service is sponsoring a seminar and workshop on Wednesday, April 25. Registration forms have been sent to all departments via clump distribution. For more information, call Ext. 6724.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC BANQUET, ABBIE OLIVER SMITH AWARD

At the recent ninth annual Women's Athletic Department Awards Banquet, most valuable players from each team received silver revere bowls and the Abbie Oliver Smith Basketball Award was presented for the first time.

The Smith Award was created by Vice President for Student Affairs William P. Smith not only to recognize his wife's achievements but also the athletic and academic achievements of a women's team member. The first recipient of the award was junior Kathy Marshall.

Most valuable members of each team were: badminton, Ginger Gorman; basketball, Kas Allen; gymnastics, Cara Hennessy; crew, Jennifer Keene; soccer, Theresa Dolan; swimming, Cynthia Driscoll; diving, Stephanie Willim; and volleyball, Susan English.

UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR Seyyed Hossein Nasr spoke on Islamic philosophy at April's First Wednesday Lecture. He discussed Eastern understanding and Western interpretation of the subject.

NEWS NOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITES

MICHELE BURTOFF, lecturer in English, presented a paper entitled "Where Coherence Breaks Down: Identifying Problems of Logical Structure in Student Writing," at the 18th Annual Convention of Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages in Houston, Texas, March 6-11.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, conducted a graduate seminar on later Chinese poetry, and gave a lecture on the "Moral Action in Late Ming and Early Ch'ing Poetry," at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kansas, April 2.

JAMES DEAKIN, adjunct associate professor of journalism and faculty associate for political communications studies, DEP, made 51 television and radio appearances between February 17 and April 10. These appearances were in seven cities; New York, Washington, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, Chicago and Atlanta, and were in connection with his book Straight Stuff: The Reporters, the White House, and the Truth, William Morrow and Company, Inc., 1984. Among the major TV and radio programs on which he appeared were the NBC Today Show; Merv Griffin Show; CBS Nightwatch; NPR Morning Edition; Panorama; PBS Latenight America; Cable News Network's Media Watch and Sandy Freeman Show; C-Span's Nationwide Call-in; and the Braden-Buchanan Show on WRC-Radio. He was the subject of a New York Times profile on February 20, and the book and its author were featured in an article in Parade Magazine on April 1. Magazines and newspapers that have reviewed the book include the New Yorker; Newsweek; the Washington Post; the Baltimore Sun; the Philadelphia Inquirer; Business Week; and the St. Louis Post Dispatch, for which Professor Deakin was the White House Correspondent from the Eisenhower administration through the Carter administration.

JOHN DONALDSON, adjunct instructor in English, presented a paper entitled "Discourse Cohesion in Technical Writing: The Pedagogical Implications of Research into its Nature," at the 18th Annual Convention of Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages, in Houston Texas, March 6-11.

JONATHAN D. FIFE, associate professor of education, has been re-elected to his third term as the executive secretary-treasurer of the Association for the Study of Higher Education, ASHE, a learned society of scholars, researchers, practitioners and graduate students dedicated to the advancement of higher education as a field of study.

CHRISTINE MELONI, adjunct instructor in English, presented a paper entitled "Understanding Arab Students in U.S. Universities," at the 18th Annual Convention of Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages, in Houston, Texas March 6-11.

GEORGE SPANOS, lecturer in English, presented a paper, entitled "Teaching Old Books New Tricks," at the 18th Annual Convention of Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages, in Houston, Texas, March 6-11.

LEO RIBUFFO, associate professor of history, gave a lecture on the far right in the 1930's, at the National Museum of American History, February 28.

C. W. SHIH, professor of Chinese, served as the chair for a panel on the aesthetics and politics of film in China, at the 36th annual meeting of the Association for Asia Studies, at the Washington Hilton, March 25.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Civil, Mechanical and Environmental Engineering. (Conduct research on thin film ceramic coatings formed by vapor deposition, sputtering, and ion beam techniques. Coating microstructure and crystal structures will be related to physical properties. B.S. required in science or engineering. Partial tuition benefits and fellowship opportunities are available to qualified students.) Send resumes to Professor Charles M. Gilmore, CMEE, SEAS, Academic Center, Room T-703A.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

April 23, 1984

GW Report

(363)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

SOME 2,750 DEGREES TO BE CONFERRED AT COMMENCEMENTS

Approximately 2,750 degrees will be conferred by the time the university's eight May commencements have taken place. These include the six ceremonies scheduled for Sunday, May 6, the exercises of the National Law Center on Sunday, May 20, and the School of Medicine and Health Sciences commencement on Friday, May 25.

President Lloyd H. Elliott will participate in all eight ceremonies. A reception for graduates and their families and friends will follow each event.

The School of Government and Business Administration commencement is scheduled for Sunday, May 6, at 10:30 am, in the Charles E. Smith Center. The Honorable Silvio O. Conte, U.S. Representative from Massachusetts, will deliver the address and will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Emeritus status will be conferred on Professor of Management Science Daniel D. Roman. He will also receive a distinguished service award from SGBA. Distinguished service awards will be conferred on Ben Burdetsky, chairman of the Department of Business Administration; Rodney Eldridge, director of doctoral programs; Anthony J. Mastro, chairman of the Department of Accounting; and Dorn C. McGrath Jr., chairman of the Department of Urban and Regional Planning. A posthumous award will be conferred on the late Leon Gintzig, who served as associate dean of SGBA.

At the School of Public and International Affairs exercises May 6 at 11:30 am in Lisner Auditorium, Paul C. Warneke, former U.S. arms control negotiator, now of the law firm of Clifford and Warneke, will be the speaker and will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

At the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences ceremony at 1 pm in the Marvin Theatre, the Honorable George McGovern, chairman, Americans for Common Sense, will speak and will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Dean Henry Solomon will present a certificate of appreciation to Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Harold F. Bright, who will retire from the university on June 30.

At the exercises of the School of Education and Human Development Sunday, May 6, at 2 pm, Dr. Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association will give the address and will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service. Professors of Education Robert E. Baker and Samuel Kavruck will receive emeritus status.

The Columbian College of Arts and Sciences commencement will take place in the Smith Center on May 6, at 3 pm. Columbian College Dean Calvin D. Linton will be the speaker. He will receive the status of professor emeritus of English and dean emeritus of the Columbian College

(Continued on back)

FUN DAY--University Trustee Nancy B. Dudley, left, with her daughters, Meredith, foreground, and Maureen, and Dean of Students Gail S. Hanson were among those enjoying the university's recent Fun Day in spite of uncertain weather.

BOARD COMMITTEE WELCOMES VIEWPOINTS AND DATA ON EVENING LAW DIVISION

Prior to the last meeting of the Board of Trustees of The George Washington University, the faculty of the National Law Center presented its proposal to phase out the Evening Division of the law school.

In its meeting on March 15, 1984, the Board of Trustees voted to have its Chairman appoint a committee to study the problem and report back to the Board as promptly as possible. The Committee is at work in preparation of its report. It is composed of the following Trustees: Harold F. Baker, Everett H. Bellows, Vincent C. Burke Jr., Thaddeus A. Lindner, and Glen A. Wilkinson.

Officials of the University advise that much correspondence has been received by Dr. Lloyd H. Elliott, President of the University, Dean Jerome Barron, Dean of the Law School, and others.

Glen A. Wilkinson, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, says that the committee welcomes all viewpoints and data on this important question and that students, alumni, friends, or others are invited to submit views to the committee. They may be addressed to Chairman Wilkinson at The George Washington University, Washington, DC 20052. Persons desiring to make presentations before the committee should so indicate.

ARTHUR C. CLARKE COMES TO CAMPUS

The GW Students for the Exploration and Development of Space are presenting a program called "A Visit with Arthur C. Clarke" on Monday, April 30, at 8 pm in Lisner Auditorium.

Clarke, the creator of 2001: A Space Odyssey and 2010: Odyssey Two, is an author, futurist and physicist as well as being the father of the communications satellite. For more information, call Todd Hawley, Ext. 7102.

PROFESSOR MORGAN HONORED FOR FACULTY SENATE SERVICE

Professor of Political Science and Public Affairs John A. Morgan Jr. was honored with a resolution of appreciation at the April 13 meeting of the Faculty Senate.

Introduced by President Elliott, the resolution read in part, "Whereas John A. Morgan Jr. has earned and held the gratitude and respect of all parts of The George Washington University community; and whereas his term of service on the Executive Committee of the Faculty Senate has reached its statutory limit; be it resolved...in recognition of his diligence in pursuing reason, practicality and common sense in resolving problems faced by this academic community; especially in recognition of his dedicated service for 13 years on the Faculty Senate, eight years on the Senate' Executive Committee, and five years as chairman of the Executive Committee, the Faculty Senate of The George Washington University cites Professor John A. Morgan Jr. for distinguished service."

GW

IT'S SECRETARIES WEEK

This is National Secretaries Week, begun in 1952 in appreciation of the fine support and contribution of secretaries to all sorts and types of organizations and enterprises throughout the United States.

"All of us here at the university owe many thankyous to our secretaries who keep things running smoothly from week to week and month to month," says Vice President for Administration and Research Carl J. Lange.

The GW University Club will be offering glasses of wine to secretaries who come to the club for lunch during the week or are invited as guests. On Secretaries Day, Wednesday, April 25, secretaries who lunch at the club will be given flowers.

GW AWARD WINNERS ANNOUNCED

Three professors and five students have been chosen to receive George Washington Awards. The award was established in 1976 to recognize outstanding contributions to enhance university life.

Rodney Walter Eldridge, professor of international finance, will receive the award at SGBA graduation for his dedication and leadership in furthering the mission of SGBA through his active role in the development of the doctoral program; for serving as an inspiration to students during their academic careers, and for continuing to influence their careers after graduation.

Robert Francis Guarasci, a junior majoring in sociology, will receive his award at Columbian College graduation in recognition of his involvement in improving the quality of campus life through his service as a Senator and President of the GW Student Association; for developing lines of communication with the administration and the Board of Trustees in an effort to achieve programs beneficial to the entire university community; and for his unfailing support of student programs and activism while making significant improvements in all aspects of student life.

Abid Kamran, a doctoral candidate in computer science, will accept his award at the School of Engineering and Applied Sciences Commencement, for his leadership role in extra-curricular activities in SEAS; for his dedicated service to the GWU Student Association and Engineer's Council; in recognition of his outstanding academic record including a presentation at the International Workshop on User Interface Management in Seeheim, West Germany.

Robert Earle Knowlton, associate professor of biology and assistant dean of the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences, will receive his award at Columbian College commencement for his efforts towards creating a more constructive and congenial environment within the university; for his active involvement on faculty and departmental committees including serving as Chairman of the College Scholarship Committee; for his infinite patience and compassion for his students and his concern for their well being.

Bernard Michael Lesavoy, currently a second-year National Law Center Student, will accept his award at the Law Center's graduation for his eight continuous of dedicated services to the university community as both an undergraduate and a graduate student; for his active involvement in almost every aspect of University life; for his commitment to the improvement of the residence halls; and for his unflagging efforts to improve the quality of life at The George Washington University.

Kirsten Lawrence Olsen, a senior majoring in journalism and in political science and public policy, will receive her award during of Arts and Sciences. Harold F. Bright will be named professor emeritus of statistics and vice president for academic affairs emeritus. Guido E. Mazzeo will become professor emeritus of Romance Languages. Mary E. Norton, associate professorial lecturer in Latin, who is retiring after 20 years of teaching, will receive a distinguished service award from Columbian College. Student speaker at the Columbian College commencement will be Carmen Yvonne Lattimore, a senior with a major in English literature and a minor in religion.

(Continued on back)

(Continued from front)

At the School of Engineering and Applied Science ceremony May 6 at 5 pm in Lisner Auditorium, University Trustee L. Stanley Crane, who is chairman and chief executive officer, Consolidated Rail Corporation, will give the address. Shao Wen Yuan will be named professor emeritus of engineering and applied science.

At the National Law Center exercises on Sunday, May 20, at 1:30 pm, the Honorable James M. Shannon, U.S. Representative from Massachusetts, will deliver the address.

The School of Medicine and Health Sciences commencement will be Friday, May 25, at 11 am in Lisner Auditorium. Dr. Vincent T. DeVita Jr., director, National Cancer Institute, will speak and will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa. Emeritus status will be conferred on Professor of Anesthesiology Charles S. Coakley and Professor of Clinical Child Health and Development William A. Howard.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR E.J.B LEWIS

There will be a memorial service for the late Professor Edwin J. B. Lewis, professor of accounting, on Thursday, April 26, at 11 am in the Marvin Theatre.

GW OPERA THEATRE TO PRESENT WORKS OF PUCCINI AND SAYLOR

The GW Opera Theatre will present Gianni Schicchi by Giacomo Puccini and The Express by Maurice Saylor on Wednesday and Thursday, April 25 and 26, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. The performances will be directed by Frances Smith Cohen and Francis Conlon. The two performances will mark the world premiere of The Express.

Tickets will be $5 general admission and $3 for students and senior citizens. Tickets will be available at the door or in advance at the Music Department. For more information, call Ext. 6245.

WORKS BY WINNERS IN COLONNADE GALLERY

Works by winner of awards in the Dimock Gallery/Art Department's Annual Awards Show will be on exhibition in the Colonnade Gallery of the Marvin Center from Friday, April 27, through Friday, May 11. Gallery hours are 8 am to 10 pm daily. This exhibition is sponsored by the Governing Board of the Marvin Center, the Art Department and the Dimock Gallery.

There will be a reception in the gallery on Thursday, April 26, from 4 to 6 pm, to inaugurate the exhibition.

OUTDOOR CLASS--Business Administration 120, a class in business funance, moved outside on a recent afternoon. Here Lecturer in Business Administration Michelle Weinhagen explains the figures on the board to her class.

(Continued from front)

Columbian College graduation for her expansion of the GW Cheerleading Squad from a club to a sport within the men's athletic department; for her efforts in revitalizing Homecoming; for her outstanding commitment to GW publications; for her innovative work as a founding member of the GW Towne Meeting Committee; and for her constant commitment to enhancing the reputation and atmosphere at GW.

Catherine Jones Pickar, assistant professor of music, will accept her award at the Columbian College commencement for her leadership role in reviving the GW Troubadors as a prime vocal music organization representing GW to the campus and community; for being a talented musician who who has the rare ability to instill her talents into others; and for her respect for her students and fellow performers.

David Henry Tobey, a graduate student majoring in finance and investment, will receive his award at SGBA commencement for his dedicated and innovative service to the School of Government and Business Administration and the university community as a whole; for his commitment to the enhancement of campus life and his dedication to improving the reputation of GW.

ABOUT SMOKING

President Elliott says that it has been brought to his attention that there are times when those employees who smoke make the work environment uncomfortable or unbearable for non-smokers. Hopefully, most of these situations can be resolved mutually by those involved. However, in cases where smoking by one or more employees is creating acute discomfort for other employees and the issue cannot be resolved, those suffering discomfort should bring this matter to the attention of their supervisor for resolution.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS SEEKS SPONSORS

"Warm up those dancing feet," says GW Television office manager Catherine Redden, who is captain of the GW Liaison Committee for the Sixth Annual Special Olympics 30-hour dance marathon. The marathon will be held on June 16 and 17, Saturday and Sunday, in the Marvin Center. SERVE and the Program Board of GW are sponsoring this event, which last year raised $64,000 to support D.C. Special Olympics sports programs for mentally retarded people.

Everyone is welcome to participate, to dance for an hour or longer. Dancers must be sponsored for a donation of $12 for each hour they dance. Those who are interested are encouraged to sign up now and begin recruiting sponsors. Free food and refreshments are provided for the dancers throughout the dance marathon. Prizes will be awarded hourly and there will be what is called "zany entertainment" designed to keep dancers' spirits high.

For further information and sponsor sheets, contact DeDe Runfola at (202) 828-0100 (weekdays) and (202) 293-2571 (evenings).

TUPPER SHAKESPEARE LECTURE IS FRIDAY, APRIL 27

The annual Tupper Shakespeare Lecture will be delivered this year by O. B. Hardison Jr., a former director of the Folger Shakespeare Library. His subject will be "Shakespearean Tragedy: The Mind in Search of the World." He will speak at 8 pm, Friday, April 27, in Room 101 of Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW.

Dr. Hardison served at the Folger Library from 1969 to 1983. He is now a university professor in the Department of English at Georgetown University. He is the author of numerous articles and several books, among them, The Enduring Monument: Praise in Renaissance Literary Theory and Practice (1962) and Entering the Maze: Identity and Change in Modern Culture (1982). Dr. Hardison is regarded as an authority not only on the traditions of Shakespeare and his time but also on modern culture and cultural institutions.

All members of the university community are cordially invited to the lecture. In accordance with the security requirements of Ross Hall, those affiliated with the university will be asked to show their picture IDs.

OPEN HOUSE AT SPONSORED PROJECTS ON THURSDAY

The Sponsored Projects Division of the Treasurer's Office will hold an open house on Thursday, April 26, from 2 to 4:30 pm for the principal investigators and their staffs. The purpose of the open house is to provide the investigators and staffs an opportunity to meet on a social basis and to discuss informally any matters of mutual concern.

NEWS NOTES

PUBLICATIONS

CHRISTINE MELONI, adjunct instructor in English, an article, "What Do University EFL Students Write About in Dialogue Journals?" in the WATESOL Working Papers, No. 1, Winter 1984.

NADINE NATOV, professor of Russian, an article, "Dostoevsky's Response to Diderot," in Dostojevskij und die Literatur, edited by Hans Rothe, Koln-Wein, December, 1983.

SUSAN J. TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, an article, co-authored with Martin Tolchin, "Political Meltdown: Reactors, Risks and Regulation," in Mark Green, et. al, editors, The Big Business Reader, New York, Pilgrim Press, 1984.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, chaired a panel and presented two papers at the International Studies Association's Annual Convention in Atlanta, Georgia, March 27-31. The papers were entitled "Antarctica and the `Common Heritage of Mankind'", and "Security Issues of the Southern Ocean."

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history and director of the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, gave a lecture entitled, "Custard's Last Stand--Preserving the Recent Past," for the Art Deco Society of Washington, D.C., at the Shoreham Hotel, March 26.

GRANTS

MICHAEL CASTELBERRY, associate professor of special education, $73,000 from the Department of Education, for a handicapped personnel preparation master level special education infant educator project.

FRED LEONARD, research professor of medicine and of orthopaedic surgery, $151,834 from the Department of Health and human Services/National Institutes of Health/Division of Research Resources, for biomedical research support.

WILLIAM F. LONG, professor of economics, $260,000 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for research on the operation of a system for life sciences.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Radiation Biology Laboratory. (B.S. required, M.S. preferred in biological sciences or chemistry to work in cellular/molecular radiation biology laboratory. Must have experience in biochemical techniques.) Send resume to Dr. T.M. Koval, 2300 I St., NW, Room 112, Washington, D.C. 20037.

TWO RESEARCH ASSISTANTS, Department of Civil, Mechanical and Environmental Engineering. (Conduct research on thin film ceramic coatings formed by vapor deposition, sputtering, and ion beam techniques. Coating microstructure and crystal structures will be related to physical properties. B.S. required in science or engineering. Partial tuition benefits and fellowship opportunities are available to qualified students.) Send resumes to Professor Charles M. Gilmore, CMEE, SEAS, Academic Center, Room T-703 A.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer

April 30, 1984

GW Report

(364)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES FELLOWSHIPS

The National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) will award approximately 130 fellowships to individual "scholars, teachers and others who can make significant contributions to thought and knowledge in the humanities."

June 1, Friday, is the deadline for applications for 1985-1986. Projects can begin after January 1, 1985, and end as late as the spring term of 1986. Applicants may request support for any period between six and 12 months. The fellowships carry a stipend of up to $12,500 for six months or $25,000 for 12 months. Awards will be announced by December of 1984.

NEH supports study in disciplines traditionally identified as the humanities as well as in others such as jurisprudence and some aspects of the social sciences. The awards program also encourages "the study and application of the humanities to the human environment" and to "the current conditions of national life." Projects may contribute to scholarly knowledge, to the conception and sources of individual courses in the humanities or to the general public's understanding of the humanities.

The Endowment will mark the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution by offering fellowships to those scholars who wish to "pursue study and research on the philosophical, literary, historical or political origins of the Constitution, the relation of the structure of the Constitution to American political, social or intellectual culture, or the connection between self- government and the purposes of human life."

Applications from established, senior scholars and from younger scholars at the rank of instructor or assistant professor are both welcomed. Copies of the application form are available for study at the Fellowship Information Center, Gelman Library, 621 D. For more information, call Jonathan Moreno, Ext. 6913, or Andrea Stewart, Ext. 6217. The application forms can be obtained from the Division of Fellowships and Seminars, Room 316, National Endowment for the Humanities, Washington, DC, 20506. (202) 786-0466.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. ELLIOTT TO HOST RECEPTION MAY 10 FOR THE BRIGHTS AND LINTONS

The President of The George Washington University and Mrs. Lloyd H. Elliott cordially invite members and friends of the University community to a reception honoring Provost and Mrs. Harold F. Bright and Dean and Mrs. Calvin D. Linton upon the retirement of Provost Bright and Dean Linton. The reception will be held on Thursday, May 10, from 4 to 5:30 pm in The George Washington University Club, Marvin Center, third floor.

DEAN CALVIN D. LINTON, left, holds the silver sailing vessel presented to him by the Columbian College Faculty at a surprise coffee April 23, following a regular faculty meeting when he was honored with a special resolution. He will retire June 30. Professor of Religion and University Marshal Robert G. Jones, right, was one of the 20 university faculty members recognized for 25 years service at a faculty luncheon April 23 in the GW University Club.

GW RECOGNIZED FOR SUPPORT OF SUMMER JOBS FOR YOUTH

The George Washington University has been recognized for 20 years of support for Summer Jobs for Youth.

A certificate of appreciation was presented to the university at an April 25 breakfast to kick off this summer's program. Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl accepted the certificate which reads, in part, "in recognition of significant and continuing support of the region's young people through the Summer Jobs for Youth Campaign." The breakfast was sponsored by the Area Chamber of Commerce, Public Employment Services, The Washington Area Private Industry Councils and The Greater Washington Board of Trade.

DR. KAYSER TO SPEAK MAY 2 AT GW UNIVERSITY CLUB

University Historian Elmer L. Kayser will speak at the GW University Club on Wednesday, May 2. He will discuss the period of the university's history from 1917 to 1927 when he was secretary of the university. This was a time when the university came through a difficult financial situation and was beginning to change from the small college it had been into the first stages of the institution it was to become. "It was an important phase in the `bricks without straw' experience," Dr.Kayser says.

There will be a cash bar beginning at 11:30 am, with lunch from noon to 1 pm and the program immediately following. Call Ext. 6610 by April 30 for reservations.

EDWARD D. KENNEY TO DIRECT SAFETY AND SECURITY

Edward D. Kenney has been appointed director of safety and security, effective July 1. He will succeed Byron M. Matthai Jr., who will retire on June 30. Matthai came to the university in 1970 as assistant director and became director in 1980.

Kenney has had wide experience in law enforcement work including service with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the New York Police Department. With the FBI, he was involved with managing the bureau's information program and participated in developing law enforcement executive training programs. He was an adjunct instructor at the University of Virginia. He has had extensive experience in criminal investigation as well as with large urban police departments. He holds a Bachelor of Arts in English and two Master of Science degrees.

"He is a highly qualified professional and has excellent skills in relating to people," said Dr. Carl J. Lange, vice president for administration and research. "He will do a fine job in carrying on the tradition of managing a security force that is sensitive to the needs of the University community."

CELEBRATION PLANNED MAY 4 FOR ALL THE MAY GRADUATES

The 1984 Commencement Committee and The George Washington University Student Association are sponsoring a Graduate Celebration Honoring May Graduates on Friday afternoon, May 4, from 4:30 to 6:30 pm. Dress is to be casual. Hors d'oeuvres and non-alcoholic punch will be served. A cash bar will be available.

TWO GW JOURNALISM GRADUATES SHARE IN 1984 PULITZER PRIZE

Two George Washington University journalism graduates were named as sharers in the 1984 Pulitzer Prize for public service reporting awarded the third week in April to Newsday for its coverage of the "Baby Jane Doe" case.

B.D. Colen, who completed his graduation requirements in 1973 after serving as the Washington Post's campus correspondent during the disruptions of the Vietnam War period, and Joye Brown, a native Washingtonian who was graduated from GW in 1977, were members of the Long Island newspaper's reportorial team covering the controversial case.

Colen went to the Post full-time upon graduating and after covering several local governmental beats, wrote about medical affairs. The latter subject area included articles on the Karen Ann Quinlan case (also the subject of his book, subtitled "Dying in the Age of Eternal Life"), the legal definition of death in today's high-tech medicine, and the human dimension involved in decisions on abortion. A native of New York, he went with Newsday in 1980 as a medical/scientific reporter and columnist. He lives on Long Island with his wife and three children.

Joye Brown grew up in Washington, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manson Brown Jr. She attended schools in this area before coming to George Washington. After graduation, she worked for the Raleigh News & Observer, the Chicago Tribune and then Newsday. Joye was editor-inchief of the GW Hatchet in her senior year. Colen also contributed to the Hatchet as a student, later teaching several journalism reporting courses on a part-time basis here at GW, while working as a full-time reporter with the Post.

TWO GW TELEPHONE OPERATORS RECOGNIZED BY DC POLICE

Melissa Williams and Joy Stevenson, university/medical center telephone operators, have received certificates of appreciation from D.C. Chief of Police Maurice T. Turner Jr. for assistance rendered to the Metropolitan Police Department.

On Friday, December 23, there was a telephone call to the George Washington University Telephone Operations Section from a disturbed mother, who said, "I have the missing baby." Joy Stevenson was able to hold the caller on the line while Melissa Williams contacted the C & P Telephone operator so that a trace could be placed on the caller's phone. The operators first thought they were in contact with a person who had stolen a baby named Nicole from a bus station in October 1983. The Metropolitan Police Department was notified and when the call was traced to a Maryland address, officers went to the location. Operator Stevenson continued to talk with the caller for more than 25 minutes. When there was a knock at the door this frightened the mother so that she cried out, "Please don't let them take Nicole." Joy was able to convince the mother that she had sent a friend to help her. It turned out that the baby was not the missing Nicole but the mother's own child and arrangements were made for the disturbed mother to be treated for a psychosis condition.

(Continued on back)

(Continued from front)

In his letters to Joy and Melissa, Chief Turner said they showed "a high degree of human compassion" and "set an outstanding example of civic-mindedness."

GW TIMES RECEIVES CASE CITATION AWARD

The university's publication for alumni and friends, GW Times, which appears five times yearly, has received a citation award from CASE, the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education. GW Times was one of 13 tabloids to receive a citation award among 92 which were submitted for judging. Sandy Pinkus, manager of publications in GW's Office of News and Public Affairs, is the editor.

MFA THESIS CANDIDATE SHOW OPENS MAY 3 IN DIMOCK

Ceramics, painting and visual communication will be the media presented in the MFA Thesis Candidate Show Spring 1984 in the Dimock Gallery.

Sponsored by the Dimock Gallery/Art Department, the exhibition will include works by Elizabeth Anne Banko, Vittoria Blaker, M. Lizbeth Carr Carroll, Robert W. Kenny and Susan Walker.

The show will continue through Friday, May 25. Gallery hours are 10 am to 5 pm weekdays.

GW ROSE GARDEN IS NAMED OUTSTANDING

All-American Rose Selections Incorporated has named the George Washington University rose garden outstanding. The university's garden has been an All-American Rose accredited public garden for several years and displays both old and new varieties of roses, growing in carefully tended plots, for the pleasure and education of passersby.

Louis L. Smith, grounds supervisor, has received a handsome certificate of award and a letter stating that the garden was evaluated as "excellent."

PARKING NOTE

The last day for 1983-84 parking at the Kennedy Center will be Friday, May 4. Staff members who are interested in on-campus parking during the summer may check with the Parking Office April 30 through May 4 to make parking arrangements which will become effective May 7.

PRESIDENT FOR A DAY Chuck Pollock, center, is shown with President Lloyd H. Elliott, left, and GW Student Association President Bob Guarasci next to the bronze statue of George Washington by Avard Fairbanks at the I Street Mall. Chuck, a senior in accounting, who was the highest bidder for the privilege of being president for a day at February's Martha's Marathon of Birthday Bargains, chose April 20 as the day.

WORDS AND MUSIC FOR THE FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE

Astere E. Claeyssens Jr., associate professor of English, will be the speaker at the May First Wednesday Lecture, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office. His subject will be "American Musical Comedy: Where Has It Been and Where Is It Going?"

Professor Claeyssens will speak in the Marvin Center third floor Continental Room on Wednesday, May 2, at 8 pm. There is no charge but those planning to attend should call Ext. 6435 to reserve seating. Dinner before the lecture will be served at the GW University Club, for both members and non-members. Call Ext. 6610 for dinner reservations.

GW FACULTY WOMEN GIVE FUNDS FOR COMPUTER CENTER POSTERS

The Faculty Women's Club of The George Washington University has made a donation to the Center for Academic and Administrative Computing for several posters to be used in decorating the student terminal area. The check from the club was accepted by Assistant Director E. Michael Hamilton on April 13.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

CONNIE K. McCARTHY, acting university librarian, moderated papers at the conference of the Association of College and Research Libraries in Seattle, Washington, April 4-7.

THOMAS J. NAGY, visiting professor of management science, and Christine Humphrey, an MBA candidate, presented a data processing management association technical seminar entitled, "When Should You Start Using and Building Expert Systems?" March 21. To illustrate the utility of expert systems, they described CB design, their 100 rule expert system which designs computer changeback systems.

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, director of the Counseling Center, presented a paper entitled "Recasting Psychotherapy:Results from Local and National Studies," at the Virginia Psychological Association Annual Meeting in Richmond, Virginia, April 5.

SONYA QUITSLUND, assistant professor of religion, attended a White House Briefing on the progress of enforcing equal employment opportunity and affirmative action laws, March 30. Professor Quitslund is past chairperson of the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice.

BETTY SCHLESINGER, payroll supervisor, spoke at a workshop entitled "Education Field Payroll," at the Annual Congress of the American Payroll Association held at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C., March 22-23.

DAVID SCOTT SMITH, director of the Department of Safety of the Medical Center, presented testimony to the D.C. City Council's Committee on Housing and Economic Development, on behalf of the District of Columbia Hospital Association, March 29. His testimony concerned proposed legislation of employees' rights to know about hazardous substances in the workplace.

JEANNE SNODGRASS, professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, made two presentations on "Wellness and Exercise," at the convention of the National Council on Aging at the Sheraton Washington, April 5-6.

SUSAN J. TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, delivered a paper, entitled "Cost-Benefit Analysis and the Rush to Deregulate-The Political Uses and Misuses of Theory to Effect Policy Change," at the Baldy Center for Law and Social Policy at the State University of New York at Buffalo, March 9. She also delivered a speech at Arizona State University on the unanticipated consequences of regulatory reform, March 12.

T. THORNE WIGGERS, coordinator of outreach and consultation of the GW Counseling Center, presented "Finding Targets for Renewal: Research on Burnout among Career Development Professionals," with Dea Forney of Gettysburg College's Career Services, at the American College Personnel Association Conference in Baltimore, April 9.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Medicine/Health Care Sciences, (Nurse with a Bachelor's degree and physical assessment skills, or nurse practitioner/physician's assistant for research position within a university-based study of antibiotic efficacy in nursing home patients. Duties include physical, mental, and functional assessments related to monitoring of response.) Send CV to G. Pawlson, M.D., Room 322, 1229 25th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037, Ext. 4269.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Intensive Care Unit Research, (Bachelor's degree required, plus strong long-term computer skills and intimate working knowledge of SAS and CMS. Responsibility for management of complex data base containing both demographic and physiologic information. Position available June 1.) Contact Elizabeth A. Draper R.N., M.S. ICU Research, 2300 K St., NW Washington, D.C. 20037, Ext. 2611.

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT, part-time. (Editor of international medical science journal requires assistant to maintain correspondence with authors and referees. Good typing skills essential. Familiarity with modern office equipment an advantage.) Contact Dr. Michael J. Jackson, Ross Hall, Room 439. Ext. 3574.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Department of Pathology. (Ph. D. preferred, to study the effects of dietary minerals on response of heart to injury. Must be able to work with small animals, have knowledge of AAS and use of radioisotopes. Must be able to prepare publishable manuscripts.) Send resume to CV Pathology, Ross Hall Room 502.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Department of Anatomy. (Individual interested in interactions of electromagnetic waves and nervous system. Must have a Master's degree and know light and electron microscopy and have a strong backround in neurobiology.) Send resume and three references to Dr. E.N. Albert, The George Washington University Medical Center, Department of Anatomy, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

May 14, 1984 (365)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

QUOTABLE FROM THE MAY 6 COMMENCEMENT CEREMONIES

President Lloyd H. Elliott in his remarks at each of the six commencement ceremonies Sunday, May 6, referred to a letter sent from President James Monroe to the Board of trustees in 1821 following the action of Congress to incorporate the Columbian College in the District of Columbia (which became the George Washington University.) The quotation read, "The establishment of the institution within the Federal District, in the presence of Congress, and of all the departments of government, will secure to the young men who may be educated in it many important advantages; among (them). . .the opportunity of hearing the debates in Congress and in the Supreme Court. . .With these peculiar advantages, this institution. . .cannot fail to be eminently useful to the nation." President Elliott commented, "Since 1821, this university has spread its wings and is now continuing to be extremely useful to this country and to peoples and nations around the world."

Representative Silvio O. Conte (First Congressional District, Massachusetts) called for better and continued communication between industry and government. "Today government and business are like partners linked in a three-legged race," he said. "Certainly, no one would dispute that government policy has a tremendous impact on business and industry. . .Government restrictions on business have generally not arisen out of a malicious desire. . . .Some of the regulatory excesses we have witnessed over the past ten years might have been avoided if there had been more fruitful discussion and information exchanges between government and business."

Paul C. Warnke, former U.S. arms control negotiator, speaker at the School of Public and International Affairs, stressed the need for the United States to strive for a more realistic and effective foreign policy by accepting the diversity of nations and interests in the world when designing U.S. policy. "One of the issues you'll have to face," he said to the graduates, "is the issue of whether or not we can learn to live with diversity. . . . We can improve the strength of our alliances, help the emerging nations, . . .and also bring U.S.-Soviet relations to a less dangerous condition, if we accept that constructive interaction with all three categories of other nations does not require identical views of politics."

Senator George McGovern, at the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, discussed U.S. involvement in Central America. "An acquaintance with the history of Central America could convince us that the present Reagan policy of military intervention. . .is dead wrong historically, morally, politically

(Continued on back)

AT LERNER HALL--L to R, Mr. Theodore N. Lerner, Mrs. Lerner, President Elliott, Dean Barron.

FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR AWARDS COMPETITION IS UNDER WAY

The Fulbright Scholar Awards competition is now in progress with some 800 awards available this year.

The Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES), through the U.S. Information Agency (USIA), has received from agencies and embassies abroad the list of awards available to American scholars, and information and applications have been sent to colleges and universities, including George Washington. Usually covering periods of two to 10 months, Fulbright Scholar awards are available in all academic fields and a wide range of professions. This year's offerings include some 275 awards for postdoctoral research. The remainder are for college and university lecturing or for consultative or teaching positions with governmental bodies or other professional institutions.

Application deadlines for the 1985-86 competition are: June 15 of this year for Australasia, India, and Latin America and the Caribbean; and September 15 of this year for Africa, Asia (except India), Europe and the Middle East.

Further information and application forms are available from the Fellowship Information Center, Gelman Library, Room 621 D, Ext. 6217.

SIX ARGENTINE ARTISTS IN GELMAN LIBRARY EXHIBIT

"Six Argentine Artists," an exhibit sponsored by the Latin American Cultural Development Foundation, will be on display in the Melvin Gelman Library through May 31.

The exhibit includes the work of Miguel Ocampo, Cesar Paternosto, Leopoldo Maler, Luis Frangella, Duilio Pierri and Leandro Katz. The careers of the six artists cover a period of three decades.

The Latin American Cultural Foundation is a non-profit organization whose purpose is the exchange of paintings and works of art between Latin America and the United States.

SUMMER HOURS HAVE COME TO THE GRAND MARKET PLACE

The Grand Marketplace on the first floor of the Marvin Center is now on summer hours. Service is offered from 7:30 am to 2:30 pm, Monday through Friday. The Market Place is offering its salad bar and, as part of its Chez George line, has added "Southern George," Which features fried chicken and barbeque.

TROUBADOURS TO PERFORM IN PORTUGAL THIS MONTH

The George Washington University Troubadours have been invited by the United States Ambassador to Portugal, the Honorable H. Allen Holmes, to spend nearly two weeks in Portugal this month.

Between May 16 and May 27, the 12-member group will be traveling in Portugal singing at various universities and secondary schools in a cultural exchange capacity. They will also perform at some embassy sponsored functions. The Troubadours, directed by Catherine J. Pickar, assistant professor of music, are a performing ensemble of the GW Department of Music. Professor Pickar received a George Washington Award at the May 6 commencement of Columbian College. Funding for the tour has been provided in part by the United States Embassy in Portugal and in part by the United States Information Agency. Proceeds of the Troubadours' April 18th performance in the Marvin Center will be used to defray the cost of their air fare.

The Troubadours were one of five choirs selected by taped audition from among 40 entries to perform at the American Choral Directors Association Eastern Conference on February 9 in Baltimore. The other college ensembles selected were Radcliffe Choral Society, Brown University Chorus, University of Hartford Chamber Singers and Morgan State University Choir.

THEODORE N. LERNER HALL IS DEDICATED AT NATIONAL LAW CENTER ON APRIL 26

The Theodore N. Lerner Hall in the National Law Center of The George Washington University was dedicated in an evening ceremony on Thursday, April 26.

The ceremony was held in the newly completed Jacob Burns Moot Court in Lerner Hall, which stands at the corner of 20th and H Streets, NW.

Speakers included the Dean of the National Law Center Jerome A. Barron, Mr. Lerner and President Lloyd H. Elliott. The invocation and prayer of dedication and benediction were given by the Reverend Professor Robert G. Jones, University Marshall.

"I am sure that everyone in this room joins me in extending our deepest thanks to Annette and Ted Lerner for their generosity which has made this beautiful building possible," said Dean Barron. "This is the first new classroom building solely built for the purpose of instruction in law since Stockton Hall was built in 1926. . . . Lerner Hall is admirably constructed to perform its task of providing a site for legal instruction of a great law school."

In response, Mr. Lerner said, in part, "I have always considered my Law School experience to be instrumental in my career. For me, Law School was a catalyst. It gave me confidence on a professional level and sharpened my mind to allow me to handle many kinds of problems . . . . The University has been and continues to be an important part of our family life. . . . I feel that this handsome structure adds to the beauty of our Capital City, which for me is an added plus."

President Elliott, in dedicating the hall, commented, "The fundamental purpose of the university is twofold and it may be understood most clearly as first, helping the student

(Continued on back)

BOARD OF TRADE SPONSORS TWO SUMMER WORK PROGRAMS

The Greater Washington Board of Trade is sponsoring two summer employment programs that may be of special interest to university departments.

The Summer Jobs for Youth Program sponsors area high school students to work in local organizations.

The Summer Work/Education Externship program sponsors junior and senior high school faculty and guidance counselors who wish to augment their professional development by providing a paid four-week summer work experience with a local employer.

For more information on either of these two programs, call Sue Bilsky, employment manager, Personnel Services, Ext. 4484.

(Continued from front)

and economically. . . .If as a former history professor, I could make one single wish for the Reagan Administration, I would wish that the President and his team had a better sense of history. . . .I believe that we will enhance American power and prestige in Latin America by halting the present interventionalist policy and choosing once again the policy of the Good Neighbor and the Alliance for Progress. . . .Instead of military advisors and guns and marines, let us send to Central America surplus food for the hungry, teachers for the illiterate, and health and sanitation workers for the sick."

Mary Hatwood Futrell, President of the National Education Association, addressing the graduates of the School of Education and Human Development, challenged them to get involved in the political arena involving education issues. "Education is, always has been, and always will be political," she said. "You have to join in the political give-and-take than creates public policy in our nation. . . .There is only one way to conquer such frustrations (as low salaries and under supplied and overcrowded workplaces)-you must fight back. You must stand up for what you've learned and what you believe. . . .Few of you will probably 'get rich' but in the long run, your careers will be remembered in the lives of the young people you touch and shape."

Calvin D. Linton, retiring Dean of the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences, speaking at that school's commencement, said, "The child's question, 'Where are we going?' is not naive but profound--not irrelevant but central to our existance as human beings." He went on, "It is the destination of a journey, not its speed, which determines its wisdom. You have spent some years getting answers, but most of the answers have to do with quantity, not quality or purpose. . . . If you, as time goes on, feel your institutional education has left a kind of vacancy. . .because it has not tried to answer the deeper questions about life's meaning, purpose, and destiny, it's a sure sign you are maturing."

University Trustee L. Stanley Crane, chairman and chief executive officer, Consolidated Rail Corporation, asserted that America has not fallen behind Germany and Japan in production and marketing innovations, but that America's production costs are too high, and government support and protection of industry in other countries have imposed competitive disadvantages on American industries. He stated that management and the American worker are the key to regaining America's competitive advantage." The United States is still ahead of the rest of the world in technology, (but). . .we have lost ground in another fundamental area. . .management. Management is where America needs to become more competitive again. . .We need to make more productive use of the American worker. . .through cooperation rather than confrontation."

ACADEMIC PUBLICATIONS SEEKS A COPY OF WHO'S WHO

If any university office has a retired copy of volume 1 (A-K) of Who's Who, Academic Publications would be very glad to have it. Any edition later than 1972 would be welcome. Call Ext. 6310.

COMMENCEMENT--Dr. Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association, center, receiving the hood of the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service at the May 6 ceremony of School of Education and Human Development, was aided by Assistant Dean Robert L. Baker, left, and President Lloyd H. Elliott. Dr. Futrell is a university alumna (M.A.Ed. 1968).

(Continued from front)

to develop and second, helping the general citizenry by preparing people who can work more effectively on society's problems.

"In no place are these words more fitting than for the dedication of The Theodore N. Lerner Hall-a place and a building where men and women from all parts of this country and from the far corners of the world will learn about and be taught in one of our most highly respected and intellectually demanding professions--the law.

"Before proceeding to the naming of this building, I want to thank Mr. and Mrs. Lerner for their generosity which makes this dedication possible," he said.

Mr. Lerner received the degree of Associate in Arts from the University in 1948 and the LL.B. in 1950. Three members of his family hold degrees from George Washington: a son, Mark D. Lerner (B.B.A.-1975); a daughter, Maria Lerner Tanenbaum (J.D. 1983); and a son-in-law, Robert K. Tanenbaum (J.D. 1982).

GW UNIVERSITY CLUB BULLETIN

The board of directors of The George Washington University Club and the university administration have agreed to transfer management of the club to the university. The club will continue to offer a distinctive environment for social, cultural and recreational activities and quality food and beverage services.

A joint committee of the club's board of directors and the university administration is presently working to develop a new governance appropriate for the proposed new arrangement.

Both the club's board of directors and the university administration believe that the change will improve the attractiveness of the club so that a large number of university faculty, staff and alumni will be encouraged to be active members. It is hoped that the change will be initiated by June 30, 1984.

NEW PARKING RATES GO INTO EFFECT JULY 1

New Parking rates will go into effect on July 1, 1984 for the next fiscal year. The rate increase is necessitated by the increase in expenses.

The increase will raise the staff/faculty rates $2.00 per month and the daily parking rate will be raised 13 cents.

Student rates will increase 10 cents per parking period which increases the daily rate from $2.15 to $2.25 and the over-time rate from $1.65 to $1.75. The monthly rate will be raised from $64.50 to $68.50. In 1983-84 there were no increases in student rates.

The above rates are exclusive of D.C. tax. A recent survey of rates in the area indicates that the average rates in commercial facilities are higher than the new university rates. The rates for next year are as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Faculty and Staff | |
| Daily (before 5 pm) | $ 2.94 |
| Daily (after 5 pm & weekends) | 2.25 |
| Monthly | 47.00 |
| Monthly (part-time) | 35.00 |
| Annually | 564.00 |
| Students | |
| Daily | 2.25 |
| Overtime (after 5:30 pm and weekends) | 1.74 |
| Monthly | 68.50 |
| Graduate Teaching Fellows, 3rd and 4th Year Medical Students, Resident Assistants | |
| Daily (per day and evening parking) | 2.25 |
| Monthly | 34.25 |
| Visitors | |
| Hourly Rate | 1.93 |
| Over 10 hours | 7.14 |
| Maximum after 5 pm | 2.23 |

(Note: The above rates do not include the 12% D.C. Parking Tax.)

HKLS OFFERS ADVANCED LIFESAVING CLASS

The Department of Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies is offering an advanced lifesaving class, which is certified by the American Red Cross.

The class, which begins today, May 14, will run through Saturday, May 26. Class sessions will be Monday through Friday, from 7 to 8:30 pm, and Saturday from 10 am to 1 pm. The class is open to string swimmers, 15 years of age and older. The cost is $40. A few places in the class may still be open. Call Jean Snodgrass at Ext. 7122.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

EDWARD D. BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, spoke on the program in history and public policy at the meeting of the Organization of American Historians in Los Angeles on April 7. On April 9, he delivered a paper on the development of disability insurance at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

CHARLENE BICKFORD, editor, First Federal Congress Papers Project presented a paper entitled "Piecing Together the Puzzles: Documenting the First Federal Congress," at the Annual Meeting of the Organization of American Historians in Los Angeles, April 7. She also participated in a session entitled "The Court, The Congress, and the Constitution, Scholarly Contributions of Documentary Editing."

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, acted as a moderator at the concluding session of a conference on "Anti-Americanism in Europe," in Florence, Italy, April 12-13. He served as a panelist at the 1984 biennial conference of the European Association for American Studies, in Rome, April 15-19. He also conducted seminars on Anglo-American literacy and cultural issues at the Johns Hopkins University Center in Bologna, April 10, and at the European University Institute in Florence, April 25-26.

DIANE M. DePALMA, assistant director of the Counseling Center, and Farzaneh Houshi, a graduate student in the School of Education, gave a panel presentation entitled "Clinical and Personal Experiences with and Support Groups," with Arnold Medvene of the University of Maryland's Counseling Center, at the American College Personnel Association's national convention in Baltimore, Maryland, April 10.

HOWARD GILLETTE, associate professor of American civilization, recently completed a two-week lecture trip to Delhi, Madras, Hyderabad, and Hardwar in India under the auspices of the United States Information Agency. His lectures covered contemporary American politics and urban development.

FREDERICK GUTHEIM, adjunct professor of urban and regional planning, spoke at a conference on design review organized by the University of Minnesota and the Minneapolis Committee on the Urban Environment, April 26. His topic was "What Design can Learn from the Historic Preservation Experience."

GW

May 21, 1984

GW Report

(366)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

BOARD OF TRUSTEES ELECTS THREE NEW MEMBERS

The Board of Trustees, at its May 17 annual meeting, elected three new members. They are: Oliver T. Carr Jr., who was elected a charter trustee; Marcella Brenner, who was elected an alumni trustee for a three-year term; and Andrew J. Calao, who was elected an alumni trustee for a one-year term. The alumni trustees were nominated by the General Alumni Association.

Oliver T. Carr Jr., a third generation Washingonian, is president of the Oliver T. Carr Company. He attended the University of Maryland as well as The George Washington University. He actively supports the Fellowship Program in the university's Department of Urban and Regional Planning and has served the department as a visiting lecturer in urban development planning. He is a member of the University's Luther Rice Society.

A member of the Urban Land Institute, Mr. Carr was selected as a Washingtonian of the Year for 1976 by Washingtonian magazine because of his interest in the revitalization of the Capital's downtown area. He is currently chairman of the Washington-Baltimore Regional Association. He was president of the Greater Washington Board of Trade in 1979 and currently serves as a member of its board of directors and head of its Downtown Advisory Committee. Other organizations in which he participates in elected or appointed office include boards of Meridian House International, of Washington Trustees of the Federal City Council, of Partners for Livable Places, of the Greater Washington Research Center, the Opthalmic Research Foundation, of American Security Corporation and of Gallaudet College. The Carr Company is a real estate planning, development, leasing and management organization which specializes in commercial and mixed-use development.

Dr. Marcella Brenner, received her doctorate in education from The George Washington University in 1962. She holds a B.S. from the Johns Hopkins University (1934) and an M.A. from American University (1949). She was associate professor of education at the university from 1965 to 1970 and professor of education from 1970 to 1983 when she became professor emeritus. She directed the Master of Arts in Teaching Program for five years and developed the M.A.T. in Museum Education serving as director of the Center for Museum Education from 1976 to 1979. She also directed a Leadership Training Program for prospective school principals and supervisors which was funded by the Ford Foundation. She taught in the schools of Montgomery County, the District of Columbia and Baltimore, Maryland in the years 1930 to 1954. Then followed 10 years as principal of

(Continued on back)

2000 PENNSYLVANIA VISIT--Members of a seminar on preservation and mixed use of buildings that was part of the recent mid-year meeting of the National Association of Realtors, in Washington, D.C., came to 2000 Pennsylvania Avenue as part of the seminar tour. They found the concept of integrating the new and old in the building especially interesting. Arthur L. Richmond, CPU, property manager for 2000 Pennsylvania, (right) is shown talking with members of the group.

WANG USER'S GROUP FORMED

The first meeting of The George Washington University Wang User's Group (GWU-WUG) will be held on Wednesday, May 30, from 9 am to 12 noon in Room 101 of Corcoran Hall.

The principal function of the group will be to provide an opportunity for the exchange of ideas and information concerning the Wang system. Organizers hope the group can also provide a support system for training and development and that it can be a network for information exchange between people who can give each other assistance in finding quick, easy and inexpensive solutions to new problems.

On the agenda for the meeting is the nomination of officers, discussion of ideas, recommendations and problems to be discussed at future meetings and a talk by Brad Mulkern from Wang Laboratories, Inc.

All interested persons are encouraged to attend this meeting.
Call Roxanne B. Everetts, Ext. 6394 for more information.

MEDICAL SCHOOL TUITION TO BE REDUCED IN THE FALL

The Medical School tuition will be reduced for the coming academic year, due to a program of reduction and restraint in administrative and instructional expenses, and to the addition of funds to the medical school endowment. Tuition for first-year medical students will be $18,500, down from the current $18,750. Second- and third-year medical students will also pay tuition of $18,500. Fourth-year tuition will be reduced to $16,900, down from the current cost of $17,000 for those medical students now in their third year.

GW INFORMATION CENTER TO OPEN IN THE FALL

An all-university information center, to be called the GW Information Center, will open in Marvin Center's first floor in the fall.

President Lloyd H. Elliott, in a memorandum to deans, directors and others, said, "It gives me pleasure to announce the establishment . . . of the service.

"Julie Levi has been appointed supervisor. She is now at work organizing this new service which is scheduled to begin operation in the fall.

"The usefulness of the information service will depend very largely on the participation of all segments of the university," he said, adding a word of encouragement to everyone to cooperate with and support the work of the center.

Julie is a former co-director of the Student Advocate Service and a May, 1984, graduate of the School of Education and Human Developmemt with a Bachelor of Arts in Education.

HEATHER FAULKNER TO GIVE FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE

"The Literary Traveler: An Exploration of the Rewarding Interplay Between Tourism and the Classics" will be the subject of June's First Wednesday Lecture, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office. The speaker will be Heather Faulkner, assistant professorial lecturer in English. She will speak Wednesday, June 6, at 8 pm in the third-floor Continental Room of Marvin Center.

Admission is free, as always, but those planning to come should call Ext. 6435 to reserve a place. Dinner, for both members and non-members of the GW University Club, will be served before the lecture. Call Ext. 6610 to make a dinner reservation.

UNIVERSITY RECEIVES GIFTS OF NEARLY SEVEN MILLION

The university has received a record gift of almost six million dollars from the estate of Lyle and Freda Alverson, President Lloyd H. Elliott announced at the May 17 meeting of the Board of Trustees. The amount is the single largest gift ever given to George Washington. Combined with a second bequest of more than $775,000 from the estate of Theodore Rinehart, the two gifts will add nearly seven million dollars to the university's endowment.

"I am particularly pleased to acknowledge the unprecedented bequest of Lyle and Freda Alverson, and the generous gift from the estate of Theodore Rinehart," President Elliott said. "These funds will be used to create two endowed professorships, and provide other benefits, for our National Law Center, and will add substantially to the university endowment, now reaching toward the $160 million level. These gifts provide ever greater opportunities for excellence at GW, and they honor the names and memories of these benefactors of higher education."

Both Lyle Alverson and Theodore Rinehart were graduates of the university's National Law Center.

After earning his J.D. degree from the National Law Center, then called the GW Law School, in 1918, Alverson practiced law in New York City for a number of years. He was appointed by two presidents to serve the United States. President Woodrow Wilson appointed him to the American Commission to Negotiate Peace, 1918-1919, in Paris; he was also special assistant to the American Minister in Prague, 1919-1920. President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed him as executive director of the National Emergency Council in 1937. Mr. Alverson saw active duty as a commissioned Naval officer in World War I and World War II.

Theodore Rinehart received an LL.B. from the National Law Center in 1932. After graduation, he was assistant to the late Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, who was president of The George Washington University at that time. He then moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma, to practice oil and gas law. While serving as vice president for finance and general counsel of the Houston Corporation, Rinehart founded a project which, in 1959, culminated in a $200 million, 2,600 mile natural gas system from Texas to Florida, bringing natural gas to that state for the first time. For many years, he was a member of the law firm of Doerner, Rinehart, & Stuart. In 1981, the university awarded Mr. Rinehart the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws in recognition of his outstanding career in the law of oil and gas corporations, banking and insurance.

GW

(Continued from front)

Lone Oak Elementary School in Montgomery County prior to her coming to George Washington.

A prolific author in the fields of teaching and museum education, she is a consultant to the School Systems of Washington, D.C.; Arlington, Virginia; Montgomery County, Maryland, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; the Ministry of Education of the State of Israel, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and the New Orleans Museum of Art. She is a Fellow of the American Orthopsychiatric Association, a trustee for P.E.F. Israel Endowment Funds; a national trustee of the Baltimore Museum of Art; and chairman of the education committee for the Jewish Day School of Washington, D.C.

Dr. Brenner holds memberships in American Museum Association, National Education Association, Association of Supervision and Curriculum Development, American Association for State and Local History, and the District of Columbia Educational Forum.

Andrew J. Colao is a 1984 graduate of the School of Government and Business Administration. He received the degree of Bachelor of Accounting with distinction at the May 6 SGBA commencement. He is a member of Beta Alpha Psi, national accounting fraternity. He was captain of the GW Varsity Baseball Team for the 1983-1984 year and a member of the team beginning in 1981. He held the GW Varsity Baseball Athletic Scholarship in 1983-1984 and was the recipient of the GW Athletic Department Academic Excellence Award for 1982-1983. He was on the SGBA Dean's List from 1980 to 1982. He served a year on the Faculty Senate Committee on Athletics (1983). He is a member of the Society for the Advancement of Management and served as treasurer of the Student Booster Club (1982). Active in GW Student Association affairs, he played a leading role on the campaign staff working for the election of GW Student Association President Bob Guarasci and during the past year has served him as a principal advisor. As a participant in the GW Externship Program, administered by the Alumni Relations Office to give students varied off-campus professional experiences, he worked for a period at the Democratic National Committee in the fall of 1983. In 1984, he has been an intern in the office of U.S. Senator Bill Bradley of New Jersey.

L. Stanley Crane, who was elected an Alumni Trustee in 1978, was elected a Charter Trustee.

James McDonald Williams, an Alumni Trustee since 1981, was re-elected to serve for a period of three years.

FREE DROP-IN AEROBICS CLASSES OFFERED

The Recreation and Intramural Department announces that the drop-in aerobics classes, which have proved popular, will be continuing throughout the summer. Classes will meet on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at both 12 noon and 5:30 pm. Sessions are approximately 50 minutes in length and are open to all faculty, staff and summer students. IDs are required to enter the classes.

CONFERENCE ON WOMEN IN NATO FORCES TO BE HELD JUNE 1-2

A Conference on Women in NATO Forces: Historical Perspectives and Future Prospects will be held at the univeristy, Friday and Saturday, June 1 and 2, in the Marvin Center. Sponsored by the GW History and Public Policy Program, the conference is designed in part to show how history contributes to public policy analysis. Associate Professor of History Edward D. Berkowitz is director of the University's Program in History and Public Policy. Professor of American History Linda Grant DePauw is serving as convener of the conference.

Program participants will speak on both historical and current topics on women as part of fighting forces. Subject areas to be discussed include the women in European warfare in ancient times, women in the military from classical times to the 1700s; the sexual division of labor in armies before the 20th century; a historical approach to the military's attempt to use women; and women and myths necessary to the conduct of war. Discussions will follow each presentation.

The GW conference has been scheduled to follow a meeting of NATO senior women officers who will be meeting in Williamsburg, Virginia, the preceding week for the first meeting on American soil of the Executive Committee on Women in NATO Forces. Many of the officers from that meeting are expected to attend the June 1-2 conference.

Admission is free of charge and the public is invited, but pre-registration is requested. For more information, call Linda Grant DePauw at 892-4388.

DR. HAROLD BRIGHT HONORED BY FACULTY SENATE MAY 4

Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Harold F. Bright was honored with a resolution of appreciation at the May 4 meeting of the Faculty Senate.

The resolution, read by President Lloyd H. Elliott, said, in part, "Whereas, Harold Frederick Bright has earned and held the respect, gratitude, and affection of all the varied components of this complex academic community, and Whereas, his service to the Faculty Senate as elected member, ex officio member, colleague, and friend richly deserve acknowledgement and applause; therefore be it resolved by the Faculty Senate of The George Washington University that the following citation be issued: . . . in recognition of his service as vice president of the Faculty Assembly, as presiding officer at many meetings of the Faculty Senate (many of them protracted despite his best efforts), and as a helpful and productive member of Senate Committees; especially in recognition of his balanced perspective, his honesty and forthrightness, and his (usually) unfailing good humor that have marked his relationship with the Faculty Senate and its Executive Committee; upon the occasion of the retirement of a valued colleague and friend, the Faculty Senate of The George Washington University cites Harold Frederick Bright for distinguished service."

CARLETON D. SMITH HONORARY TRUSTEE DIES

Honorary Trustee Carleton D. Smith died April 27 in Naples, Florida. He had served as a member of the university's Board of Trustees from 1958 to 1980, when he became an honorary trustee. As a member of the Board, he served on the Executive Committee, the Committee on University Development and as chairman of the Committee on University Trusteeship.

Born in Winterset, Iowa, in 1905, he was graduated from Winterset High School and attended The George Washington University for three years from 1922 to 1927. He joined NBC in Washington in 1931 and was White House announcer during President Franklin D. Roosevelt's term, introducing him for all of his "fireside chats."

Honorary Trustee Smith had a long career with the National Broadcasting Company and the Radio Corporation of America, serving principally in Washington and New York. In 1960, he became Washington vice president for RCA and held this position until his retirement in 1967.

Active in business and civic affairs in Washington, he served as the general campaign chairman of the first United Givers Fund drive in Washington in 1956. A charter member of the Radio and Television Correspondents Association, he was also a trustee and founding member of the Federal City Council.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, was interviewed by ARD German Television, on the cultural backround of Chinese American Relations, April 26.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, was interviewed by Mike Wallace on "60 Minutes," April 1, regarding the role of social sciences in 'loading' juries.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, was interviewed April 18 by Reuters News Service regarding the international legal implications of the shooting incident at the Libyan Embassy in London.

PUBLICATIONS

LYNN BARNETT, assistant director of the ERIC Clearinghouse on Higher Education, an introduction entitled "Indexing and Retrieval," to the 10th edition of the Thesaurus of ERIC Desriptors, Winter, 1984.

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, a chapter, "Management Development in the Public Sector," in the Management Development and Training Handbook, edited by Bernard Taylor and Gordon Lippitt, McGraw-Hill, London, 1984.

BEN BURDETSKY, professor of personnel and labor relations, and MARVIN S. KATZMAN, assistant professor of business administration, an article, "The Strike: A Weapon Whose Time has Passed?" in The Executive Manager, April, 1984.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, an article, "'Not the Way of Poetry': The Poetics of Experience in the Sung Dynasty," in Chinese Literature: Essays, Articles, Reviews, Vol. 4, No. 2, pp. 199-212.

JOHN EFTIS, professor of engineering and applied science, a paper, "Influence of Load Biaxality on the Fracture Characteristics of Two Cillinear Cracks," in the International Journal of Fracture, 1984, Martinus Nijhoff Publishers.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, has had his book Modern Organizations (1964) translated into Indonesian by the University of Indonesia Press.

JOSEPH A. GREENBERG, professor of education, an article, "Proprietary Schools and Institutional Research," in the Journal of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools, Spring Quarterly.

ROBERT E. KNOWLTON, associate professor of biology, and DONALD F. KIRBY, (M.D. 1979), a paper, "Salinity Tolerance and Sodium Balance in the Prawn Palaemonetes pugio Holthuis, in relation to other Palaemonetes spp." published in Comparitive Biochemistry and Physiology, Vol. 77A, No. 3.

JAMES WILLIS ROBB, professor of Romance languages, an article: "Alfonso Reyes y Germman Arciniegas: dos corresponsales e hispanoamericanistas afines," in Thesaurus, Instituto Caro y Cuervo, Bogota, Columbia, XXXVIII (1983), pp. 1-10.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Science Communication Studies. (Responsibilities include performing literature studies, cataloguing documents for input into the Biblios information data base, supervising students who perform clerical duties, supervising literary literature retrieval by students, maintaining up-to-date information on grantees to the Life Sciences Division, NASA Headquarters, and preparing subject bibliographies.) Contact, Linda Suiter, Science Communication Studies, Ext. 4801.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Medicine. (Infectious diseases research program in topical medicine, investigation of immunological aspects of acquired resistance to parasite infection in a mouse model. Laboratory experience, knowledge of sterile culture techniques desirable. Techniques of cellular immunology, short-term tissue culture, basic data analysis will be stressed.) Contact Dr. Stephanie James, Ext. 3534.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Statistics and Computer Sciences. ( Responsible for SAS data analysis, PL/I program development, data and tape management, and supervision of production runs for a nationwide medical research survey. IBM 4331 on-site facilities. B.A. required plus at least one year related experience.)

Send resumes to Sonnia Tidwell, The Biostatistics Center, 7979 Old Georgetown Road, Bethesda, Md. 29810.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

June 4, 1984

GW Report

(367)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

BOARD ELECTS DR. PHELPS ASSOCIATE PROVOST, CONTINUES PORTER COMPROMISE

Dr. Marianne R. Phelps, who has been serving as assistant provost for affirmative action since 1976, was elected to the post of associate provost by the Board of Trustees at its May 17 meeting. She is currently also serving as chairman of the university's Commission for the Year 2000. Dr. Phelps came to the university in 1965 as assistant dean of women and served as dean of women from 1968 until 1969 when she became associate dean of students. She was appointed dean of students in 1970 and served in that capacity until 1976. She received a B.A. in English with distinction from the University of Michigan (1961); an M.S. in English (1964) and an M.A. in Counseling and Behavioral Studies (1965), both from the University of Wisconsin. She received a Master of Philosophy degree from The George Washington University in 1973 and completed her doctoral studies in the area of American thought and civilization receiving her Ph.D. from the university in 1980. She will assume her new position July 1.

In other action, the Board named Joseph Y. Ruth assistant vice president for admissions and student records, and Margaret P. Trexler assistant vice president for faculty personnel and academic publications. Each of them has been serving as an assistant provost in the areas named. This organizational realignment will become effective July 1.

In further action, the Board approved the continuation of the process called the Porter Compromise. The process recommended by the Governing Board of the General Alumni Association in 1980, and adopted by the Board in 1981, provided that for each of the following three years the number of Alumni Trustees nominated each year be increased from two to three. With the approval of the recommendation, the first of these trustees was elected for a three-year term, the second for a two-year term, and the third, for a one-year term. The Board approved a change in the process which will result in each of the trustees chosen in this way serving a full three-year term, making it necessary to elect only one such new trustee annually as long as the plan remains in effect. The Board, through its Committee on University Trusteeship, will determine from time to time whether or not this process is producing the desired results.

INDO-AMERICAN FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM APPLICATIONS DUE

The Indo-U.S. Subcommission on Education and Culture has announced the Indo-American Fellowship Program for 1985-1986. The deadline for applications is June 15. Prospective applicants should contact the Council for International Exchange of Scholars, 11 Dupont Circle, Suite 300, Washington, D.C. 20036, (202) 833-4985.

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARIES President William D. Johnson, left, is shown (l to r) with Dean of Students Gail S. Hanson, president-elect of the Friends for 1985-1986; Librarian Designate Sharon Rogers; and Associate Director of Alumni Relations Ronald W. Howard, who will become president of the Friends for 1984-1985 on July 1.

WASHINGTON COLOR SCHOOL ARTISTS WORKS IN DIMOCK

The Dimock Gallery, Art Department, will present an exhibition of paintings by artists associated with the Washington Color School from Thursday, June 7, through Friday, August 10. The exhibition will feature works dating from the 1950s to the present, selected primarily from The George Washington University Permanent Collection.

The Washington Color School is a movement which traces its beginnings to the 1950s when painter Morris Louis befriended Kenneth Noland. Their association and the influence of critic Clement Greenberg, who introduced them to the work of New York artist Helen Frankenthaler, engendered the creative energy which gave Washington a unique place in the history of modern painting.

Artists represented in the exhibition will include Morris Louis, Kenneth Noland, Paul Reed, Thomas Downing, Alma Thomas, Howard Mehring, Willem de Looper, Sam Gilliam, Michael Clark, Robert Newman and Leon Berkowitz, among others.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION AWARDS GW $100,000

The Special Education Department of the School of Education and Human Developmemt is one of 15 winners out of 180 competitors in the Division of Personnel Preparation's Special Projects Competition, sponsored by the Office of Special Education Programs of the U.S. Department of Education.

GW has been awarded $100,000 for its proposal entitled, "Year One: A Training System for Infant Service Providers," a collaborative project between the GW Special Education Department, the neonatology unit of the GW Medical Center and GWTV. The grant is for the first year of a three-year project, which began June 1.

The project will produce three training manuals and video-cassettes about the neonatal, the community and the family experiences of handicapped and chronically ill infants in the first year of life. The "training systems" are intended to close the information gap between the medical community and the special education and therapeutic communities. Linda Tsantis, associate professor of special education, is principal investigator and Carole Brown, research assistant, is project director.

DR. SHARON ROGERS SPEAKS TO FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARIES

"What is happening is moving us away from traditional concepts to see the library as a vital center, as an information network," Dr. Sharon Rogers, GW librarian designate, told members of the Friends of the Libraries at their well-attended annual meeting May 18.

"The books will still be there," she said, "but they will play a much smaller role." Taking note of the Gelman Library's recent acquisiton of its millionth volume, she went on to a discussion of the use of new technology in libraries, particularly computers. She stated, "With an on-line system that will be very visible, there are new kinds of storage with laser disks and all the scenarios of the brave new world are really here now. With the expansion of the focus of scholarly activities, we have new responsibilities for providing new service....The library will not only be books. We need to know how to define what the collection is. Now we are learning to talk about acquisition and access budgeting. What the collection is, is what clients have access to," Dr. Rogers explained. "I am just delighted to be able to share in the development of the Gelman Library," she said.

Describing the roles of the Friends of the Libraries as "very important," she outlined them as recognizing, understanding and enjoying the coming changes, as interpreting them to others and as giving continued financial support. Associate Provost William D. Johnson, president of Friends of the Libraries, presided at the meeting.

CONGRESSMAN SHANNON STRESSES THE IMPORTANCE OF LAW TODAY

"Our sense of ourselves, our spark of idealism and confidence is at risk...because our tradition of adherence to law is threatened," U.S. Representative James M. Shannon of Massachusetts told graduates at the May 20 commencement of the National Law Center.

Referring to his own day of graduation from George Washington in 1975 with a law degree, he said that what he hoped then was to go from a seat at graduation to a seat in Congress and to be present when crucial votes were taken, "to be one of the members who speak for the principles of law. But it didn't happen that way," he went on. "And this time, I watched it happening. The vote to fund military operations in Central America was an approval, like Tonkin, of an action-in-progress."

He cited the history of American idealism and commitment to the rule of law and voiced doubts as to the line of thinking which brought about the situation whereby Congress gave such a vote of approval.

"The United States, whose principles are so respected, whose ideals of law and justice are a model for nations trying to define themselves,... the United States...will not support the change from terrorism and civil war to peace and self-determination by funding the struggles of military factions within the Salvadoran government. We should help, in concert with other democratic countries of the Americas, to resolve the problems that incite revolution. And we should do it openly, with respect for the law as our guideline for action," the congressman stated. "The United States was founded upon the power, and the stability and self-confidence of the law. If we suspend the law, we will lose the power of our ideals."

"You are leaving the world of study and entering the world of practice. The principles by which we have defined ourselves are still valued. Use your knowledge to remind us that the rule of law expresses the spirit of civilization and help us, please, to live by it," he told the new lawyers.

FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE IS THIS WEEK, JUNE 6

Heather Faulkner, assistant professorial lecturer in English, is June's first Wednesday lecturer. She will speak on "The Literary Traveler: An Exploration of the Rewarding Interplay between Tourism and the Classics" on Wednesday, June 6, at 8 pm in the third-floor Continental Room of Marvin Center. The lecture is sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office. Call Ext. 6435 to reserve space and Ext. 6610 for dinner reservations in the GW University Club, beginning at 6:30 pm.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JOHN G. ALLEE, professor of English, attended the 74th annual meeting of the Society for Advancement of Scandinavian Study, May 3-5, at the University of Washington in Seattle. He presented a paper entitled, "The Mind (and Art) of the author of Kroka-Refs Saga."

MURIEL ATKIN, associate professor of history, presented a paper entitled "Soviet-Iranian Relations," to the Iran Working Group of the International Security Studies Program of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, May 18.

RAYMOND R. FOX, professor of engineering and applied science spoke on a panel for "Growth Management as a Hurricane Damage Mitigation Strategy," at the National Hurricane Conference in Tampa, Florida, April 26. He also spoke on "Cost Effectiveness of Elevation and Flood Proofing of New Structures," at the Interagency Seminar for Improving the Effectiveness of Floodplain Management, April 30, in Washington, D.C. The event was co-sponsored by the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Interagency Floodplain Management Task Force.

JOSEPH A. GREENBERG, professor of education, presented a paper entitled "Climate Setting Techniques for Adult Learners," at the Annual Conference of the National Society for Performance and Instruction in Atlanta, Georgia, April 24.

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr Professor of Multinational Management, was the banquet speaker at the conference on "Capital Markets in Kuwait and the Arabian Gulf," in Kuwait, April 30-May 2. His address was entitled "Outlook for the Banking Sector in Kuwait and the Arabian Gulf." HOSSEIN ASKARI, professor of business administration, spoke on "The World Debt Crisis and Gulf Country Capital Markets." FARIBORZ GHADAR, professor of business administration, spoke on "The Opportunity for Developing Banking and Financial Service Sectors in the Gulf." YOON S. PARK, professor of business administration, spoke on "International Capital Markets and the Role of Financial Institutions in the Gulf." The conference was jointly sponsored by the Faculty of Commerce at Kuwait University, International Business Programs at George Washington University, and the Central Bank of Kuwait. A first conference of its kind in the Middle East, it was attended by more than 300 banking and financial figures.

MURLI M. GUPTA, associate professor of mathematics, gave a lecture entitled "On Higher Order Finite Difference Schemes for Elliptic Equations," at the University of Maryland, College Park, May 10.

GILBERT R. HERER, professor of child health and development and of audiology, has been elected Vice President for Clinical Affairs of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association. This organization for audiologists and speech-language pathologists has membership of 40,000. His three-year term on the association's executive board begins January, 1985.

PETER P. HILL, professor of history, sent comments on three papers delivered as a session entitled "Theory and Practice of Early American Diplomacy," April 5, during the Annual Meeting of the Organization of American Historians in Los Angeles. His comments were read by Professor Alexander DeConde of the University of California at Santa Barbara.

CAROL HOARE, assistant professor of education and coordinator of the Human Services Program, presented a concept paper entitled "Articulation Programs in Human Services: Two Models of Community College and University Partnership," at the annual conference of the Southern Organization of Human Service Educators in Atlanta, Georgia April 12-15. The conference was hosted by the Georgia State University Department of Mental Health.

LANCE J. HOFFMAN, associate professor of engineering and applied science, spoke on communications and computer vulnerability at the Electro-Culture 1984 conference of the Institute for Electrical and Electronics Engineers Society for Social Implications of Technology, May 1. He also gave the keynote speech for the "Computers in School Education" track of the Association of Educational Data Systems Convention May 9, and testified before a House of Representatives subcommittee regarding computer system vulnerability in April.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, chaired the open forum panel held at the American Society of International Law's annual meeting, April 13 in Washington, D.C.

MARVIN S. KATZMAN, assistant professor of business administration, gave a lecture entitled "Human Resources Impact of Robots," at the annual conference of the Mid Atlantic Region of the Data Processing Management Association, in Lanham, Maryland.

MAUREEN KEARNEY, staff psychologist of the University Counseling Center, presented a paper entitled "Construction and Validation of a Scale to Measure Defensive Externality in Success Situations," at the Eastern Psychological Association's Convention in Baltimore, Maryland, April 15.

JOHN KENDRICK, professor of economics, spoke to the National Economists Club on the economic outlook for the coming year, March 23; presented a paper at a New York University conference on group financial incentives, March 30; he attended a committee meeting of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business in Denver, Colorado March 28; he attended a meeting of the executive committee the Southern Economic Association, April 12; he spoke to research staff members of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank, April 13; he met with the board of Directors of the American Productivity Center, in Washington, April 17; and he spoke to a Cato Institute conference at the Washington Hilton, on "Economic Policy and Productivity Growth," April 27.

HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, professor and dean of engineering and applied sciences, was recently appointed a member of the National Research Council's Panel on Microcomputers for Developing Countries. Panelists will participate in workshops and studies on the application of microcomputers in developing countries.

BERNARD MERGEN, professor of American civilization, assisted in coordinating the European Regional Program on American Studies, a program of the United States Information Agency and arranged by the Visitor Program Service of Meridian House International.

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, presented a paper entitled "Impact of New Computing Systems on Computational Mechanics and Flight-Vehicle Structures Technology," at the AGARD Structures and Materials Panel Meeting held in Siena, Italy, April 2-4. The paper will be published in an AGARD Report. He presented a paper entitled "Recent Advances in the Application of Variational Methods to Nonlinear Problems," at the Seventh Invitational Symposium on the Unification of Finite Elements, Finite Differences and Calculus of Variations, held at the University of Connecticut, Storrs, May 4.

DENNIS S. O'LEARY, Dean for clinical affairs and acting medical director of the university hospital, has been awarded the Humanitarian of the Year Award by the Sertoma Club of Washington, in recognition of the outstanding skills he displayed in the effort to save the life of President Reagan.

GAIL PASTER, associate professor of English, participated in a seminar entitled "Shakespeare and the Classical Tradition," and presented a paper entitled "The Tempest and 'Widow Dido,'" at the annual meeting of the Shakespeare Association of America, April 19-21, in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, director of the University Counseling Center, presented a paper entitled "A Universal Method for Evaluating Psychotherapy Service Delivery Systems: The Attrition Curve," at the 55th annual meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association on April 14, in Baltimore, Maryland.

LEO RIBUFFO, associate professor of history, gave a lecture entitled "The 'New Christian Right' in Historical Perspective," at New College of the University of South Florida, in Sarasota, Florida, April 27.

SAM ROTHMAN, professor of engineering administration, acted as co-chair for a workshop entitled "Participation of Universities in Defense R & D," attended by senior officials of universities, industry and the Department of Defense at GW on April 10-11.

LOIS G. SCHWOERER, professor of history, commented on two papers at the joint meeting of the North American Conference on British Studies and the Pacific Coast Conference on British Studies, in Asilomar, March 23-25. She also delivered a paper entitled "Debate on the Williamite Monarchy: Theory and Practice," at the annual meeting of the American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies, April 26-29, in Boston, Massachusetts, KATHY L. SIMS, director of the Career Services Center, was a panelist for "Career Centers and Counseling Centers: A Complex Relationship." The panel was part of the American College Personnel Association's annual conference in Baltimore, Maryland, on April 9.

ABBIE O. SMITH, assistant dean, Center for Continuing Education in Washington, presented "A Decentralized Approach to Marketing Continuing Education Programs," at the National University Continuing Education Conference, in Atlanta, Georgia, April 16. She served on the 1984 National Conference Program Planning Committee and chaired the Women's Education Division, and has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Association for a two-year term.

ROBERTA SPALTER-ROTH, assistant for curriculum and grants development in the Women's Studies Program and Policy Center, participated in a panel with Dr. Arthur Norton of the U.S. Bureau of the Census and Dr. Jessie Bernard, at the Columbia University Club of Washington, D.C., April 28. The panel was part of an all-day symposium on George Orwell, 1984, the State's role in our lives, and the future.

ROBERT C. WATERS, professor of engineering administration, participated in the World Conference on Education in Applied Engineering and Engineering Technology, in Cologne, Federal Republic of Germany, April 16-19. He presented a paper entitled, "Development of Engineering Management Education Programs in the United States," and chaired a session and led a luncheon on engineering management education.

MAIDA WITHERS, associate professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, brought her Dance Construction Company to the Smithsonian Institution's Resident Associate Program, May 12, for an evening of Dances on Men and Women.

HELEN BATES YACOBSON, professor emeritus of Russian, was awarded a Certificate of Appreciation by the Greater Washington Association of Teachers of Foreign Languages, at their annual banquet at Georgetown University, May 5, in recognition for her role in establishing the founding principles and serving as the first president of the Greater Washington Association.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

POST-DOCTORAL RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Department of Physiology. (Studies on drug transport mechanisms in gastro-intestinal epithelia. Experience of synthetic membrane system, kinetic modeling, or epithelial physiology.) Send CV and names of three references to Dr. Michael J. Jackson, Department of Physiology, George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

PUBLIC SERVICE LIBRARIAN, Jacob Burns Law Library. (MLS and JD degrees required. Demonstrated administrative and supervisory skills, professional creativity and initiative, ability to communicate and work effectively with faculty, students and staff, previous relevant experience in a large academic law library preferred. Responsible for collection review, reference services, research assistance, and interlibrary cooperation, managing department, planning and coordinating new services. May require evening and weekend hours.) Contact Anita K. Head, George Washington University Law Library, Washington, D.C. 20052.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

June 11, 1984

GW Report

(368)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

GW TO HOST CONFERENCE ON PRISON INNOVATION ON MONDAY, JUNE 16

A conference titled "Factories With Fences: The Prison Industries Approach to Correctional Dilemmas" will be held at the university on Monday, June 18, from 9 am to 5 pm in Lisner Auditorium.

Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger is the featured speaker. He will give his address at 9:45 am.

The conference will focus on how American prisons can solve problems such as high costs, idleness and overcrowding by converting what have been called "our human warehouses" into "factories with fences." Participants will include opinion leaders and policy makers from a range of public and private organizations that are concerned with the urgent need for dealing with the nation's correctional problems.

Sponsored by The George Washington University and the Brookings Institution Advanced Study Program, the conference is supported in part by the German Marshall Fund, which last summer helped finance a tour of Scandinavian prison industries by 12 American leaders. Prison-made products and other exhibits will be on display during the conference.

Following opening remarks by President Lloyd H. Elliott and Brookings Institution President Bruce K. MacLaury, a film and the address by the Chief Justice, there will be a summary of a January "Factories With Fences" conference by National Can Corporation President Frank

(Continued on back)

DR. THOMAS W. HOLLAND DIES

Dr. Thomas W. Holland, 83, professor emeritus of economics, died May 14, in the GWU Medical Center. He was associated with the university from 1955 to 1966 when he was awarded emeritus status.

At the university, he developed a series of courses dealing with all aspects of labor relations in the United States and selected foreign countries. He was a former official of the National Labor Relations Board, the Labor Department and other federal agencies. He served as vice chairman of the Atomic Energy Labor-Management Panel.

Dr. Holland held a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Michigan, an LL.B. from Columbia University and a doctorate in economics from the University of Wisconsin. He is survived by his wife, Marion Hall Holland of Chevy Chase, five children and eight grandchildren.

Expressions of sympathy may be sent in the form of contributions to the Gelman Library Book Fund and sent to the Gelman Library, Room 201, The George Washington University, Washington, D.C. 20052.

MUSICAL MURAL--Stephen Wellman, studio instructor in voice, stands before the mural in the Music Department, done by two MFA candidates in the visual communications program, Vudhina Chuchom and Qwanchai Rochanarat, both of Thailand. The mural is seven feet high and 30 feet long and is made up of names of composers and silhouettes of musical instruments in black on white.

SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES TO BE IN EFFECT AT UNIVERSITY PARKING GARAGE JUNE 24

On Sunday, June 24, there will be a power outage in the University Parking Garage between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The reason for this is that a major switchgear test of the garage is scheduled for that time.

Since the garage is the central parking area for the campus on weekends for hospital patients, visitors and staff, it will be kept in operation during the test. Parking supervisors, attendants and security personnel will be at the garage during the test period in order to minimize inconvenience to parkers and to provide security.

Parkers entering the garage must use the I Street entrance, marked "Visitors Parking."

During the five-hour period there may be some inconvenience but it is hoped that it can be kept to a minimum.

DC SPECIAL OLYMPICS DANCE MARATHON AT GW JUNE 16, 17

The Sixth Annual Special Olympics Dance Marathon will be held at the university's Marvin Center Saturday and Sunday, June 16 and 17.

The 30-hour marathon will begin at noon Saturday and end at 6 pm Sunday. Dancers must be sponsored at a minimum fee of $12 for each hour they dance. There will be free meals during rest breaks as well as entertainment and many prizes.

All proceeds will go directly to D.C. Special Olympics to support their program of recreation and sports training for mentally retarded children and adults. The marathon is sponsored by Lifespring, GW SERVE, the GW Program Board and WEZR Radio of Fairfax, Virginia.

Catherine Redden of GW TV is serving as captain of the GW Liaison Committee for the event. To sign up to dance or to sponsor a dancer, call her at Ext. 4452.

OFFICER OF THE QUARTER--Patrolman Stephen B. Suttles, left, was selected Officer of the Quarter for the period January through March, 1984. The letter informing him of the selection described him as a "mature, intelligent and reliable officer." Patrolman Suttles, who has been with the Department of Safety and Security eight years, is shown with Director Byron M. Matthai Jr.

JEANNE HUMPHREY BLOCK DISSERTATION AWARD PROGRAM

Radcliffe College has announced a program of doctoral dissertation grants to support women graduate students researching women's lives. The program is funded by the Jeanne Block Memorial Fund and will award two grants of $750 this year.

Research proposals should focus on some aspect of girls' or womens' psychological development, the development of sex differences or some developmental issue of particular concern to women. Also, the proposed project must in some way draw on or contribute to the resources of the Henry A. Murray Research Center, A Center for the Study of Lives, at Radcliffe College.

Applicants must be enrolled in a doctoral program in a relevant field and must have completed their coursework by the time the award is to be made. Deadline for proposals is June 30. More detailed information is available from the GW Graduate Fellowship Information Center, Gelman Library 621D, Ext. 6217.

GELMAN LIBRARY BOOK DROP NOW OPEN AROUND THE CLOCK

To enable Gelman Library patrons to return library materials more conveniently, the outside depository at the library's entrance is now open 24 hours a day. Materials on regular loans (three-week, three-month) should be returned only when the library is open. This service will be provided on an experimental basis during the summer and will be evaluated with the possibility of continuation in the fall.

TOUR OF WASHINGTON'S EARLY SUBURBS PLANNED FOR JUNE 24

The university's Washington Area Studies Summer Program has planned a tour of Washington's early suburbs for Sunday, June 24, between 11 am and 4 pm.

This will be a walking tour of Washington's earliest suburban developments: Uniontown in Anacostia, site of Frederick Douglass' home on Cedar Hill; LeDroit Park, at the original boundary of the L'Enfant city, next to Howard University; and Mt. Pleasant, developed at the end of the street car line in what had been Washington County. As a historic district, each community represents a special stage in the evolution of a local suburban ideal, modified and adapted to changing urban conditions.

Howard F. Gillette, associate professor of American civilization, will lead the tour. The tour bus will leave from and return to the Marvin Center. There is a fee of $7. The tours are open to the public. For registration information, call Ext. 7565.

(Continued from front)

Considine. Panel discussions of prison industry issues will come next.

A discussion on current issues in corrections will be led by U.S. Department of Justice Associate Attorney General D. Lowell Jensen. Panelists include U.S. Senator Mark O. Hatfield (R-OR); U.S. Representative Robert W. Kastenmeier (D-WI); Illinois State Representative Aaron Jaffe; and Department of Justice Office of Justice Assistance, Assistant Attorney General Lois H. Herrington. This discussion will be from 11:15 am to 12:15 pm.

A discussion on the economic impact of prison industry with business and labor representatives will be guided by William C. Norris, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Control Data Corporation. Discussants will include the vice chairman of the board of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Frank Morsani; and Zephyr Products President Fred Braun Jr.

During the afternoon, there will be a discussion of the value and purpose of prison industries by corrections officials and a discussion of the role of the community by media and community leaders.

The conference is free of charge and the university community is invited. Prior registration is requested. A preliminary outline of the day's program and pre-registration forms are available at the Division of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, 2003 G Street, NW.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, was interviewed on May 21, on WAMU's Fred Fisk program. The topic was U.S. foreign policy and the Persian Gulf situation. On May 17, he was interviewed by Reuters Press on the international and legal implications of Iranian-Iraqi attacks on shipping in the Persian Gulf.

CHRISTOPHER STEN, associate professor of English, was interviewed by Voice of America on the 100th anniversary of the publication of Mark Twain's Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, on May 14.

PUBLICATIONS

ED BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, an essay, "Changing the Meaning of Welfare Reform," in Maintaining the Safety Net, edited by John Weicher, published by the American Enterprise Institute in 1984. An excerpt of the essay appeared in the Washington Post in the column "For The Record," on May 28.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, an article, "'Not the Way of Poetry:' The Poetics of Experience on the Sung Dynasty." in CLEAR (Chinese Literature: Essays, Articles, Reviews,) Vol. 4, No. 2, pp. 199-212.

DENNIS E. GALE, associate professor of urban and regional planning, a book, Neighborhood Revitalization and the Post-industrial City, published by Lexington Books, spring 1984.

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr professor of multinational management, an article, "Can a Trade War be Avoided?" in the book International Telecommunications and Public Policy, edited by Christopher Sterling, Communications Press, Incorporated, 1984.

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, a paper entitled, "Penalty Finite Element Formulation for Curved Elastica," in the Journal of Engineering Mechanics, ASCE, Vol. 110, No. 5, May 1984, pp. 694-712. The paper was co-authored with J. M. Peters.

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, professor of psychology and director of the University Counseling Center, a short biography and two articles, "Conflict Resolution Therapy," and "Expressive Arts," in the Encyclopedia of Psychology, published by John Wiley, 1984.

PILAR SAENZ, associate professor of Spanish, a book, The Life and Works of Eugenio d'Ors, Michigan, International Book Publishers, as part of the series "Studies in Language and Literature."

CAROL B. STAPP, instructor in education, edited the Winter 1984 issue of Roundtable Reports: The Journal of Museum Education. She also wrote the lead article, entitled "Defining Museum Literacy."

CARL STEINER, professor of German, contributed to an article, "Lion Feuchtwanger's Signifigance and Legacy," in the commemorative volume Feuchtwanger Today: Thoughts and Reflections on his 100th Birthday, (Los Angeles, the Feuchtwanger Institute for Exile Studies) 1984, pp. 115-118.

RICHARD D. WALK, professor of psychology, five articles, "Illusions," "Perceptual Distortions," "Perceptual Organization," "Perceptual Style," and "Perceptual Transactionalism," in the Encyclopedia of Psychology, edited by Raymond J. Corsini, Wiley-Interscience, New York, 1984.

DEWEY D. WALLACE, professor of religion, an article, "Charles Oliver Brown at Dubuque: A Study in the Ideals of Midwestern Congregationalism in the Late Nineteenth Century," in Church History, Vol. 53, March, pp. 46-60.

ROBERT C. WATERS, professor of engineering administration, an article, "Reflections on Organizational Change and Contingency Theory," in Engineering Management International, March. The article contrasts his experiences at TRW systems with the contingency theory of management.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JOHN EFTIS, professor of engineering and applied science, DOUGLAS JONES, professor of engineering and applied science, and KEYVAN AHDUT, research assistant, presented a paper entitled, "Application of a Time Independent Cyclic Plasticity Theory for a Titanium Alloy," at the AIAA/ASCE/AHS 25th Structures, Structural Dynamics and Materials Conference, May 15, in Palm Springs, California.

PHILLIP D. GRUB, Aryamehr Professor of Multinational Management, has been elected vice-chairman of the International Trade Division of the National Association of Corporate Directors. He has also been elected to the Board of Directors for the World Trade Center Washington and the World Trade Institute.

HAROLD C. HINTON, professor of international affairs and political science, Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies, testified on U.S.-China nuclear cooperation before the Subcommittee on U.S.-China Trade of the House Committee on Energy and Commerce.

HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, professor and dean of engineering and applied science, has received the Distinguished Service Award as Home Secretary and Councillor, 1978-1984, from the National Academy of Engineering. Election to the National Academy of Engineering is the highest honor engineers can receive from their peers in the United States.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, was a panel member at a conference of the Office of Personnel Management, U.S. Government, May 15.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, was awarded the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) Centennial Medal during the International Conference on Communications, in Amsterdam, May 15. Dr.-Pickholtz also chaired the session on voice/data networks at the conference.

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, presented a paper entitled "Hybrid Analytical Technique for Nonlinear Analysis of Structures," at the AIAA/ASME/ASCE/AHS 25th Structures, Structural Dynamics and Materials Conference, May 14-16, in Palm Springs, California. He also participated in a panel discussion entitled "Finite Element Validation Forum."

ROBERT H. WALKER, professor of American Civilization, served as commentator at the Woodrow Wilson International Center Evening Dialogue, May 24. The subject was, "The Oneida Community: What are its Lessons Today?" This was the first attempt by a group of serious scholars and descendants of the original community to assess the Oneida legacy since the commune became a joint stock company in January of 1881.

JOHN VLACH, associate professor of American Civilization and of anthropology, served as curator for an exhibit called "American Folk Art Today: Traditions of a Plural People," sponsored by the United States Information Agency. The exhibit will tour six Eastern European countries for the next two years.

GRANTS

JUDITH MILLER JONES, director of the National Health Policy Forum, two grants; $120,000 from The Commonwealth Fund, for a seminar series on foundation-sponsored activities to reform the health care system, and $30,990 from the American Cancer Society, Inc., to produce a documentary film entitled "Talking With Your Doctor: A Guide for Cancer Patients and Their Families."

LINDA J. LEAR, associate professorial lecturer in history, $1,000 from the Franklin D. Roosevelt Foundation for support to continue her biography of Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes.

MURRAY H. LOEW, associate professor of engineering, $40,643 from the Department of Defense/Army/U.S. Army Medical Research and Development Command, for research on the pattern recognition of cardiovascular and psychomotor variability in response to pharmacological agents.

HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, professor of engineering and applied science, $114,583 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration/Langley Research Center, for a research program in flight sciences.

DORN McGRATH, professor of urban and regional planning, $8,596 from the Agency for International Development, for a shelter workshop for senior professionals.

CHARLES A. MOSER, professor of Slavic, $27,518 from the National Security Agency, for research on Russian language materials and course development.

GW

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Lipid Research Program. (Data coordinator for clinical trial dealing with cholesterol and cardiovascular disease. B.S. degree, one to two years experience in clinical setting and knowledge of medical terminology required.) Send resume to Donna Embersit, 2150 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Room 314, 20052.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Resource Dynamics Project. (Database management coordinator for Policy Analysis Research Project. Skills should include knowledge of OS JLC and BASIC programming, with considerable experience in both. Familiarity with IBM PC and LOTUS 1-2-3 advantageous.) Contact Dr. R. H. Clark, Staughton Hall Room 303, George Washington University, Washington, D.C. 20052, Ext. 7521.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmitive action employer.

June 25, 1984

GW Report

(369)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Ellen Connorton, assistant editor

CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER CALLS FOR NATIONAL WILL TO CHANGE U.S PENAL INSTITUTIONS

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, speaking at the June 18 national conference on "Factories With Fences" here at the university, called for a national will and a common national objective to change our correctional institutions and to remove the wall of protectionism which now limits the sale of prison-made goods. "We have waited a long time in this country for any firm steps on a broad national level to try to create a national plan and a national will concerning correctional and penal institutions. . . . We know that some prison systems are quite good; we know, candidly, some are very bad. We must identify the best and bring all others up to that level," the chief justice told the some 800 conferees. "The only way I know of to develop a national will on the subject is to have a pattern on which that national will can exert its power. We should draw from the federal and state governments, from the private sector and from the universities, the best minds in the country on this subject, and develop a model or minimum standards. This does not mean another national conference but rather a national task force of experts much as the American Law Institute developed its Model Penal Code. . . . If sufficient funding is not available from the states and the Federal government, I simply cannot believe that the private sector would let this matter go by default once the problem is made clear," he said.

Of the current limitations on the sale of prison-made goods, Chief Justice Burger asked, "Is it not a melancholy thing if we say that we cannot absorb the relatively tiny production of prisoners? We know, of course, that it will be a long, long time under the most favorable conditions before all prison inmates would be qualified to engage in productive work. But when it happens--if it happens--it will be hardly a tiny smudge, a tiny scratch on the Gross National Product. . . . What a blind, negative, bankrupt policy we have followed in saying--or should I say "pretending"--that while we are engaged in trying to transform, to rehabilitate that person, to reform the inmates into useful citizens, we must in the meantime perpetuate artificial barriers and walls, not just walls of concrete, steel, and barbed wire, but walls of economic protectionism. Can there be any rational basis for those walls?"

Congratulating President Lloyd H. Elliott and President Bruce K. MacLaury of the Brookings Institution on the joint sponsorship of the conference, the chief justice commented, "It is within the range of possibility that this conference could turn out to be the most important single meeting of its kind ever held."

He referred to his travels here and abroad including Sweden, Denmark, the Soviet Union and the Peoples' Republic of China, to observe prison systems.

CHIEF JUSTICE WARREN E. BURGER tried on a work glove, part of the exhibit of prison-made goods in Lisner Auditorium during the "Factories With Fences" Conference May 18. President LLoyd H. Elliott, left, looked on.

He noted that problems vary with each country but that the United States could borrow ideas from each of them. "Entirely apart from humanitarian concepts, hard considerations of cost are important," he said. "The enlightened programs of prison production in Arizona, Kansas, Minnesota, Michigan, Texas and other states take some of the high cost of prisons off of the backs of taxpayers and, of course, in the long run reduce the volume of crime."

Chief Justice Burger concluded his remarks by saying that he believes there are men and women, foundations and corporations who will provide the means for a task force of the type he described. "We must harness these enlightened attitudes, public and private, and put them together to change the dismal conditions that we see now in so many of our prisons. You know what must be done and I believe the public will support you if you give them the message" he told his listeners.

Those attending the all-day conference represented a broad cross-section of interested individuals and organizations from the public and private sectors.

GW

PARKING REMINDER

If any contract (payroll deduction) parker does not wish to have deductions after June 30, 1984, parking priviledges should be cancelled as outlined in the brochure for Faculty/Staff Parking. Otherwise, parking fee payroll deductions will be adjusted automatically to reflect the 1984-85 fees.

All permanent occasional, that is daily, parkers must renew their permits between July 2 and August 15. New occasional parking fees become effective July 1, 1984.

MASTER OF ASSOCIATION MANAGEMENT PROGRAM SET UP

The School of Government and Administration has established a Master of Association Management (M.A.M.) degree program which will begin with the fall semester of this year.

George Washington is the first university to offer a master's degree in association management. The degree is designed to meet the continuing educational needs of association executives and to prepare business students for careers with associations.

The M.A.M curriculum is drawn from four departments within SGBA: Business Administration; Public Administration; Management Science; and Accounting. The 42-hour credit program includes six interdisciplinary areas of instruction: association management; comparative institutions; analytical and research methods; communications and information systems; marketing strategies for public relations and media; and finance and accounting.

Applications for September, 1984, and January, 1985, classes are now being accepted. Students considering degree candidacy may take up to three courses (nine semester hours) within the program as non-degree students. Further information is available from Professor of Management David S. Brown, Ext. 6619, or Associate Professor of Public Administration and Chairman Astrid E. Merget, Ext. 6295.

FACULTY, STAFF INVITED TO TWO SARP RECEPTIONS

Members of the university faculty and staff are invited to two informal receptions to welcome the new members of the class of 1988 and their families as part of the Summer Advance Registration Program (SARP). The receptions will be held from 5 to 6 pm in the Marvin Center third-floor Continental Room on Thursday, June 28, and Thursday, July 9.

BOARD RECOMMENDS POLICY FOR LAW SCHOOL FUTURE

The Board of Trustees on Thursday, June 21, decided that the GW National Law Center should become a single law school unit, without separate daytime or evening divisions.

This was announced following a special meeting of the board to consider a report on the future of the center's evening division, prepared by a five-member Trustee Committee, appointed at the board's annual meeting on May 17.

In action at the special meeting, the Board unanimously approved and transmitted the report through President Lloyd H. Elliott to National Law Center Dean Jerome A. Barron with the suggestion that its recommendations be implemented beginning with the 1985-86 entering class.

"This action provides for full-time and part-time legal studies and for a common admissions pool with the same high standards for all admitted students," said President Elliott. "I am particularly pleased with this decision which seems to be satisfactory to all concerned," he added.

The report states that, "As a matter of educational policy, the National Law Center, i.e. the law school of The George Washington University, should be a single law school with a single standard of admission from a single pool of applicants which will accommodate the widest possible range of students seeking a legal education including both full-time and part-time students."

The report outlines structural changes which should accompany the overall policy. These include: one single pool of applicants for law school registration to be judged by the same standards and a structure of class schedules to accommodate students who wish to stretch out the period during which they complete requirements for graduation while working either full-time or part-time. The second change would structure a program with afternoon and evening classes permitting a part-time student to complete the requirements for a J.D. degree in 48 consecutive months.

Board action taken June 21 further provides: that there shall be no predetermined number of seats allocated to students as either full-time or part-time; that the structure worked out by the law school faculty must be fully acceptable to and clearly within the accreditation requirements of the Association of American Law Schools and the American Bar Association; and that no choice shall be required of a law school applicant as to either full-time or part-time study prior to his or her actual acceptance.

The report notes that "while it will undoubtedly be necessary to work out scheduling problems as well as problems and considerations as to economic operations . . . with effort, innovation and good will" the problems can be worked out and that the operational details are within the province of the dean and faculty of the law school.

(Continued on back)

(Continued from front)

Dean Barron said, following the meeting, "This is a fair and workable plan which preserves the option of a part-time program for legal study, yet takes a step forward in providing for a common pool for applicants to the law school."

In the course of the deliberations of the special committee, chaired by Board Chairman Glen A. Wilkinson, all those who wished to appear, representing all points of view, have been fully heard. In addition, the committee talked with a number of persons whose perspectives it was felt could add to the committee's understanding and resolution of the problem. The committee also accepted submissions from all interested parties.

Members of the special committee, in addition to Chairman Wilkinson, were Trustees Harold F. Baker, Everett H. Bellows, Vincent C. Burke, Jr. and Thaddeus A. Lindner.

Following the Board decision, a group of concerned alumni and students, including U.S. Court of Claims Judge Lawrence S. Margolis, president of The George Washington Law Association, issued a statement praising the Board's action.

ADOPTED PARK--University neighbor Sue Burkey, right, is shown with Michelle Lee, a frequent Foggy Bottom visitor, as they examine a dwarf Alberta spruce, part of the planting in the park at New Hampshire Avenue and I Street, NW, which has been adopted by the university through the city's Adopt-A-Park Program. The little tree was planted by a neighbor. Grounds Supervisor Lou Smith and his aides have given the park added height, regrouped the original trees and shrubs and planted black-eyed Susans and daffodils.

GW WASHINGTON AREA STUDIES PROGRAM OFFERS TWO TOURS

The university's Washington Area Studies Summer Program has scheduled tours of 19th century Foggy Bottom and of Washington's historic Jewish sites.

The Foggy Bottom tour, a walking tour, is planned for Thursday, June 28, between 4 and 6:30 pm. Tourgoers will examine the juxtaposition of federal and local activity in this 19th century working-class neighborhood through a review of streets, alleys and buildings. There will be a visit to the original Naval Observatory atop the hill at 23rd and E Streets, NW. The tour, to be conducted by Elizabeth Miller, curator of the Columbia Historical Society, and Jan K. Herman, U.S.Navy historian, will leave from and return to the Marvin Center. There is a $5 fee.

Thursday, July 5, is the date of the tour to Washington's historic Jewish sites. The evolution of Washington's Jewish community will be traced through visits to a number of buildings, particularly synagogues, and neighborhoods that were once Jewish enclaves. Attention will be given to selected sites that were seen to link the local and national Jewish communities. There is a fee of $7. Tour conductor will be Washington social historian Hasia Diner.

Tours are open to the public as well as to the entire university community. For further information, call Ext. 7565.

PROFESSOR GUIDO MAZZEO DIES

Professor Emeritus of Romance Languages Guido E. Mazzeo died on Tuesday, June 5, at The George Washington University Hospital. He was 69.

Professor Mazzeo came to Washington in 1946 as an assistant Professor of Spanish at the U.S. Navy Postgraduate School. At that time he first became associated with the university as a part-time member of the George Washington University faculty. In 1950, he joined the Inter-American Defense Board as a conference document specialist and simultaneous translator. He remained in that position until 1958 when he became a full-time member of the faculty as associate professor of Romance languages. He became full professor 10 years later and received the status of professor emeritus on May 6 of this year. A member of the Faculty Senate, he had served as chairman of the Faculty Senate Committee on the Library.

Born in New York City, he held degrees from City College of New York (B.A. 1936) and Columbia University (M.A. 1938 and Ph.D. 1961). He was a member of the Modern Language Association; the American Association of Teachers of Portuguese; the American Society for 18th Century Studies; and Sigma Delta Pi, national Spanish honor society.

A frequent contributor to scholarly journals, Dr. Mazzeo wrote in both Spanish and English. He was a member of the editorial board of The Hispanic Journal.

Contributions in Professor Mazzeo's memory may be sent to the Gelman Library Gift Fund, 701 Gelman Library, to be used to enlarge the collection of books in Spanish Literature.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

Members of the Department of Operations Research, SEAS, attended and participated in the joint national meeting of The Institute of Management Sciences/Operations Research Society of America (TIMS-/ORSA) May 14-16 in San Francisco.
"Transient Behavior of Large Markovian Repairable Item Inventory Systems Using a Truncated State Space Approach ," by Leonidas C. Kioussis, research assistant; DOUGLAS R. MILLER, associate professor of operations research; and DONALD GROSS, professor of operations research, was presented by Mr. Kioussis.
DONALD GROSS chaired the session, "Logistics Research and Developments." GARTH P. McCORMICK, professor of applied science, presented a paper, "Mathematics of the International Coal Trade Model," which he co-authored with JAMES E. FALK, professor of operations research. Professor McCORMICK is also co-author of a paper presented by GW alumnus Richard H. F. Jackson of the National Bureau of Standards,"The Polyadic Structure of Factorable Function Tensors with Applications to High Order Minimization Techniques."
"A Bayes Empirical Bayes Approach for Hardware and Software Reliability Growth Modelling," by Michio Horigome, formerly visiting scholar at GW, now of Tokyo University of Mercantile Marine; NOZER D. SINGPURWALLA, professor of operations research and of statistics; and Refik Soyer, research assistant, was presented by GW alumnus Jerzy Kyparisis, now of Florida International University.
RICHARD M. SOLAND, professor of operations research, presented a paper, "On the Assumption of Transitivity of Preferences in Interactive Multiple Criteria Decision Making."

QUADIR AMIRYAR, supervisor of interlibrary loan in the Gelman Library, a student of Soviet-Afghan relations and a former professor at Kabul University, Afghanistan, gave a paper, "Islam, Nationalism and Political Opposition in Afghanistan," at the College of William and Mary in April as part of a Middle East Lecture Series, sponsored by the college's Department of Government and Political Science.

EDWARD D. BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, moderated a debate at the Conference on Social Security Law, held at the Detroit College of Law on May 22. The debate concerned the future of social security. Professor Berkowitz also served on the planning committee for the conference.

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, was honored by the American Society of Military Comptrollers at its annual conference in Kansas as its outstanding author of 1983 for his article, "The Managerial Ethic and Productivity Improvement." He also addressed the Air Force section of the conference on its planning for the next decade.

JONATHAN D. FIFE, associate professor of education, has been appointed U.S. Liaison Officer to the UNESCO European Center for Higher Education by the U.S. Department of Education. April 23-29, he attended the Fifth Annual Meeting of Liaison Officers in Pont-a-mousson, France. At the meeting, he was elected to the three-person steering committee for the conference and served as conference rapporteur with responsibility for writing the conference's final report.

JOSEPH A. GREENBERG, professor of education, has been appointed to the Sub-Committee on Public Education of the National Red Cross and the D.C. Chapter of the American Red Cross.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (half-time), Department of Biochemistry. (Position involves the regulation of proteins required for intestinal lipid transport. B.S. required as well as experience in work with small animals, organelle preparation, use of radioisotopes and radioimmunoassays polyacrylamide gel electrophoresis required.) Contact Dr. George Vahouny, Department of Biochemistry, Room 536, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW, Washington,D.C.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (half-time), Hematology Section, V.A. Medical Center, Washington, D.C. (Position involves in vitro growth of hematopoietic stem cells. B.Sc. required as well as knowledge of basic sterile technique.) Contact Clara Chan, M.D., Hematology Section, V.A. Medical Center, 50 Irving Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Biochemistry. (Position entails studies of glycolipids in cellular immunity and as tumor-associated antigens utilizing techniques lymphoid cell bioassay, anti-glycolipid antibodies, and lipid biochemistry. B.S. in chemistry or biology and cell culture experience required. Experience in immunological techniques desirable. Contact Dr. William Merritt, Department of Biochemistry, Room 553, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, (half-time), Department of Biochemistry. (Position entails studies of the central nervous system peptides and their receptors. Experience in the use of radioisotopes, radioimmunoassays, and receptor binding assays as well as B.S. required. Position available 7/1/84.) Contact Dr. T. Moody, Department of Biochemistry, Room 231, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (part-time), Department of Biochemistry. (Job involves recombinant DNA work, RNA transcription labeling and sequencing analysis. B.S. required as well as familiarity with some of the molecular biology laboratory procedures and cell culture techniques. Prior experience or basic knowledge of gene cloning techniques and nucleic acid analysis is desirable.) Contact Dr. Ajit Kumar, Department of Biochemistry, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

July 2, 1984

GW Report

(370)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460

MARCELLA BRENNER ENDOWMENT FOR MUSEUM EDUCATION REACHES INITIAL GOAL OF $50 THOUSAND

The Marcella Brenner Endowment for Museum Education has reached the initial goal of $50,000. This was announced during a reception sponsored by the Museum Training Programs Alumni held in the Pavilion at the Old Post Office on Monday, June 11. The occasion was planned to coincide with the annual meeting of the American Association of Museums, held in Washington June 10 to 14. Plans for the establishment of the endowment were well under way by December of 1982 and the funds have come to the current level in the last few months.

Dr. Brenner, professor emeritus of education, who was elected to the university's Board of Trustees at the board's annual meeting on May 17, was present for the announcement and greeted many former students at the reception. Dr. Brenner developed the M.A.T. program in Museum Education here at GW, the first of its kind in the country.

Six members of the original 23 in the class of 1974-75 attended the reception, held in observance of the 10th anniversary of the university's museum program. At the reception were: Earl James, now director of Washington properties for the National Trust for Historic Preservation; Andrea Kline, who is with the Department of Education as a contract specialist; Marlene Robinson, a museum consultant in Philadelphia; Stephanie Grunberg, curator of education at the Zimmerli Art Museum at Rutgers University; Jane North, who is associated with the Challenge Grants Program of the National Endowment for the Humanities; and Alice Rae Yelen, senior curator of education at the New Orleans Museum of Art. All six are holders of the Master of Arts in Teaching in the Field of Museum Education.

Two boxes of red roses were presented to Dr. Brenner by Marlene Robinson, representing the first class, and Rima Al-Turki, representing the incoming class in museum education. During her years of teaching, Dr. Brenner had the custom of bringing flowers from her garden to her classes and recently brought home-grown roses to the new class.

THE NEXT SARP RECEPTION IS THURSDAY, JULY 12

Members of the university faculty and staff are invited to the third and last SARP reception on Thursday, July 12, from 5 to 6 pm in the third-floor Continental Room of Marvin Center. The informal reception is part of the Summer Advance Registration Program (SARP) and provides an opportunity for members of the university community to welcome new members of the class of 1988 and their families.

MAURICE A. EAST NAMED TO DEANSHIP OF SPIA

Maurice A. East has been named Dean of the School of Public and International Affairs, effective January 10, 1985.

In making the announcement President Lloyd H. Elliott said, "I am delighted to welcome Dr. East to the GW community. His scholarly accomplishments, wide reputation in international studies, and demonstrated leadership in higher education make him extremely well-qualified to provide the direction needed as we enter a period of planned advancement for our School of Public and International Affairs."

Commenting on his appointment, Dr. East said, "It is a great opportunity to be able to direct this school so ideally located in the nation's capital and in the center of world affairs. I look forward to joining my colleagues in building upon the present framework as we define the SPIA role for the future in educating persons to operate effectively in an increasingly international and multicultural environment."

Currently a Senior Fellow at the Strategic Concepts Development Center of the National Defense University in Washington, Dr. East has been associated with University of Kentucky for the past 12 years. At Kentucky, he holds the rank of professor in the Department of Political Science, has served as associate director of the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce there, and has been active in numerous professional and community organizations.

Professor East was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Colgate University in 1963. As a Woodrow Wilson Fellow, he did his graduate work at Princeton University, receiving the M. A. and Ph.D. in politics in 1966 and 1970. Later he was a Fulbright Research Fellow in Norway, and a Rockefeller Foundation Consultant to Makerere University in Uganda.

Maurice A. East

Dr. East is in the front rank among his peers in the field of comparative foreign policy studies, with a particular focus on the foreign policy problems and practices of smaller nations. He has served as an advisor to the government of Norway and to the Foreign Service Institute of the U. S. Department of State.

He is active in the International Studies Association, the Center for War/Peace Studies, the United Nations Association, and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Social Sciences Education Consortium.

Dr. East and his wife, Jessie, have one son, named Barrett.

MUSEUM PEOPLE--Dr. Marcella Brenner, center with members of the first class in museum education, l to r, Earl James, Andrea Kline, Marlene Robinson, Stephanie Grunberg, Jane North and Alice Rae Yelen.

D.C. COUNCIL RECOGNIZES GW COMMUNITY LEGAL CLINIC

The Council of the District of Columbia, at its June 19 meeting, recognized the GW Community Legal Clinic with a ceremonial resolution.

Introduced by Council Chairman David C. Clarke and co-sponsored by all the other members of the council, resolution number 5-677 was in appreciation of the work of the community legal clinic in preventing the sale of the Anthony Bowen YWCA at 1816 12th Street, NW, and in working with the Shaw community towards the reopening of the Y as a community center. The Anthony Bowen Y was one of the first black YMCAs in the world and the first YMCA branch organized to provide education, social and recreational services.

The resolution notes that the GW student lawyers under the direction of Professor Eric S. Sirulnik, director of the Community Legal Clinics, assisted by staff attorney Peter Aron, contributed their time and skills and "worked diligently with members of the Shaw Community to bring legal action that resulted in plans for reopening the Anthony Bowen YMCA facility as a community center."

Professor of Law and Director of the Community Legal Clinics Eric S. Sirulnik accepted the written resolution for the university.

Its official name is "George Washington National Law Center Community Legal Clinic Recognition Resolution of 1984."

1,155 YEARS OF SERVICE NOTED AT AWARDS LUNCHEON

Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl commented at the recent Service Awards Luncheon, sponsored by his office, that if the service of all the 99 members of the university community being recogized were added up, the combined hours of work would reach a total of 1,155 years. He expressed the sincere thanks of the university to the many who have worked hard and well in a large number of areas.

At the luncheon, held in Marvin Center's second floor dining room, four who are retiring were given special recognition and will be receiving GW rocking chairs. Pearl Johnson, who began with the University Bookstore in 1955, and served as head cashier from 1970 on, retired after nearly 29 years. F. Randy Munt, who has been director of Auxiliary Enterprises, retired after more than 12 years. Particularly active in the food service area, he joined the university August 1, 1971, the same day he retired from the U.S. Army Quartermaster Corps. Thomas O'Dell, a skilled carpenter with the Physical Plant Department (PPD), who retired after almost 39 years, was a recipient of a George Washington Award in 1977. Rudolph Trent, shop scheduler and planner, came with the university as a buyer for PPD in 1966.

(continued on back)

(continued from front)

He retired after 17 and a half years. Although officially retired, Randy Munt has agreed to stay on for several more months in a consulting capacity.

Katie Madison, who came to the university 30 years ago and is now associated with SAGA as a cashier, was recogized for her long service. Harold Prather, foreman for the University Mail Service, was thanked for 25 years' service. Louise Miller of the University Housekeeping Staff heard words of appreciation for her 25 years of service as well.

From the Office of Student Financial Aid, Laura Donnelly and Cynthia Wolff were recognized for service of 10 years each.

From the Treasurer's Office, Mildred Ewart received 20-year recognition and Kenneth Brooks and Jane Meyer five-year recognition.

From the Office of Business Affairs, those recognized were: Parking, Wallace Hayden, 20 years, and George Peterson, 15 years; University Bookstore, Catherine Reeves, 20 years; Mail Room, Leslie Thornton, 10 years, and Rudolph Johnson, 5 years; Procurement Office, Waldo D. Sloan Jr. 15 years, and Barbara Harris, 5 years; Telecommunications, Irene Retter, 20 years; Lisner Auditorium, Francis Early and Sylvia Korn, both 15 years.

Lisa Marr receieved recognition for five years service with Sponsored Projects.

Members of the Physical Plant Department recognized were those with 20, 15, 10 and five years service. The 20-year group included John M. Chalmers, Lillian R. Harris, James Ison, Duane Rush, and George W. Smith. Thanked for 15 years were Joseph Ball, Alice Jones, Barbara Leach, Roger Wilhelm and James Wilson. There were 21 individuals in the 10-year group and also 21 in the 5-year group.

Three groups associated with the university and SAGA for 20, 15 and 10 years received special thanks. The 20-year people were Lillian Dupree, Gene Marshall, Velma Procter, Helen Shaw, Esther Williams and Anniel Wigfall. Luz Ocasio and Dorice Walton were the 15-year twosome. There were seven people in the 10-year group.

Mr. Leroy O. Payton, housekeeping manager, dormitories, PPD, gave the invocation and benediction at the luncheon. Vice President Diehl was assisted by all the managers in the areas of those receiving awards.

EMMA H. BUSEY DIES

Mrs. Emma Holle Busey, who was executive secretary to Dr. Harold F. Bright, retired vice president and provost for academic affairs, died on June 13 in Sibley Memorial Hospital. She was 66.

She had been associated with the university since 1974, first in the Office of the Associate Dean of the School of Government and Business Administration and then, since 1979, as executive secretary to Dr. Bright.

CONGRATULATIONS to Rudy Trent on his retirement and for his fine work were offered by Assistant Vice President Robert E. Dickman, right, at the recent Service Awards Luncheon.

A native of Jacksonville, Illinois, she was graduated from MacMurray College there with a B.A. Her experience before coming to George Washington included nine years as an elementary and secondary school teacher in Los Alamos, New Mexico, and Richland, Washington; 19 years as records control supervisor at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory; service as secretary to Darrell Froman, a pioneer in the atomic energy program; and as secretary to the dean of the Graduate School at Tulane University. She continued to be interested in advancing her education and participated in a number of continuing education and certificate programs here at the university. During the spring semester of 1984 she was nearing completion of a master's degree program in human resource development.

She served as president of the Washington-area chapter of Professional Secretaries International and held the rating of Certified Professional Secretary, which she attained in 1982.

She is survived by her husband, Harold; three daughters, Dixie, Betty and Wendy; three grandsons; and her mother and three sisters.

GW

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

JOHN D. HUNT, professor of education, Travel and Tourism Program, was featured in an hour-long interview and telephone call-in segment on the CBS News Nightwatch program on June 11. The discussion revolved around motives for travel and strategies for getting the most from vacation travel. He was also interviewed for Sylvia Porter's syndicated business column, discussing the risks in vacation-buying decisions and strategies for reducing risk so that vacations meet expectations.

MAIDA R. WITHERS, associate professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, was interviewed by WDVM-TV/Channel 9 on June 3 on the program "Capitol Edition." She was shown directing, rehearsing and dancing in "Mr. and Mrs. Sally Ride" at the Air and Space Museum.

PUBLICATIONS

EDWARD D. BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, an essay, "Changing the Meaning of Welfare Reform," in Maintaining the Safety Net, John Weicher, ed., published by the American enterprise Institute. An excerpt of the essay appeared in the "For the Record" column of the May 28 Washington Post.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, a chapter, "The U.S. and the Law of the Sea." in American Foreign Policy in an Uncertain World, David P. Forsythe, ed., University of Nebraska Press, 1984.

DEWEY D. WALLACE JR., professor of religion, an essay, "The Image of Saintliness in Puritan Hagiography, 1650-1700," in The Divine Drama in History and Liturgy: Essays in Honor of Horton Davies on His Retirement From Princeton University, John E. Booty, ed., Pickwick Publications, 1984, pp.23-44.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Psychology. (Research on early learning in children. B.A. or B.S. in psychology required, as well as demonstrated knowledge of theory and research on early learning in normal human infants and children and knowledge of research design and methodology, statistics and basic facts of observational methodology.) Send CV to Professor E. Abravanel, Department of Psychology, The George Washington University, 2125 G Street, NW, Washington, DC 20052.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Family Therapy Clinic, Rehabilitation Research and Training Center. ((Work on a family therapy treatment outcome study examining the efficacy of family therapy versus comparison treatments regarding vocational competence and psychosocial functioning of families with chronically ill members. Clinical assessment and treatment of subject families in the study, development of referral resources and recruitment of potential research subject families. Requires master's level training in a clinical specialty. Incoming associate must be a fully trained clinician with specific expertise in group and family therapy techniques.)
No phone calls, please. Resumes to Em Sause, Room 613, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Department of Biochemistry. (Ph.D. in organic or bio-organic chemistry with a minimum of one year's post-doctoral experience in GC/MS, HOLC and organic synthesis to collaborate with a group of biochemists interested in steroid and eicosanoid biochemistry.) Send CV and names of three references to Dr. J.M. Bailey, Department of Biochemistry, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS, (three, half-time), Department of Biochemistry. (Studies in the area of prostaglandin and leukotriene matabolism as related to the pathogenisis and treatment of heart disease. B.S. or B.A. as well as some experience in the areas described required. Positions available August 1.) Contact Dr. J. Martyn Bailey, Department of Biochemistry, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, (half-time), Department of Biochemistry. studies on mitochrondial bioenergetics and cellular calcium homeostasis. B.S. and experience in atomic absorption spectometry and other techniques in analytical chemistry required. Position available September 1.) Contact Dr. Gary Fiskum, Department of Biochemistry, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Biochemistry. (Conduct independent research in the field of eukaryotic gene expression and train lab personnel. At least three years post-doctoral experience in gene cloning and work with mammalian tumor viruses. M.D. or Ph.D. in biological sciences required.) Send CV and three letters of reference to Dr. Ajit Kumar, Department of Biochemistry, Room 232, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, (half-time), Department of Biochemistry. Studies of the regulation of cellular lipoxgenases. Experience in analytical techniques (HPLC, TLC), tissue culture and other bio-synthetic metodologies desirable. B.S. required.) Contact Dr. Jack Vanderhoek, Department of Biochemistry, Room 553, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, NW.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

July 16, 1984

GW Report

(371)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460

UNIVERSITY ADMINISTRATORS from Latin America were welcomed to the university by President Lloyd H. Elliott, standing, at a recent luncheon here following the administrators' completion of a three-month training program, sponsored by the Inter-American Organization for Higher Education. Shown, L to R, at the head table are Professor of Education John G. Boswell; Dean of the School of Education and Human Developmemt Eugene W. Kelly Jr.; Dr. Francois Loriot, executive secretary general of the Inter-American Organization for Higher Education; President of the University of Quebec Gilles Boulet; President of the American Council on Education J.W. Peltason; and Chief, Division of Special Projects, Department of Educational Affairs, Organization of American States, Evanor Zuniga. The program was conducted at three separate locations in Brazil, Canada and the United States with The George Washington University the host-coordinating institution for the U.S.

DEP PROGRAMS TRANSFERRED WITHIN THE UNIVERSITY

Programs previously administered by the Division of Experimental Programs (DEP) have been transferred to other units of the university effective July 1, according to Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French, former director of DEP. The division was formed in the summer of 1969. Professor of Clarence C. Mondale of the American Studies Program was the first director.

The division was charged with responding to the desire of both faculty and students for curriculum reform and with developing community-related academic programs.

"Countless courses in curricula throughout the university, as well as many new degree programs, came into existence through the initiative of the division," Professor French said. "The division attracted substantial external support from federal agencies and private foundations. It was recognized as a unique institutional response to the challenges faced in higher education during the past 15 years."

In announcing these changes, Professor French expressed his appreciation to the generations of students and scores of faculty members whose collaboration made possible the creative achievements of the division. He said, "I am confident that we have developed both the habits of cooperation and the mechanisms to support innovation at GW that will enable us to maintain the kind of work that has been done under the auspices of the division."

The Service Learning Program has been transferred to Columbian College. Holliday Wagner, formerly assistant director of DEP, will continue as director of service learning. Her faculty office in the Biological Sciences Department is Room 321, Lisner Hall, Ext. 5828.

Peter Aron, also a former assistant director of DEP, will continue as a full-time member of the instructional staff of the Community Legal Clinic of the GW National Law Center. His office is Room 307 at 2000 L Street, NW, Ext. 7463.

The Center for Washington Area Studies will be administered through the School of Public and International Affairs. All inquiries concerning publications, conferences or research grants should be addressed to the director, Howard Gillette, in Building P, Ext. 6075.

The Dilthey Faculty Fellowships for interdisciplinary scholarship will be administered by the university Committee on Research. The objectives and the criteria governing the awards will be the same as in previous years.

The administration of the residential programs in Thurston Hall, "Politics and Values," and Building JJ, "Computers and Society," has been transferred to Columbian College.

The 700 Series of new and interdepartmental courses will be administered by Joseph Y. Ruth, Assistant Vice President for Admissions and Student Records. Mr. Ruth's office is 305 Rice Hall, Ext. 4950. The procedures for approval of courses will remain unchanged.

The program in bioethics and related activities will be administered by a university-wide committee under the chairmanship of Dean L. Thompson Bowles of the Medical School. Dr. Gail Povar of the Department of Health Care Sciences will continue as principal staff person in the area. Her extension is 4034.

TROUBADOURS ENJOY MARKED SUCCESS IN PORTUGAL TOUR

The George Washington University Troubadours' recent tour of Portugal has been praised by the United States Ambassador to Portugal, the Honorable H. Allen Holmes, in a letter to United States Information Agency Director Charles Z. Wick. In the letter, Ambassador Holmes terms the tour "highly successful" and says that the young American singers "acquitted themselves in every respect as cultural ambassadors of our country."

The Troubadours, who perform a cappella, sang in churches, schools and community centers in Oporto, mountain towns in northern Portugal, in the eastern part of the country along the Spanish border and in Lisbon. The ambassador notes that they had an enormous response from all age groups in every town they visited.

In a letter to President Lloyd H. Elliott, the cultural affairs officer of the United States Embassy in Portugal, Wallace Keiderling, comments on the demands of the group's eight-performance schedule in 10 days and the rigors of daily travel. "Their response to such a challenge was nothing short of sensational," he writes. "With their harmonious blend of voices, versatile repertory and warm stage presence, they were the artistic equal of any ensemble ever programmed by this section (cultural affairs section)". He accompanied the Troubadours throughout their tour. "In a word," his letter continues, "all of the positive traits desired in a group of young American artists traveling overseas as a group for the first time were found in the Troubadours."

(continued on back)

GW

GW UNIVERSITY CLUB NEWS

The George Washington University Club, closed briefly, reopened its doors to members and their guests on Monday, July 9. As a university operation, the club will be under the aegis of the university administration. SAGA will have the responsibility for operations, thus their expertise and management skills in food and beverage service will be used to provide attractive club facilities to the members.

Mike Sullivan will continue as manager, assisted by Steven Mattingly. Because the club now has the backup of larger kitchen facilities, new offerings will be included in an expanded menu and salad bar as well as in several other innovations. Renovations and changes to club rooms are in the planning stages.

A new constitution and bylaws for the club are in the process of being drafted. The club will continue to function as a private member club, electing officers and directors whose responsibilities will be to provide advice to management on matters affecting membership, club programs and house matters.

JULIA ALVAREZ NAMED JENNY McKEAN MOORE LECTURER

Julia Alvarez has been named Jenny McKean Moore Visiting Lecturer in the Department of English for 1984-85.

Born in the Dominican Republic, she holds the degree of Bachelor of Arts, summa cum laude, from Middlebury College, and a masters in creative writing from Syracuse University. A former Breadloaf Scholar in fiction and poetry, she was a winner of the Academy of American Poetry Prize at Syracuse, and of a Kenan grant for her short stories.

Julia Alvarez

A published writer of fiction and poetry, she has taught creative writing and literature in colleges, high schools, community centers and even in nursing homes. She has been a visiting assistant professor at the University of Vermont for the past two years and has taught at California State College (Fresno), the College of the Sequoias and Syracuse University as well as at Phillips Andover Academy. As a writer-in-residence in projects funded by the National Endowment for the Arts through state arts councils, she conducted writing workshops throughout Kentucky for two years in grammar schools, high schools, colleges and community centers; taught creative writing in bilingual programs in Delaware; and conducted writing workshops for senior citizens in North Carolina. Following her residency in North Carolina, a collection of poetry by senior citizens, which she edited, was published with the title Old Age Ain't For Sissies. A collection of her poems, Homecoming, will be published by Grove Press in August.

As Jenny McKean Moore Visiting Lecturer, she will teach in the fall and spring semesters. There will two creative writing workshops for which students will be selected from the metropolitan community. No tuition is charged and the workshops are not open to university students. The aim of these workshops is to transmit to students of writing -- who may have had little formal education, or are elderly, or live in the inner city, or are unable to pay tuition, or for any reason have had no chance to participate in writing workshops -- the vitality that comes from contact with a professional writer and with a group of other "apprentice" writers. Julia Alvarez will also conduct two classes, one each semester, for George Washington University students.

(continued on back)

ALVAREZ

(continued from front)

This is the ninth year that the lectureship, funded jointly by the university and the Jenny McKean Moore Fund for Writers, has been sponsored. The late Jenny Moore, who had been a playwriting student, left in trust a fund for the purpose of encouraging creative writing. The trustees of the fund proposed and helped design the lectureship program.

The deadline for applying for the Free Creative Writing Workshop in Poetry in the fall semester is Friday, August 10. The workshop will meet Thursdays from 8 to 10 pm. Those applying should submit a letter giving name, address, home and work telephone numbers, and a brief personal history, as well as five or 10 poems, up to 10 pages. A stamped, self-addressed envelope for return should be included. For further information, call the Department of English, Ext. 6180.

TROUBADOURS

(continued from front)

Both Ambassador Holmes and Cultural Affairs Officer Keiderling praised the the exceptional capabilities of the director of the Troubadours, Assistant Professor of Music Catherine J. Pickar.

The 12-member group's tour was funded in part by the United States Embassy in Portugal and in part by the United States Information Agency and the American Language Institute's Cultural Council. The Troubadours provided for their own transportation to Portugal.

FULBRIGHT SCHOLARSHIPS GO TO TWO GW GRADUATE STUDENTS

Margaret Lucille Waghorn, a graduate student in education, and Harriet Elizabeth Black, a graduate student in fine arts, have both received Fulbright scholarships for 1984-85.

Margaret Waghorn has been awarded a French Government Training Assistantship in English. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree from the Catholic University of America in English and French.

Harriet Black, will study the little known printmaking process of mixographia and will create a photographic documentation of the life of Central American refugees in Mexico. Her undergraduate degree is from the University of Michigan. She has studied lithography at the Santa Reparata Printmaking Studio as well as nursing at the Alexandria Hospital School of Nursing.

The awarding of these two scholarships brings to three the number of Fulbright awards made to George Washington students this year. Robert DeWitt, who received his Master of Arts in East Asian Studies from SPIA on May 6, is now in Singapore on a Fulbright Scholarship.

THE VIEW FROM THE THEATRE -- ABC NEWS COMES TO GW

ABC News Viewpoint, on the third anniversary of the creation of the program, originated from the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre on Monday, July 9. ABC commentator Ted Koppel moderated a wide-ranging discussion between an overflow crowd and a panel of ABC news stars that included Barbara Walters, Peter Jennings, Geraldo Rivera, Sam Donaldson, Steve Bell and David Brinkley as well as Ed Fouhy, ABC vice president for news. "Talking back to TV News" was the discussion topic.

PREPARATIONS for the ABC News Viewpoint telecast of July 9 were aided by two GW students: Tony McGinty, left, a political science and philosophy major in Columbian College, left; and Jon Ledden, assistant theatre manager for Marvin Center and a Columbian College dramatic arts major.

RICE HALL NOTE

For the convenience of the university community, GW Report offers the following listing showing changes of occupancy in some eighth-floor Rice Hall offices with the accompanying telephone numbers: 805, William D. Johnson, Provost & Director of Planning & Budgeting, Ext. 6506; 807, Dr. Marianne R. Phelps, Associate Provost, Ext. 6508; 808, Mrs. Peggye Cohen, Assistant to the Provost, Ext. 6509; 809, Office of Planning & Budgeting, Ext. 7345; 809A, Robert Shoup, Assistant Director, Planning & Budgeting, Ext. 7345; 810, Dr. Roderick S. French, Vice President for Academic Affairs, Ext. 6510; and 811, Mrs. Margaret Trexler, Assistant Vice President for Faculty Personnel & Academic Publications, Ext. 6512.

BYRON M. MATTHAI JR., retiring security chief, right, shown here with President Lloyd H. Elliott, was honored at a luncheon at the end of June, and presented with a distinguished service award. President Elliott commented that his service to the university has been "superb."

-------- NEWSNOTES --------

INTERVIEWS

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, was a guest on Daniel Schorr's Cable Network News program on July 4. The theme of the CNN telephone call-in was the national significance of Independence Day. Professor Cunliffe was also interviewed for a special report, "Patriotism is Back in Style," in the U.S News and World Report, July 9, 1984.

ROBERT LICHTER, assistant professor of political science, was featured on a national call-in show on C-SPAN cable television on July 5. The topic was "Is there a Liberal Media Elite?"

CATHERINE J. PICKAR, assistant professor of music, was interviewed by the Lisbon afternoon daily A Tarde in May in connection with The George Washington University Troubadours' tour of Portugal.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

DONALD GROSS, professor of operations research, has been appointed to serve on the editorial advisory board of the professional journal Computers & Operations Research.

MURLI M. GUPTA, associate professor of mathematics, served as a judge in the first national MATHCOUNTS competition, held in the Marvin Center May 19. Teams from 48 states, each consisting of four students in grades 7 or 8, competed for top prizes. The Virginia team, from Fairfax County, won the national award, the opportunity to be guests of NASA at the next launch of the space shuttle. The competition was sponsored by the National Society of Professional Engineers, the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, NASA, the CNA Insurance Companies and the National Science Foundation.

DONALD E. HAWKINS, professor of education and adviser, Travel and Tourism Program, served as moderator on a panel on tourism and related industries at a West Coast Conference on Business Investment Opportunities under the Caribbean Basin Initiative May 22.

JOHN D. HUNT, professor of education, Travel and Tourism Program, taught three courses on tourism in Egypt during May for the Egyptian Ministry of Tourism and Civil Aviation and the Middle East Corporation for Hotel and Tourism Investments.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, has been appointed to the fiscal planning committee of the American Association of Adult and Continuing Education. He has also been elected president of the International Consultants Foundation.

----- PERSONNEL NOTICES -----

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (half-time), Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, SEAS. (Assistant will be responsible for developing software for a SUN Microsystems workstation to communicate with a GTCO five-dimensional data tablet. Position also involves developing software to output images from the SUN to a laser printer. B.S. or M.S. required with at least 24 credit hours of computer science, experience with Unix, C, computer graphics, user computer interfaces, and appreciation for visual aesthetics required. Preference will be given to candidates with a B.S. or M.S. in computer science, computer engineering or electrical engineering.) Send resumes to Professor J.D. Foley, Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, Room T-624C, Academic Center, 801 22 Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (full-time for August and September, half-time from September 1984-September 1988), Division of Hematology and Oncology. (Job involves the collection and compilation of research data on Sickle Cell disease, maintaining patient medical research profiles and acting as liason between the hospital laboratories and the NIH center regarding medical tests and results. B.S. with research data collection experience required.) Contact Judith M. Nixon, Division of Hematology and Oncology, H.B. Burns Memorial Building, 2150 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (part-time), Department of Biochemistry. (Job duties include conduction experiments related to nucleic acid biochemistry and recombinant DNA techniques, RNA transcription labeling and sequencing analysis. B.S. or B.A. in basic science required. Available after August 15.) Contact Dr. Ajit Kumar, Department of Biochemistry, Room 231, Ross Hall, 2300 Eye Street, Washington, D.C.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (part-time), Department of Biochemistry. (Position entails studies of the central nervous system peptides and their receptors. Experience in the use of radioisotopes, radioimmunoassays and receptor binding assays. B.S. required. Available immediately.) Contact Dr. Terry Moody, Department of Biochemistry, Room 231, Ross Hall, 2300 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

The George Washington Univeresity is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

August 6, 1984

GW Report

(372)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460

GW FIRST RECIPIENT OF UNITED WAY CUP, VOLUNTEERS THANKED

UNITED WAY--Dr. Vincent Reid addressing GW volunteers at the recent United Way Awards luncheon. President Lloyd H. Elliott and the United Way Cup are at the left.

"We all work at the job of trying to make our city a better place to live and I want to thank each of you for the help that you've given," President Lloyd H. Elliott told approximately 100 GW United Way volunteers at the recent awards luncheon for all those who worked in the university's 1983 United Way Campaign under the co-chairmanship of James E. Clifford, director of Personnel Services, and Michael M. Barch, administrator of the GW Medical Center.

President Elliott had just accepted from Dr. Vincent Reid, chairperson, Universities Division, D.C. United Way and vice president of the Washington Post, a newly established award from the United Way. The award is a silver Revere bowl inscribed, "United Way Campaign University Bowl, for the most outstanding United Way Campaign among universities in the National Capital Area. The George Washington University 1983."

George Washington is the first recipient of the bowl, which is to be awarded annually to the institution with the highest figure.

In his remarks before presenting the bowl to President Elliott, Dr. Reid congratulated George Washington University and its volunteers on achieving a total of $116,928, the highest dollar amount reached by a Washington area university. "This proud institution is to be commended," he said, "We know giving is not easy when times are hard and things are tough."

Special guests at the luncheon, in addition to Dr. Reid, were Clarence Malone, loan executive from PEPCO, and Richard King, director, D.C. United Way Campaign.

Special Presidential Recognition Awards were given out at the luncheon as well as gold, silver and bronze awards and the university awards, established here at GW in to recogize 60 per cent participation unrelated to dollar amounts. All the coordinators for both the university and the medical center received certificates.

Recipients of the Presidential Awards were Michael M. Barch; James E. Clifford; Leslie G. O'Bryant, who has served as university campaign coordinator for three years; and Cynthia L. Siegel, who has worked as a university Medical Center coordinator.

PROFESSOR A.M. ABDALLA DIES
MEMORIAL FUND ESTABLISHED

Professor of Engineering and Applied Science Abdelfattah M. Abdalla died Sunday, July 22, 1984, in an automobile accident in Cairo, Egypt. He was 46.

Dr. Abdalla came to The George Washington University School of Engineering and Applied Science in September of 1969 as an assistant professor of engineering and applied science. He was promoted to associate professor in 1974 and to full professor in 1979. He assumed the chairmanship of the Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science in SEAS on July 1 of this year. He left for Egypt on Thursday, July 19, for what was to be a two-and-a-half week stay.

GW

Associate SEAS Dean J.E. Feir, speaking at a July 26 memorial service here at the university said in part, "In addition to his distinguished professional career as an engineer and teacher, I will remember Abdelfattah Abdalla as a quietly energetic human being, unfailingly polite and cheerful with a good sense of humor, and with a deep and compassionate interest in the affairs of students and faculty alike."

Born in Egypt on September 10, 1937, he held degrees from two Egyptian universities, B.S. (1960) from Ain Shams University and M.S. (1963) from Alexandria University.

(continued on back)

ELLEN KNOWLES HARCOURT AWARD OPPORTUNITY

September 1 is the deadline for applying for the Ellen Knowles Harcourt Award in Biography and Memoirs.

The award provides for publication by the Columbia University Press of an outstanding doctoral dissertation on the life, diaries, letters or memoirs of an American woman. In addition, the award carries with it a cash prize of $10,000.

The award for 1984 will be for a doctoral dissertation deposited between July 1, 1983, and June 30, 1984. The competition is open to any doctoral candidate at any university. Announcement of the award will be made in the winter of 1985.

Three copies of dissertations submitted should be sent to Ellen Knowles Harcourt Award, 202A Low Library, Columbia University, New York, N.Y. 10027 and must be received no later than September 1. A letter on university letterhead attesting to the date of deposit should be included with each submission. A covering note with a return address will facilitate acknowledgement of manuscripts. Manuscripts will not be returned.

THREE FIRST FEDERAL CONGRESS VOLUMES PRESENTED AT CAPITAL

Charlene Bickford, director of the First Federal Congress Papers Project (FFCPP) and her staff presented Senator Mark O. Hatfield (R-Ore.) with the first three volumes of the Documentary History of the First Federal Congress, 1789-1791 in his office recently. The volumes were presented in appreciation of the senator's work on the National Historical Publications and Records Commission (NHPRC), which provides funding for the FFCPP.

The purpose of the FFCPP is to collect and publish, in book form, the official papers of the First Congress, along with all the journals, letters and public utterances of those who convened in New York City in 1789. The FFCPP is one of the priority projects of the NHPRC and is co-sponsored by The George Washington University. It is expected that at the conclusion of the project, 18 volumes will have been published. The next three volumes are now at the press.

Senator Hatfield, commenting on his strong interest in the commission, said, "I think documents of the past are a significant part of our heritage and we can draw from them to look at current issues and see where we are headed." Speaking of the work of the FFCPP, he said, "The First Congress of the United States set the precedent for the operations of Congress that are a part of the institution today. Think of the history that is bound in these three volumes alone."

Among those attending the presentation were Dean Clara M. Lovett of the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences; Jack Gollner and Henry Tom, both representatives of the Johns Hopkins University Press, which is printing the volumes; and Frank Burke, executive director of the NHPRC.

CONGRESSIONAL HISTORY--Senator Mark O. Hatfield and Charlene Bickford discuss volumes as Dean Clara M. Lovett, left, listens.

RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVE IS THURSDAY, AUGUST 9

The university-sponsored Red Cross Blood Drive will be held on Thursday, August 9, in the Marvin Center third-floor ballroom from 9:30 am to 3:30 pm. To expedite processing time, donations will be primarily by appointment. Some walk-ins can be accepted. Please call Ext. 6827 to schedule a time. For questions about donor eligibility, call the Red Cross at 728-6618.

The Student Health Service, which is coordinating the drive, urges all members of the university community to make a contribution to this worthy effort.

ABDALLA

(continued from front)

He received his Ph.D. (in computer science) in February, 1970, from the University of Maryland. From 1960 to 1964, he was a research electrical engineer working on the design of digital circuits at the National Research Center in Cairo. He came to the United States in 1965 as a graduate student at the University of California at Berkeley. After two years there, he enrolled at the University of Maryland in 1967 for the completion of his doctoral studies. From 1960 to 1969, he was an instructor at Ain Shams University during the summer months.

Professor Abdalla was co-author, with Professor of Engineering and Applied Science A.C. Meltzer of a two-volume text on the design of digital computers, Principles of Digital Computer Design, Vol. 1, 1976, Prentice-Hall. Volume 2 was submitted to Prentice-Hall in 1983 for 1984 publication. He was a consultant at the Naval Research Laboratory, NASA, and the University of Maryland Department of Agriculture. His papers appeared in many professional journals, including the Journal of the Association for Computing Machinery, of which he was a member. He was also a member of the Engineering Society of Cairo.

He is survived by his wife, Dr. Wagida Abdalla, staff physician for the GW Student Health Service; a son, Sherif; a daughter, Noha; and two brothers and a sister in Egypt.

A memorial fund has been established in his name at the university. Contributions may be sent to the Abdelfattah M. Abdalla Memorial Fund, Development Office, 701 Gelman Library.

DIMOCK GALLERY OFFERS LOAN OPPORTUNITY, AUGUST 9 AND 10

There will be an opportunity to borrow art works from The George Washington University Permanent Collection for exhibition in university offices on this coming Thursday and Friday, August 9 and 10, between the hours of 11 am and 5 pm. It will also be possible to exchange works already on loan at this time.

The Dimock Gallery, off the lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium, has a policy of lending art works from the collection to university offices for a one-time loan charge of $15 per item. This fee covers the possibility of damage to works on loan and provides supplementary funding for framing thus increasing the number of art works available for public viewing.

The selection and disposition to works to the various offices will take place in the lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium, right outside the gallery. Those wishing to return or exchange art works are asked to do so on the first day, Thursday, August 9, so that these pieces will be available for those from other offices to see. Loans or exchanges will not be made after August 10 until the next loan period.

For further information, call the gallery at Ext. 7091.

FOUR KOREAN CONGRESSMEN, participants in a GW seminar entitled "Practicing Democracy in the U.S.A.," are shown with SGBA Dean Norma Maine Loeser. (L to R), Hyung Bae Lee, Jae Jung Lim, Dean Loeser, Jeung Soo Kim and Dae Yub Lee. In addition to the congressmen, the other five participants in the four-day program, sponsored by SGBA, included Koreans who hold important positions in both the public and private sectors in their country.

---------- NEWSNOTES ----------

PUBLICATIONS

EDWARD D. BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, an article, co-authored with Monroe Berkowitz, "The Survival of Worker's Compensation," in the Social Science Review, June, 1984.

CHARLES E. DIEHL, vice president and treasurer, an article, "Partnerships are Benefit to Academia and High Technology," in Board of Trade News, May, 1984.

THELMA HUNT, professor emeritus of psychology, was the associate editor and contributed the section on psychological testing to the four-volume Encyclopedia of Psychology, just published by Wiley and Sons.

ROBERT LICHTER, assistant professor of political science, an article, co-authored with Stanley Rothman and Linda Lichter, "Watching the Media Watchdog," Public Opinion, May/June, 1984.

JOHN VLACH, associate professor of american civilization and of anthropology, three sub-sections for the recent USIA publication American Studies:A Catalogue of Audio-visual Resources. The sections cover anthropology, folklore and architecture.

RICHARD D. WALK, professor of psychology, a chapter, "Event Perception, Perceptual Organization and Emotion," in Cognitive Processes in the Perception of Art, W.R. Crozier and A.J. Chapman, eds., Elseview Science Publishers B.V. (North-Holland), 1984.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

CHARLENE BICKFORD, editor of the Documentary History of the First Federal Congress, 1789-1791, has recently been appointed as director and principal investigator of the First Federal Congress Publications Project. She will serve on the Charles Thomson Prize Committee of the Organization of American Historians.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, was the keynote speaker at the 1984 National Conference on Citizen Involvement June 18 in New Haven, Connecticut. He also spoke at the Maryland State Education Policy Seminar in Baltimore on June 25.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, taught a course for the Smithsonian Resident Associate Program, "Dynasty of Glory:China in the Ming Period," April 24-June 15. Professor Chaves was a panelist at a Library of Congress' symposium, "Words in Motion:Contemporary Japanese Calligraphy," June 15. He has been appointed book review editor of the journal, CLEAR:Chinese Literature, Essays Articles, Reviews.

ULF GRAHN, associate professorial lecturer in the Department of Music, recently returned from Sweden where his Symphony No.2 received its world premiere performance on June 20 by the Stockholm Philharmonic which had commissioned the work. As a result of this premiere, pianist Barbro Dahlman (Professor Grahn's wife) has been asked to perform the Swedish premiere of her husband's "Ancient Music" with the Norrköping Symphony Orchestra on Swedish Radio, August 21, 1984.

EILEEN MORRIS GUENTHER, studio lecturer in organ in the Department of Music, performed two solo organ recitals as a featured artist at the biennial National Convention of the American Guild of Organists June 24-29 in San Francisco. Her recitals were given in the Memorial Chapel of Stanford University in Palo Alto and were attended by nearly 2,000 delegates. At the guild's business meeting on June 25, Dr. Guenther was reelected as the National Councilor and appointed as a member of the guild's executive board.

GRANTS

Two members of the Music Department received fellowship grants for $5,000 and were presented the grants by Governor Hughes in a ceremony at the State House in Annapolis on June 25.

ROBERT PARRIS, professor of Music, received his award in music composition for two recent works, Rite of Passage and The Book of Imaginary Beings.

FRANCES COHEN, director of the Vocal Theatre Workshop, received the grant for the choreography of a modern dance piece "Inside the Silence."

--------PERSONNEL NOTICES ------

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS(full-time), Department of Special Education. (Four positions available for a variety of federally funded roles concerning infant, early childhood, and vocational secondary education. Bachelors degree in related special education area required and some graduate work preferred. Available beginning Aug.25.) Interested persons should contact Dr. Michael Castleberry, Chairman, Dept. of Special Education, 2201 G Street, NW, Suite 524, Washington, D.C. 20052.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT(full-time), Department of Radiology. (Individual will perform experiments designed to elucidate information concerning molecular mechanisms of radiation resistance in cultured animal cells and conduct studies to correlate these biochemical mechanisms with cellular survival and mutagenicity following radiation exposures. B.S.(M.S. preferred) in biological sciences or chemistry with experience in density gradient centrifugation, liquid scintillation counting and other biochemical techniques. Available August 1.) Send resumes to Dr. T.M. Koval, Ross Hall, #112, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, D.C.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE(full-time), Radiopharmaceutical/Medicinal Chemistry. (Post doctoral position involves chemical modification of proteins and of antibodies to complex with metallic radionuclides. Ph.D. required in physical-organic, organo-metallic, or bio-organic chemistry with a working knowledge of organic synthesis, modern separation techniques, and protein modification. Available immediately.) Send resume and two letters of recommendation to Ms. Geri Rosen, Radiopharmaceutical/Medicinal Chemistry, The George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Rm.662, Washington, D.C. 20037.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE(Regular part-time), Department of Physiology. (Position entails the harvesting and processing of tissues and the execution and development of complex assays on the collected materials, including light, transmission and scanning electron microscope procedures, autoradiography and immunocytochemical techniques. Finalization of manuscripts and micrographs for publication is also involved. M.S. required and a minimum of one year related laboratory experience. 24/hr. week.) Contact Dr. Marie M. Cassidy, Ross Hall, #443, 2300 Eye Street, NW, Washington, D.C. Call Ext.3552.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE(full-time), Department of Surgery. (Individual will assist as surgical investigational coordinator. Will coordinate clinical investigation projects, be a member of clinical research team and actively participate in the organization, development and completion of projects studying aspects of surgical patient care. Must be a registered professional nurse with a minimum of one year's experience, B.S. in nursing strongly preferred. Available immediately.) Contact Dr. Glenn W. Geelhoed, 2150 Pennsylvania Ave, NW, Washington, D.C. Call Ext.4427.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

August 27, 1984

GW Report

(373)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

DEAN CLARA M. LOVETT IS THE KEYNOTE SPEAKER AT OPENING CONVOCATION, SEPTEMBER 3

Dean Clara M. Lovett of the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences will give the keynote address at the university's opening convocation on Monday, September 3, at 1:30 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. Remarks by President Lloyd H. Elliott will follow Dr. Lovett's address.

The convocation, held in observance of the beginning of the academic year, is a highlight of GW's Labor Day Festival 1984.

Everyone in the George Washington University community is cordially invited to attend the convocation as are the university's Foggy Bottom neighbors.

LABOR DAY FESTIVAL OFFERS MANY CHOICES

The university's Labor Day Festival 1984, in addition to the opening convocation at 1:30 pm, will include four other varied events.

A Picnic on the Block will be held on 21st Street, between H and I Streets, from 11:30 am to 1:30 pm. There is a one-time charge of $2.00 with no limit on second (or third) helpings.

A Project Visibility Activities Fair will also take place on 21st Street, between H and I Streets, during the same two-hour period. There will be a number of displays and information booths set up by GW student organizations.

There will be a Flea Market from 2:30 to 6 pm in the 2000 block of H Street with a wide selection of items offered for sale by area vendors.

A Program Board Extravaganza will take place on the Quad, behind Lisner Hall, at the same time. Plenty of free music and refreshments will be provided.

President Lloyd H. Elliott, in his letter of invitation to the university community said, "Your participation in the day's festivities will go a long way toward achieving the planning committee's goal of opening the new academic year with a program bringing together all elements of the GW community. It will also help to give a warm welcome to Dean Lovett as she shares some of her plans and ideas for the future with us."

AUDITIONS FOR GW COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA AND GW GLEE CLUB

The Department of Music will be holding open auditions for the GW Community Orchestra and the GW Glee Club on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 29, 30 and 31. The auditions will be held in the department's studios. The orchestra auditions will be conducted by William Wright, studio instructor in clarinet and saxophone. Glee club auditions will be conducted by Catherine Pickar, assistant professor of music.

Call Ext. 6245 to schedule an audition time.

INFORMATION CENTER TO OPEN

INFORMATION CENTER PROGRESS--Workmen are nearing completion of the university's new information center, first floor Marvin Center, scheduled to open Tuesday, September 4.

AGE 55 REQUIREMENT REMOVED FOR CREF TRANSFER OPTION

Effective June 1, 1984, TIAA eliminated the requirement that participants be age 55 or older in order to exercise either the CREF Transfer-To-TIAA Option or the Retirement Transition Benefit. Participants may now transfer all or part of their CREF accumulation to TIAA at any age and as often as once a month, provided they transfer a minimum of $1,000. Participants may also receive up to 10 percent of their annuity accumulations in a lump sum at the time retirement annuity income begins, regardless of their age.

A recently revised booklet prepared by TIAA, "Some Thoughts About CREF Transfer-To-TIAA Option," is available for distribution to those participating in the plan in the Records and Benefits Division, Department of Personnel Services, Building GG, 2125 G Street, NW.

WHISTLER EXHIBITION SUBJECT OF FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE

"The Gentle Art of Making Paintings: An Introduction to the Whistler Exhibition at the Freer" will be the subject of September's First Wednesday Lecture. Diane Apostolos-Cappadona, lecturer in religion, will present the illustrated slide-lecture on Wednesday, September 5 at 8 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. The event, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office, is free but those planning to attend are asked to call Ext. 6435 to reserve a place. Dinner, for both members and non-members of the GW University Club, will be served beforehand beginning at 6:30 pm. To make a dinner reservation, call Ext. 6610.

NEH SUMMER STIPEND PROGRAM FOR 1985 APPLICATIONS DUE

Deadlines for applications for the National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Stipend Program for 1985 are Wednesday, September 12 for the campus selection process and Monday, October 1, for completed applications carrying university endorsement.

The endowment sponsors research in the traditional humanistic disciplines and projects in the social sciences which have "humanistic content and employ humanistic methods."

The university must endorse all applications and can nominate only three. Preference will be given to applicants who have not held major postdoctoral fellowships or grants in 1979-80 or later (except for sabbatical leaves). If the number of interested faculty members exceeds the university's quota, GSAS Dean Henry Solomon will form a committee to evaluate applications. The three applicants judged most likely to succeed in this competititon will receive the forms needed to complete application.

DR. BERNARD I. LEVY DIES

Dr. Bernard I. Levy, professor of psychology and director of the university's program in art therapy, died at his summer home in Craftsbury Common, Vermont, on Saturday, August 18. He was 60.

Dr. Levy came to George Washington in 1963 as professor of psychology and as director of graduate training in clinical psychology. He served as acting chairman of the Department of Psychology in the fall semester of the 1966-67 academic year and as chairman of the department from 1967 to 1971. His service as director of graduate training in clinical psychology was from 1963 to 1968. He had been director of the program in art therapy since 1981.

Born April 3, 1924, in New York City, he was a veteran of World War II, having served in the Pacific on Okinawa and Leyte. Wounded in action, he was awarded the Purple Heart. A graduate of New York University (B.A. in psychology, 1948) and of the University of Rochester (Ph.D., 1952), he had also done graduate work at Princeton University. He was research psychologist (social) at Air Force Personnel Training and Research Centers in Texas and Massachusetts from 1952 until 1956 when he came to Washington. For the next seven years, prior to coming to the university, he was chief psychologist at D.C. General Hospital as well as assistant professor of psychology in psychiatry at Georgetwon University Medical Center.

Active in the field of art therapy, he was an honorary life member of the American Art Therapy Association, a fellow of the American Psychological Association and a member of the D.C. Psychological Association. Contributing to scholarly journals, he wrote both articles and book reviews, particularly for the American Journal of Art Therapy. Interested in painting and ceramics, he had taught water color painting at the Chevy Chase Community Center for the past 15 years. He had taught art therapy at Goddard College and Vermont College for the past 10 years. In June of this year, there was an exhibition of his water colors at the Arts Club of Washington, of which he was a member.

He received awards for his water colors from American Artist magazine, the Cayuga County Art League,

(contiued on back)

CHECK-CASHING NOTES

The Cashier's Office announces that there will be no checkcashing services for staff, faculty or students during the week of August 27 to 31. The office also announces that the student check-cashing limit has been increased to $100.

SUMMER CAMPUS PARKING ENDS KENNEDY CENTER PARKING NOW

The University Parking Office advises that Tuesday, August 28, is the last day for summer only on-campus parking. Beginning Wednesday, August 29, parking will be available at the Kennedy Center Garage. Information concerning the Kennedy Center parking is available in the Parking Office, 2211 H Street, NW, Ext. 6405.

LEVY

(continued from front)

the Washington Water Color Society and the Arts Club of Washington.

A memorial service was held in Craftsbury Common, Vermont, on Sunday, August 19, and Dr. Levy was interred there. He is survived by his wife Clare; a son and daughter (twins) Adam of Washington, D.C., and Amy of Fairfax, Va.; his mother, Esther, and a brother, Julian, both of Queens, N.Y. His elder son, Ned, was killed in a traffic accident in 1981.

Memorial gifts may be sent to The George Washington University, Room 701, Gelman Library, Washington, D.C. 20052, or to the United Church of Craftsbury, Craftsbury Common, Vermont, 05827.

A memorial service for Dr. Levy will be held here at the university in October.

BLOOD DRIVE HELD

BLOOD DRIVE--The Red Cross visited the university campus on August 9 and John Principato, a graduate student in the School of Government and Business Administration, was one of 60 people who donated.

AWARD APPLICATIONS FOR TRAVEL TO COLLECTIONS PROGRAM INVITED BY NEH

The National Endowment for the Humanities will be making awards in its Travel to Collections Program for research projects in the humanities as well as for those in the social or natural sciences that are historical or philosophical in nature.

Applicants may propose travel to collections in North America or Western Europe under this program. Criteria used in the evaluation of applications will include: significance of the project for research in the humanities; overall design of the project and the plan of work; need to consult a specific research collection in order to move the project forward satisfactorily; background, training and professional experience of the researcher relevant to the subject; and evidence of the necessary foreign language skills or other skills needed to use the research collection.

Applications must be postmarked by September 15,1984, or January 15, 1985, and mailed to Travel to Collections Program, Division of Research Programs, Room 319, National Endowment for the Humanities, Washington, D.C. 20506.

WEIGHT MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

The Weight Management Program, under the joint sponsorship of the Departments of Medicine and Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies, is sponsoring an orientation session on Monday September 10 at 1 pm in Room 105 of Building K, 817 23rd Street, NW.

For more information and reservations, call Ext. 7324, Monday, Wednesday or Friday between 10 am and noon.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

ANNE MARIE ALEXANDER, employer relations coordinator for the Career Services Center, was interviewed by Bob Williams of the Washington Business Journal. The article,"Finance, High Tech Seek Most College Grads" appeared in the July 30 edition.

JAMES M. BROWN, professor of law, was featured in an article, "Brown Calls It A 'Game' But His Students Play For Keeps," in the Platted Lands Press, July 6.

ROBERT A. LUKE, associate professor of education, was interviewed by the Dallas County Community College on the topic of the role of human resources management in organizations. The videotaped interview will be one of 28 half-hour lessons broadcast open circuit, usually on public/educational stations.

PUBLICATIONS

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, an article, "George Washington: Real and Symbolic Hero," in The Valley Forge Journal, June 1984, pp.5-19.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, an article, "The Two-Track Society," in National Forum (Phi Kappa Phi Journal) Summer 1984.

DONALD GROSS, professor and chairman of operations research and DOUGLAS R. MILLER, professor of operations research, a paper, "The Randomization Technique as a Modeling Tool and Solution Procedure for Transient Markov Processes," in Operations Research; Vol.32, No.2, March-April 1984.

MAUREEN KEARNEY, staff psychologist, Counseling Center, an article, "Confidentiality in Group Psychotherapy," published in Psychotherapy in Private Practice, Summer 1984.

ROBERTA SPALER-ROTH, assistant for grants and curriculum development in the Women's Studies Program and Policy Center, served as a panelist at the national conference on Women, the Economy, and Public Policy in Washington, June 20. The conference was attended by more than 350 participants from 28 states, many of whom were state and local legislators.

PHYLLIS PALMER, assistant professor of Women's Studies and of American Civilization, presented a paper "Racial Divisions in U.S. Housework, 1920-1940," at the Sixth Annual Women's History Conference of the Berkshire Association of Women Historians at Smith College, June 1-3.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JOHN EFTIS, professor of engineering and applied science, was appointed to the ASEE (American Society of Electrical Engineers)-U.S. Navy Summer Faculty Research Program for 1984. The appointment entailed 10 weeks of research in the area of fracture solids at the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C.

ANTHONY V. FIACCO, professor of operation research and applied science, was invited to present two talks to the "Twente Workshop on Systems and Optimization," Twente University of Technology in Enschede, The Netherlands, April 16-18. The lectures were entitled, "Sensitivity Analysis in NLP (Nonlinear Programming)" and "NLP Optimal Value Bonds."

GORDON E. FISHER, captain, U.S. Navy, who was assigned to The George Washington University as professor of naval science on May 31, was elected president of the National Naval Officers Association in July.

HAROLD P. GREEN, professor of law and associate dean of the National Law Center for Post-J.D. Studies, was appointed co-chairman of the American Bar Association National Conference of Lawyers and Scientists on August 8. The National Conference, co-sponsored by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is one of nine Conference Groups that cooperate with other professionals on matters of mutual concern and interest. The appointment is for one year.

JOHN D. HUNT, professor of education, conducted a three-day workshop on tourism planning for the Travel Industry Association of America's National Council of State Travel Officials, July 9-11. The participants came from 35 states and one territory.

THELMA HUNT, professor emeritus of psychology, and CLYDE J. LINDLEY, formerly adjunct professorial lecturer in psychology, conducted a workshop on "Test Item Construction and Analysis" for the International Personnel Management Association Assessment Council during their recent conference in Seattle.

JOHN M. LACHIN, professor of statistics, attended the eighth International Conference on Bile Acids in Cortina, Italy, March 22-24. Dr. Lachin presented a paper on "Study Design of Clinical Trials of Therapeutic Apheresis" at the annual meeting of the International Society of Artificial Organs in Cleveland, Ohio, April 27-28.

JOHN C. LaROSA, professor of medicine and health care science, has been named one of six recipients of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation health policy fellowship for 1984-85. The program was established in 1973 with the goal of giving health professionals who work in an academic setting the opportunity to watch health policy being made by working in the offices of senators and representatives, on the staffs of health-related committees or in health-related offices of the Executive Branch.

ROBERT LICHTER, assistant professor of political science, was a panelist at a forum on "Is there a Liberal Media Elite?" held June 28 at the Mayflower Hotel. The forum was broadcast on C-SPAN cable television and was covered by the Washington Post, New York Times, Associated Press and USA Today.

CONNIE KEARNS McCARTHY, collection management coordinator of the Gelman Library, has been elected vice-chair/chair-elect of the Resources Section of the American Library Association.

HONEY NASHMAN, assistant professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, gave a lecture at a luncheon for the Association of Legal Administrators on July 12. The topic was "Burnout Syndrome: A Critical Analysis."

CAROLYN S. SHAFFER, assistant clinical professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences and LAWRENCE I. SANK, associate clinical professor of health care sciences and psychiatry and behavioral sciences, spoke at the 31st annual convention of the Maryland Psychological Association on June 7-8. Their lecture was entitled, "Cognitive-Behavior Therapy in Groups."

NANCY B. SMITH, research instructor in human kinetics and leisure studies, spoke on "The Benefits of Therapeutic Recreation in a Clinical Setting" June 14 at the Washington Hospital Center, in honor of National Therapeutic Recreation Week. On June 9, she became corresponding secretary of the D.C. Recreation and Park Society. Additionally, she is chairman of the Professional Development and Training Committee of the D.C. Therapeutic Recreation Branch. Lastly, she presented the paper, "The Substance Abuser and Therapeutic Recreation Programing" at Howard University's workshop, "Attitudinal Awareness by Breaking Down Attitudinal Barriers" held last April.

LOIS G. SCHWOERER, professor of history, delivered a paper at the Berkshire Conference of Women Historians meeting at Smith College, June 1-3. The title of the paper was "Women in English Revolutionary Politics, 1680-1690."

ANDREA W. STEWART, director of the Graduate Fellowship Information Center of the Gelman Library, was a panelist in the workshop "Counseling the High Risk Candidate." The workshop was part of the NAPLA (North East Association of Pre-Law Advisors) annual conference in Philadelphia, April 13-15. She served on the 1984 Conference Committee and will serve a second year of her term as a member of NAPLA's Executive Committee.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

DIRECTOR OF CAREER DEVELOPMENT, National Law Center. (The Director, under the supervision of the Assistant Dean for Career Development, will manage the placement operation of 1400 J.D. and LL.M. candidates. Qualifications: minimum of four years experience in either law school placement or law firm (or other legal employer) recruitment; knowledge of career opportunities in law and ability to counsel students on career alternatives and job search strategies; ability to communicate effectively with both students and legal employers essential; experience in career counselling a plus. Salary commensurate with experience.) Send salary requirements, cover letter and resume to: Rosemary Lubeley, Manager, Employment, Personnel Services, 2125 G Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20052.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Division of Gastroenterology. (Job involves both analysis and synthesis of radiolabeled as well as unlabeled bile acid, and bile acid metabolites. Applicants must have at least five years experience in bile acid chemistry and research. Available October 1.) Send resumes only to N. Marshall, Division of Gastroenterology, Burns Medical Building, Room 606, 2150 Pennsylvania Ave, NW, Washington, D.C. 20052.

The George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

September 10, 1984

GW Report

(374)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

DEAN LOVETT, DR. ELLIOTT SPEAK AT CONVOCATION

Dean Clara Lovett

"This is an especially good year to begin to distinguish between what is important in undergraduate education and what is not," Columbian College Dean Clara Lovett told a capacity audience at the university's September 3 Opening Convocation in Marvin Theatre.

She traced the crisis experience of Alverno College, a small Catholic college for women in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, which faced the possibility of closing in 1974 but which survived due to the leadership of its president, the personal commitment of its alumnae and innovative changes. She called attention to the importance of the development of general abilities by undergraduates, a requirement for graduation from Alverno College. Among these abilities she enumerated the ability to present and defend an idea both in writing and orally; to reason quantitatively; to make ethical and aesthetic judgements; and the ability to work with other people in teamwork projects.

"We at George Washington, particularly in Columbian College, are extremely fortunate in that we can look at our own undergraduate experience not in a crisis situation and we can do it from a position of strength," she commented. Noting that the undergraduate experience will be the theme of many national meetings of educators this year, she pointed out that it will also be the subject of the newly announced study by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, which last year issued a report on secondary education in America.

"In order to strengthen Columbian College, I need everybody's help," she said, appealing for the help of the faculty, the students, the alumni, the president and the Board of Trustees. "Columbian College has a distinguished tradition. It is strong, but it needs to be stronger. Please help Columbian College be all it can be," she concluded.

President Lloyd H. Elliott spoke of the Commission for the Year 2000 which he appointed last January to examine the mission and programs of the university. "The Commissions's requests for participation from all segments of the university have been greeted with warm responses," he said. "The university community seems to believe that now is the time to take inventory and to plan for the future." He noted that the focus of many universities in the U.S. has become blurred and continued, "There is no university precisely like us, and yet we too, along with the rest, are now struggling with precisely how we might best express our institutional identity."

He referred to a letter written in 1821 by President James Monroe to the chairman of the board of trustees of Columbian College, now GW, in which he said that "this institution (within the federal district) cannot fail to be eminently useful to the nation."

Dr. Elliott said, "GW has, in fact, a very long tradition of educating public servants." He gave a number of examples, among them Senators J. William Fulbright and Daniel K. Inouye, Mayor Henry Cisneros of San Antonio, John Foster Dulles and Nobel Laureate Julius Axelrod. Stating that responsibility is leadership's most significant attribute, he concluded, "We need institutions and individuals who will subvert their own interests to that of the common good and constantly strive for broader understanding and larger vision. . . This is the quality of leadership GW seeks to provide as an institution and to develop-in the men and women who are its students."

Speaking directly to the students present, he said, "Now to each of you, may I wish this to be one of the best--perhaps the best--year of your life."

Professor William B. Griffith, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Faculty Senate, said to the students, "May my colleagues and I challenge, stimulate and energize you to work harder and learn more than you ever thought you could."

General Alumni Association President John Manning congratulated the students on selecting a fine university and said, "We're here to serve you and the university."

Student Association President Robert F. Guarasci said he thinks this is going to be an excellent year and stated "I believe that dedication is the quality that most characterizes today's students."

INFORMATION CENTER OPENING IS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13

A ribbon-cutting ceremony to open the university's new Information Center is scheduled for Thursday morning, September 13, at 11:30 am, in the first floor lobby of Marvin Center.

President Lloyd H. Elliott, Vice President for Student Affairs, William P. Smith, Marvin Center Director Boris Bell and Columbian College junior Merrill Kinstler, chairman of Marvin Center's Governing Board will make informal remarks.

Among those assisting President Elliott with the ribbon-cutting will be Information Center Supervisor Julie Levi. Everyone is invited. Refreshments will be served after the ceremony.

GW ALUMNUS PILOTS NASA SPACE SHUTTLE "DISCOVERY"

A George Washington University alumnus, Michael L. Coats, was the pilot on NASA's space shuttle "Discovery" for the mission that returned to earth in California's Mojave Desert on Wednesday, September 5.

Coats, a commander in the United States Navy, received the degree of Master of Science in Administration of Science and Technology from GW's School of Government and Business Administration in 1977. He joined the astronaut corps in 1978 to train especially for the shuttle program.

Michael L. Coats

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR PROFESSOR MAZZEO

There will be a memorial service for Professor of Romance Languages Guido E. Mazzeo on Wednesday, September 12, at 12:15 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre of the Marvin Center.

The late Professor Mazzeo, who died June 5, was associated with the university for 38 years. In addition to teaching, he served as chairman of the Department of Romance Languages and Literatures from 1977 to 1983. He had been a member of the Faculty Senate and chairman of the Senate Committee on the Library.

VICE PRESIDENT FRENCH SPEAKS AT FACULTY ASSEMBLY

In a wide-ranging speech at the September 5 meeting of the Faculty Assembly, Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French announced a number of initiatives the university administration will be undertaking in the months and years ahead. He also shared with his listeners views regarding the pursuit of excellence and what he sees as some trends of thinking within the university community.

"Of course we are in pursuit of excellence at GW", he said, "but excellence is subject to variable definitions. . . . What we seek is excellence in our own unique setting in relation to our distinctive evolution."

"It is our particular task, sitting right at the center of the capital city, that as we seek to discharge our high civic obligation to our own nation, we do so as a university and thus with an inherited sense of obligation towards the whole enterprise of human civilization," he continued.

Dr. French announced several new forms of support for research and for seeking support for research that will be made available "in the very near future." He said that Vice President for Administration and Research Carl J. Lange and the staff of the Office of Sponsored Research are prepared to introduce greatly expanded support services which will have several facets. Efforts will be made to broaden the range of information about potential funding sources and to bring information to the attention of faculty. Staff assistance will be provided in planning and organizing proposals and in typing and reproducing them. There will be a word processing station and staff. The office will begin distribution of a periodic newsletter to announce new program sources, new procedures and other helpful information.

(continued on back)

NOMINATIONS...

HONORARY DEGREE NOMINATIONS/SPEAKER SUGGESTIONS ARE DUE BY FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 14

Nominations for honorary degrees and suggestions for speakers at the February, 1985, Winter Convocation are due in the Office of the University Marshal by Friday, September 14.

Nominations should be submitted on forms available from the marshal's office. Special attention should be given to stating the reasons for the nomination. The nominations will be forwarded to the Committee on Public Ceremonies which makes recommendations to the Board of Trustees.

The committee consults with President Lloyd H. Elliott about the speaker for the Winter Convocation. Suggestions for speakers should be submitted to the University Marshal, Building O, Room 102, Ext. 6325, with accompanying biographical data.

ALUMNI ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS NOMINATIONS DUE OCTOBER 1

Nominations for those to be recommended to the GW General Alumni Association governing Board for Alumni Achievement Awards are due by Monday October 1. Those selected will receive the awards in February 1985.

The awards honor those alumni who have an earned degree from the university and who have attained notable achievement in their field or fields of endeavor.

In submitting nominations, forms available from the Alumni Relations Office should be filled out and as much information about the nominee as possible should be supplied. Nominations should be addressed to Alumni House, The George Washington University, Washington, DC, 20052, Attention: Alumni Awards Committee. For more information, call Ext. 6345.

FRENCH (continued from front)

He said that a second new program of support will take the form of summer research awards for junior faculty in the arts and sciences, that up to 10 awards of $4000 each can be made available for the summer of 1985, that the awards will be made jointly by Dean Clara Lovett of Columbian College and Dean Henry Solomon of the Graduate School and that they will shortly announce the criteria and procedure for the program. Dr. French stated that the Dilthey Awards for summer research will be continued.

With regard to the university's resources for academic computing, Vice President French said there is now a five-year plan, developed by a faculty advisory committee from departments throughout the university and that this committee has established guidelines for coordinated, systematic development of a distributed university-wide computer network to be implemented over the next five years. He announced that Professor Arnold Meltzer, chairman of the committee, together with its members, will organize an all-day symposium in the spring semester to engage in intensive examination of issues surrounding the development of the network.

Stating that "we need to give more attention to our interaction with other institutions in the metropolitan area," Dr. French said, "I want to announce today the inauguration of a program to be known as the GW University Seminars." He explained that each seminar would be organized around a subject area that transcends the boundaries of particular disciplines and is of compelling importance not only to members of the GW faculty but also to their distinguished counterparts in other universities, research centers, federal agencies, industry and business. "Only topics that warrant this kind of sustained inquiry by leading scholars will be approved as organizing themes for the seminars," he stated, adding that it is hoped to have the first two such seminars organized and functioning by the spring semester.

Commenting on the need for pervasive mutual respect, he said, "The starting point of all our policies and practices must be what I would call 'a presumption of competence.' We should be able to assume that our colleagues are well-trained and conscientious in their professional work and that their fields of teaching are as highly valued by their students and the external constituencies they serve as are our own."

"One of the most sensitive points about GW," he commented, "and one of the areas most in need of reform...is that old bad habit of self-deprecation." He referred to the philosopher Sartre who said that we may not always be free in life to choose our situation but that we are always free to chose in that situation.

"If we want a new image, we must earn a new image . . . by improving the quality of our teaching, increasing the originality of our research, and raising the calibre of the intellectual life of the university community," he declared.

"This is a privileged moment in the history of GW. An aspiration for greatness animates the institution," he observed. He closed saying, "I count it as my great good fortune to have been invited by the President and the Board of Trustees to succeed my friend Harold Bright in working with all of you in the attempt to translate this high aspiration into fact."

RESEARCH APPRENTICES Angelo Tanna, left, and Melissa Edwards both worked this summer at the GWU Medical Center in the Minority High School Student Research Apprentice Program, funded by the the National Institutes of Health through GW`s GSAS. Angelo, a junior at Piney Branch High School in Montgomery County, worked with Jerry R. Williams, D.Sc., research professor of radiology and pharmacology. Melissa, a senior at D.C.'s Spingarn High School, worked with Gerald Stokes, Ph.D., associate professor of microbiology.

STUDENT-FACULY BARBEQUE

The George Washington University Student Association is sponsoring a student-faculty barbeque on Friday, September 14, noon to 3 pm, in the University Yard.

The event is scheduled in an attempt to strengthen student-faculty relationships. Those planning the event encourage all members of the university community to attend. All food and drinks will be free.

For additional information, call the Student Association, ext.7100.

ART ALUMNI EXHIBIT OPENS IN DIMOCK GALLERY WEDNESDAY

The second GW Art Alumni Invitational Exhibition will open in the Dimock Gallery on Wednesday, September 12, to run through Wednesday, October 10. (The first such exhibition was in 1982.)

The works of 44 George Washington University graduates in art will be on display from 10 am to 5 pm Monday through Friday. There will be 53 works in the exhibition, chosen from 300 entries.

The Cecille R. Hunt Memorial Purchase Prize will be awarded to one exhibitor by Mr. Franz Bader, honorary chairperson, during the opening reception sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office and the Dimock Gallery, on Wednesday, from 5 to 7 pm.

CHRISTOPHER HOGWOOD TO GIVE LECTURE

This Friday, Christopher Hogwood, noted British conductor, keyboard artist and musicologist, will present a lecture entitled "The True Messiah" in Room B-120 of the Academic Center, at 12:30 pm. Tickets will be $5 and available at the door or may be reserved in advance by calling Ext.6245. Seating is limited to 100.

MYRNA SISLEN TO BE IN FACULTY RECITAL

Myrna Sislen, studio instructor in guitar, will give a recital on Monday, September 17, 8 pm, Marvin Theatre.

On guitar, she will perform music by J.S.Bach, Guido Santorsola, and Leo Brouwer. Music of the Renaissance period by the following artists will be performed on the vihuela: Luis Milan; Diego Pisador; Luys de Narvaez; and Alonso Mudarra.

The performance will be free and open to the public.

NON-TENURED WOMEN FACULTY FELLOWSHIPS OPPORTUNITY

The George Washington University has been invited to nominate one or two candidates for the Non-Tenured Women Faculty Fellowship Program for 1985-87 offered through the Mary Ingraham Bunting Institute at Radcliffe College.

Fellowships will be awarded to women who are in a tenure track position at major research universities. Applicants must have received their doctorates one year prior to application.

Fellowships for the two-year period include a stipend of $16,500, research expenses and a travel allowance, as well as access to office space and to the libraries of Radcliffe and Harvard.

Applicants must be nominated by the presidents of their institutions by October 1. Faculty members who wish to be considered should call Andrea W.Stewart at the Graduate Fellowship Information Center, Ext. 6217, or the Mary Ingraham Bunting Institute (617) 495-8512.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Medicine. (Job will entail physiologic and immunologic techniques, animal care and feeding, and sample preparation. Requirements: degree in biology; graduate experience in pharmacology and biochemistry; one year of relevant experience; and laboratory experience in intestinal physiology. Available immediately.) Contact Dr. Paul L. Kimmel, Department of Medicine, Room 505, Burns Memorial Building, Ext.4247.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Physiology. (Job will involve the measuring of glucose absorption/glucose tolerence and insulin response in serum in groups of rats fed several diets for four weeks postweaning, and the sectioning of histological materials for the determination of intestinal cell turnover and cell migration rates utilizing autoradiograph techniques and computer morphorgraphics. Bachelor's degree and one year's relevant experience required.) Contact Dr. Marie M. Cassidy, Dept. of Physiology, Room 443, Ross Hall, Ext.3552.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmitive action employer.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, a chapter, "Management Development in the Public Sector" in Management Development and Training Handbook (Bernard Taylor and Gordon Lippitt, eds., McGraw-Hill); and an article, "The New Principles of Management" in the summer issue of The Bureaucrat.

BEN BURDETSKY, professor of management and labor relations and MARVIN S. KATZMAN, assistant professor of business administration, two articles, "The Strike: A Weapon Whose Time has Passed" in Indian Labour Journal, May; and "Is The Strike Iron Still Hot?" in Personnel Journal, July.

THELMA Z. LAVINE, Elton professor of philosophy, a review of John Lachs' Intermediate Man (Indianapolis, Hackett Publishing Co., 1981) in Review of Metaphysics, Vol.37, No.4, June, pp.861-63.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, an essay, "Make No Little Plans...I Have a Dream" in Historical Perspectives on Urban Design: Washington, D.C. 1890-1910, July, the first in a series of occasional papers sponsored by The George Washington University Center for Washington Area Studies.

BERRY MORGAN, assistant professor of English, a short story, "The Lower Pontalba," in The New Yorker, March 12.

ROBERT H. RUFFNER, lecturer in CCEW's Fund Raising Administrator Program, a book, The Handbook of Publicity and Public Relations for the Nonprofit Organization (Prentice-Hall Inc., 1984.)

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

DOROTHY A. MOORE, professor of education, was invited to present a paper, "Developing Global Perspectives Through International Education," at the Fifth World Congress of Comparative Education at the Sorbonne, Paris, France, in July.

LOIS G. SCHWOERER, professor of history, attended the annual meeting of the Anglo-American Conference of Historians held in London, England, in July. She was appointed as the representative of the United States to the Anglo-American Historical Committee.

RICHARD F. SOUTHBY, professor and chairman of Health Services Administration and professor of health care sciences, in August, completed his service on the Medicaid Cost Containment Task Force which was appointed by the Commissioner of Human Services for the State of New Jersey to review the Governor's Management Improvement Plan as it relates to the Medicaid Program. He served as chairman of the subcommittee which conducted an in-depth review of the Medicaid Program and prepared the final report for the task force. The report was unanimously accepted and approved by the task force July 24, and is in the process of being forwarded to the Commissioner and the Governor of New Jersey. The task force began its work in November, 1983.

ROBERT C. WATERS, professor of engineering administration, participated in the Annual Conference of the American Society for Engineering Education in Salt Lake City, July 25-28. He presented a paper entitled "One Man's Opinion: Research in Engineering Management at GWU."

September 17, 1984

GW Report

(375)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

GIFTS TO UNIVERSITY REACH RECORD HIGHS IN 1983-1984

"This was a very good year," comments Vice President for Development Michael J. Worth, speaking of the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1984.

This was the year in which the university achieved a new record for the Annual Fund, a new record for total support and the largest gift in university history.

Gift support for 1983-84 was $10,182,830 excluding research, compared with $6,746,816 in 1982-83. The 1983-84 totals include only $2.6 million of the Lyle and Freda Alverson gift of $6 million, announced May 17. Gift support came from alumni, non-alumni, businesses and corporations, and foundations and organizations. Combined with funds in the amount of $1,559,161 for research and special programs from business and corporations, foundations and organizations, gifts and grants from private sources came to $11,741,991.

GW alumni gave $981,068 to the Annual Fund; $336,422 for buildings and equipment; and $3,894,128 to endowments. In the same categories, non-alumni individuals gave $486,143; $216,476; and $1, 376, 672.

Businesses and corporations gave $1,330,148 to the Annual Fund; $526,325 for buildings and equipment; $272,573 to endowments; and $419,000 for research and special programs. Foundations and organizations gave $715,801 to the Annual Fund; $28,225 for buildings and equipment; $18,849 to endowments; and $1,140,161 for research and special programs.

"This record result is a tribute to the dedicated efforts of many individuals," Dr. Worth says. "As we look ahead to the future of our university, we can be most encouraged."

The university's annual report for 1983-84 will be available after October 18 for those members of the university community who wish to have copies and will include a listing of all contributors.

PUBLICATION CELEBRATION FEATURES JULIA ALVAREZ

A celebration of the publication of the volume Evidence of Community will feature a reading by Julia Alvarez, 1984-65 Jenny McKean Moore Visiting Lecturer on Tuesday, September 25, at 8 pm in Room B-120 of the Academic Center.

The volume, which includes writing from the Jenny McKean Moore Workshops at The George Washington University, has been edited by David W. McAleavey, associate professor of English, with an afterword by Gloria Naylor, 1983-84 Jenny McKean Moore Visiting Lecturer.

Evidence of Community is Number 11 in the university's Washington Studies monograph series, published by the GW Center for Washington Area Studies.

Copies of the monograph may be ordered from the center. Call Ext. 6073.

GUTHRIDGE HALL OPENING

GUTHRIDGE HALL was officially opened with a ribbon-cutting ceremony on September 7. Paul Tarlow, president of the Residence Hall Association, is shown speaking, as Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl listens. Guthridge Hall will now be used as a residence for undergraduates.

LINDA DONNELS NAMED ASSISTANT DEAN FOR EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

Linda Donnels, director of Services for Students with Disabilities, was named assistant dean for educational services on the Dean of Students' staff July 1. Her new responsiblities will include administrative oversight of the Educational Opportunity Program and coordination of the academic assistance programs administered by the Dean of Students' office.

She holds an M.A. in Counseling from Gallaudet College and a B.S. in English Education from Ohio State University. She has been Director of Services for Students with Disabilities since 1978 and will continue to supervise the services. She will work with newly appointed Executive Assistant Christy Willis.

AVIS CAR RENTAL DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE FOR GW PEOPLE

The Office of Procurement and Supply informs us that Avis Rent-A-Car discount stickers are available for members of the university community. The stickers may be obtained from Mrs. M. Plunket in the office, Rice Hall, 5th floor.

The daily discount rates in the United States are 22 per cent on a daily basis and 10 percent weekly. Unlimited free milage is included. The international discount rate is 10 percent.

To receive the discount, you present the Avis discount sticker at the time of your rental. Cash may be used or the toll-free number for making reservations which appears on the sticker may be affixed to any major credit card. Each individual will be billed directly from the credit card company and will be directly responsible for payment. Those using this benefit should save their receipts in case there is a discrepancy in the billing.

PERSONNEL SERVICES ANNOUNCES TRAINING SESION PROGRAMS

The Training Division of Personnel Services has issued the latest schedule of training sessions for university employees. Scheduled programs from September to December 1984 include: Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation; Career Discussion; Delegation Skills; Discipline in the Work Environment; Effective Meetings; Employment Interviewing; Essentials of Grammar; Medical Terminology; MFA Support Staff; Office Skills; Skills for Employees in Lead Positions; Strategies for Supervision; and Time Management.

The eligibility requirements for programs vary; contact the Training Division at Ext.4980 for details.

PROFESSOR JAY SHOTEL NAMED ASSISTANT DEAN OF SEHD

Professor of Special Education Jay R. Shotel was appointed assistant dean of the School of Education and Human Development, effective July 1.

Dr. Shotel came to the university in 1972 as assistant professor of special education. He received tenure in the fall of 1975 and was promoted to associate professor in 1976 and full professor in 1981. He served as coordinator of doctoral programs in special education from 1979 to 1984. In his 12 years at George Washington, Dr. Shotel has served on many school and university committees and has chaired the Committee on Appointment, Salary and Promotion Policies (including Fringe Benefits) while serving on the Faculty Senate.

Professor Shotel has been both project director and principal investigator on many projects receiving funding from the federal government, the most recent, "Comprehensive Study of the Department of Defense Independent Schools." Active in the professional education community as an author and a speaker at national conferences, he has been a hearing officer for the District of Columbia and both state and local education agencies in Maryland. He is currently an institutional evaluator for the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education. Dr. Shotel received both his master's and doctoral degrees from Temple University.

MBA FORUM IS SEPTEMBER 28,29

The MBA Forum, sponsored by the Graduate Management Admission Council of Princeton, New Jersey, will be held in Washington, DC, on Friday and Saturday, September 28 and 29, at the Washington Marriott, 1221 - 22nd Street, NW. Hours will be 2 to 8 pm on Friday and 10 am to 4 pm on Saturday.

(continued on back)

---OUR CHANGING CAMPUS---

(Editor's Note: In cooperation with the Faculty Senate Committee on Physical Facilities, chaired by Professor Richard A. Kenney, and the Office of the Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl, GW Report provides this information on campus construction for the university community at the beginning of each semester.)

Since January we have completed renovations to Guthridge Hall and very nearly completed work at the Law Center and also in Samson Hall for Forensic Sciences Laboratories. Except for construction of the University Support Building (2000 Block of F Street) scheduled for December occupancy, this completes the construction program underway last year.

A new program is in various stages of project completion. A contract to modify portions of Tompkins Hall for engineering CAD/COM laboratory facilities was awarded in mid-May. We expect completion early in 1985.

Bids are being taken on a university telecommunications system. This project will provide us with a university owned and operated system capable of handling voice, low and high speed data and video transmission. We anticipate awarding the contract for system installation and implementation early in 1985.

Final design is in process for modifications and renovation of the former United Church and parsonage on 20th Street to provide modern and expanded teaching and support facilities for the Radio/TV Program. We expect these facilities to be ready for use during the 1986-87 academic year.

The final, and largest, project under design is an addition to the H.B. Burns Memorial Building. This addition, to be constructed south of the Burns Building along 22nd Street, will allow us to bring back on campus Medical Center departments and also the HMO now located off campus. In addition, several services and functions which are predominantly ambulatory will be moved from the University Hospital, thereby relieving severe overcrowding in that building.

MBA FORUM

(continued from front)

Representatives from over 75 graduate business schools, including GW's School of Government and Business Administration, will participate. Workshops on school selection, the graduate school experience, M.B.A. and Ph.D. career opportunities, and the GMAT (Graduate Management Admission Test) will be held concurrently. There is a $5 daily registration fee, payable at the door. For more information, call Andrea Stewart, Ext. 6217.

FALL FELLOWSHIP INFORMATION MEETING IS THIS FRIDAY

The university's Fall Fellowship Information Meeting will be held on Friday, September 21, at 3 pm in Marvin Center, Room 410. Professor Jonathan Moreno, faculty advisor for national fellowship awards, and Andrea Stewart, director, Graduate Fellowship Information Center, will speak at the meeting. Discussion topics will include the various national fellowships, such as the Rhodes, Fulbright, Mellon National Science Foundation and Marshal Scholarships. There will be a presentation on the services of the Graduate Fellowship Information Center. Seniors and graduate students will especially benefit from this meeting, although anyone is welcome to attend. For more information, call Ext. 6217.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT SPONSORS TUESDAY NOON POETRY SERIES

The George Washington University English Department has begun a Tuesday Noon Poetry Series held each Tuesday from noon to 1 pm in the Atrium of 2000 Pennsylvania Ave.

Each Tuesday at noon, during the school year, two featured poets will read from their works. One poet will represent the GW poetry community, and the other the greater Washington community. Following the featured readings, members of the audience are encouraged to read their own works in an open reading.

Tomorrow, Judith Harris from GW and E. Ethelbert Miller with Arnae from Washington will read. Next Tuesday, A.L. Nielsen from GW and Joan Retallack from Washington will be featured. Admission is always free.

BURNETT THOMPSON IN CONCERT SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22

Burnett Thompson, Washington area pianist, will give a concert on Saturday, September 22, 8 pm, Dorothy Betts Marvin Theater. His program will include three improvisations and music of Chopin and Schumann. The concert is sponsored by the GW Department of Music and the Dimock Gallery, Art Department. Tickets will be available at the door, adults-$5, students and senior citizens-$3.

FULBRIGHT ALUMNI ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING TO BE AT GW

The seventh annual meeting of the Fulbright Alumni Association will be held on the campus of The George Washington University on Friday, October 12. Sessions will be in the Marvin Center between 8:30 am and 5:30 pm.

Any former Fulbrighters are invited to attend the meeting, to join the national Fulbright Alumni Association and the association's recently organized local Washington chapter.

For more information, contact Christine Meloni, English for International Students, Academic Center, T-604, Ext. 6938.

RECEPTION

MINORITY STUDENTS RECEPTION--President Lloyd H. Elliott, left, talks with Captain Gordon E. Fisher, U.S. Navy, commanding officer of GW's NROTC Unit, at a September 7 reception, sponsored by 10 campus organizations. The reception was held so that faculty members, administrators and students could get acquainted.

FELLOWSHIP OPPORTUNITY OCTOBER DEADLINES

Three fellowship and grant opportunities have early October deadlines. They are: the Wilson Center Fellowships for Scholars (October 1); the American Council of Learned Societies Fellowships and Grants for Postdoctoral Research, 1985 (October 1); and the National Hispanic Scholarship Fund (October 5, postmark deadline); the Committee on Scholarly Communication with the People's Republic of China Graduate Fellowships for Advanced Study and Research in China (October 6). More information is available from the Graduate Fellowship Information Center, Room 621-D, Gelman Library, Ext. 6217.

FREE PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT SERIES CATALOGUES AVAILABLE

Catalogues for the Counseling Center's free Personal Development Series for the Fall Semester are now available.

The series of groups and workshops is designed to teach students new skills to help them reduce stress and take full advantage of GW's academic environment. The groups are listed for this semester are: The Adaptive Life Lab; Building Self-Confidence; The Manana Syndrome; Insomnia; a series of Study Skills Seminars; Managing Stress through Relaxation; and, at the end of the term, Last Chance Study Skills.

Sign-ups are being conducted at the center. While priority is given to students, staff, faculty and alumni can register on a space available basis. Catalogues are available around campus and at the center, Building N, 718 - 21st Street, NW. Hours are 9 am to 5 pm. Call Ext. 6550.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, received a plaque for writing the article of the year, "The Manager's Responsibilities for Productivity Improvement" in The Armed Forces Comptroller, Vol.28, No.3, Summer 1984. In May, he spoke at the annual conference of the American Society of Military Comptrollers in Kansas City.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, gave a lecture, "Poetry, Painting and Calligraphy: The Scholarly Arts of China" to the Luce Scholars, who will be spending next year in Asia, at Princeton University, August 24.

JOSEPH J. CORDES, associate professor of economics, testified on August 2 before the U.S. House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee on tax credits for research and development.

JAMES FOLEY, professor of engineering and applied science, and JOHN SIBERT, professor of engineering and applied science, taught a tutorial entitled "How to Design User-Computer Interfaces" at the Conference of ACM-SIGGRAPH (Association for Computing Machinery - Special Interest Group for Graphics) July 23-27 in Minneapolis. Foley also presented "History of Interaction in Computer Graphics" in the session "A Retrospective: Six Perennial Issues in Computer Graphics."

MARILYN GARST, adjunct professor of piano, recently returned from Utah and Colorado where, in June, she performed as part of a cello-piano duo with Bonnie Mangold, cellist in the Utah Symphony. They appeared in Steinway Hall in Salt Lake City and presented two private concerts in Salt Lake City and Denver.

DONALD GROSS, professor and chairman of Operations Research, and W.H.MARLOW, professor of operations research attended TIMS (The Institute of Management Sciences) XXVI International Meeting in Coppenhagen, Denmark, June 18-22. Marlow co-chaired the session "Logistics" and presented a paper, "Some Numerical Measures of Readiness," which was co-authored by Shelemyahu Zacks of SUNY-Binghamton. Gross chaired a session called "Queueing I" and presented a paper, "On Some Common Interests Among Reliability, Inventory and Queueing."

PETER P. HILL, professor of history, made local arrangements for the 10th annual meeting of the Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations held on The George Washington University campus, August 1-4, in conjunction with a joint meeting of the American Military Institute and the Conference on Peace Research in History. He chaired a session on "An American Foreign Service Officer's Oral History Project."

MICHAEL KAPLAN, a Master's degree student in the Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, won the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers' (IEEE) student paper competition. The paper, "Antenna Design for Simultaneously Communicating in L-Band with Two Low-Flying Coorbital Spacecraft," was a project for DR. RAYMOND PICKHOLTZ'S EE 244 class.

THELMA Z. LAVINE, Elton professor of philosophy, has been invited to write the Introduction to Volume 15 of The Later Works of John Dewey, 1925-1953, which includes all of Dewey's writings for 1942 through 1949, chiefly the essays revised and published as Knowing and the Known, in which Dewey collaborated with the political scientist Arthur Bentley, and in which problems cutting across philosophy, the social sciences and language are explored. The upcoming publication of the Collected Works of John Dewey, through the Center for Dewey Studies at Southern Illinois University, is seen as a landmark in American philosophy.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, gave four lectures on the history of architecture in the San Francisco Bay Area as part of the "Architecture in Three Great American Cities" series sponsored by the National Preservation Institute in Washington, June 8. In July, he served as a consultant to the Nebraska State Historical Society on developing a strategy for implementation of the National Park Service's Resource Protection Planing Process along with architect Philip Johnson, he is currently serving as a consultant to the Chicago law firm, Burke, Bosselman, Prievogel, Weaver, Slaves and Ryan, on a major landmarks case in Palm Beach. August 19 to 22, he worked for the National Trust's Main Street Center advising on design and revitalization issues in Marquette and Hancock, Michigan.

AYUB K. OMMAYA, clinical professor of neurological surgery, coordinated/moderated the course, "Brains, Minds, and Machines," offered by the Smithsonian Resident Associate Program in cooperation with NIH and the Washington Philosophy Club, July 10-August 14. Ommaya conducted two sessions, "Mechanism of Consciousness: An Overview of the Brain and Its Higher Functions," and "Emergence of a New Paradigm for the Mind and Brain?" THELMA Z. LAVINE, Elton professor of philosophy, participated in the course by presenting the lecture, "Artificial Intelligence and the Classical Conception of Mind."

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, professor of psychology, presented a paper at the Third International Conference on System Science in Health Care in Munich, Germany, July 16-20. The paper was entitled "Universal Methods of Evaluating Psychotherapy Delivery Systems: Five Proposals." While in Europe, Professor Phillips consulted with the World Health Organization in Geneva, Switzerland and the Department of Psychology, University of Amsterdam, Holland on the attrition problem in mental health delivery systems.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (14 hrs/wk), Women's Studies Program and Policy Center. (Individual will work on the "Training Women to Make Public Policy in Women's Interest" project. Duties will include assisting project principals with library and organizational research, program evaluation, curriculum development, internship placements, publicity, conference and workshop organizing and report preparation. Desirable skills include: library, organization, evaluation and other social science research skilss; writing and editing; curriculum development for classroom use; and program organizing and marketing. Bachelors degree required and a minimum of one year relevant experience; M.A. candidate in public policy/women's studies preferable). Send resumes to Roberta Spalter-Roth, WSPPC, Room 212, 2025 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20052 or call Ext.6942.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT (20 hrs/wk), Department of Biochemistry. (Position involves studies on the pharmacokinetics of Baclofen and requires experiences in isotopes, animal work and radioimmunoassays. Bachelors degree and a minimum of one year's related experience also required. Position available Spetember 30). Contact Dr. George V. Vahouny, Department of Biochemistry, Ross Hall, Room 536, 2300 I St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmitive action employer.

September 24, 1984

GW Report

(376)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

INFORMATION CENTER OPENING

Ready to answer questions at our new Information Center on the first floor of Marvin Center are, l to r, Sarah Foster, an SGBA junior studying information processing; Information Center Supervisor Julie Levi; Dan Moshavi, an SPIA senior in international affairs; and Janet Pollack, a first year graduate student in SGBA.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE MONDALE TO SPEAK AT NOON ON TUESDAY

Democratic Presidential Candidate Walter F. Mondale will speak in Lisner Auditorium on Tuesday, September 25, at noon. His appearance is sponsored by GW's College Democrats, Student Association and Program Board. Seating is expected to be limited.

PRESIDENT BELAUNDE-TERRY OF PERU SPEAKS THURSDAY

President Fernando Belaunde-Terry of Peru will address The George Washington University Community on Thursday, September 27, at 11 am, following a meeting at the White House with President Reagan, earlier that morning. He will speak in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre in Marvin Center.

President Belaunde was here at George Washington as visiting professor of urban history and planning in the Departments of Urban and Regional Planning and of History from September 1973 to June of 1978. He was elected president of Peru for the second time, in 1980. He was previously president from 1963 to 1968.

RICHARD J. BEDNAR IS DIRECTOR, GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS PROGRAM OF THE NATIONAL LAW CENTER

Dean Jerome A. Barron of GW's National Law Center, announces the appointment of Brigadier General Richard J. Bednar, U.S. Army (Ret.), as director, Government Contracts Program. General Bednar assumed the post on September 1.

He was, until July 1 of this year, the Assistant Judge Advocate General of the Army for Civil Law, with responsibility for Army contract law, civil litigation and regulatory law. In addition, he was the Army authority for debarment and suspension of government contractors. General Bednar holds a Master of Laws in Government Procurement Law from the National Law Center and has had extensive experience in resolving legal problems arising out of the formation and performance of government contracts. He has also had wide experience teaching and lecturing in government contracts subjects and in supervising continuing legal education programs within the Army.

General Bednar will assume responsiblity for a national program which conducts a series of continuing education courses and publishes books and monographs in the field of government procurement. In addition, he will share with Professors of Law Ralph C. Nash, John Cibinic and others teaching duties in the Continuing Legal Education Program and in the writing of textbooks and monographs.

Director Bednar, who lives in Alexandria, Virginia, is married to the former Judith Ann Jaudon and has four children.

Richard J. Bednar

WILLIAM DRAPER, EXPORT-IMPORT BANK PRESIDENT TO SPEAK AT GW

William Draper, president and chairman of the Export-Import Bank, will speak at a luncheon Wednesday, October 3, in the GW University Club.

The event is sponsored jointly by the Alumni Associations of the School of Public and International Affairs and the School of Government and Business Administration. The luncheon is scheduled from 11:30 am to 1:30 pm.

The Export-Import Bank is completing 50 years of export support. Mr.Draper will speak briefly of the lessons learned from this experience and will discuss the challenges of the last half of the 1980s in the light of changing international and business relationships.

For further information and reservations, call Ext. 6435.

GW DOCTORAL STUDENT IS AWARDED FELLOWSHIP

Clare Marie Tomaselli, a Ph.D. student in aerospace physiology at the University, has been awarded a ZONTA Amelia Earhart Fellowship for research work being conducted at the Kennedy Space Center in the Biomedical Research Division.

ZONTA International is a worldwide classified service organization of executive women in business and the professions. The $5,000 grant, offered annually to women qualified for graduate study in aerospace-related science or engineering, memorializes the organization's famous member, air pioneer Amelia Earhart, who disappeared on a flight over the Pacific Ocean in 1937. Funds for the grants come from annual contributions by the over 900 clubs which comprise ZONTA International.

NEW FULL-TIME NON-MEDICAL FACULTY THIS FALL

New members of the full-time, non-medical faculty as of September 1, 1984, are:

JULIA ALTAGRACIA ALVAREZ, Jenny McKean Moore Visiting Lecturer in Creative Writing;
MARY BURNS BANDAS, visiting adjunct instructor in English;
MICHAEL A. BOBRIK, visiting assistant professor of chemistry;
PATRICE CONNERTON, adjunct instructor in English;
CYNTHIA J. DEMNITZ, visiting adjunct instructor in English;
MARIE ELIZABETH EVANS, adjunct instructor in English;
GORDON EVERETT FISHER, professor of naval science, chairman of the Department of Naval Science;
ANTONIO CARLOS FONSECA, visiting associate professor of physics;
ROBERT S. FORTNER, associate professor of communication and theatre;
KIM J. HARTSWICK, visiting assistant professor of art;
CLARE L. IACOBELLI, adjunct instructor in English;
ASHFAQ M. ISHAQ, visiting assistant professor of economics;
YOUNG-KEY KIM-RENAUD, assistant professor of Korean language;
KARIN E. KLENKE-HAMEL, assistant professor of administrative sciences, academic director, Administrative Science Program, Tidewater Area Center;
PAUL CHARLES LIGHT, visiting associate professor of political science;
MARK LEONARD LINVER, assistant professor of naval science;
MICHAEL BRUCE LOEWY, assistant professor of economics;
CLARA M. LOVETT, professor of history, dean of Columbian College of Arts and Sciences;
ABRAHAM M. MARK, visiting professor of statistics/computer and information systems;
WILLIAM B. MARTIN, assistant professor of naval science;
LEO C. MOERSEN, assistant professor of accountancy;
PAUL ROLAND MORIN, associate professor of naval science;
SEYYED HOSSEIN NASR, university professor of Islamic studies;
RAMAIAH DEVADOSS PANDIAN, visiting assistant professor of mathematics;
THOMAS SCOTT PARRY, assistant professor of Spanish;
JAMES HILLIARD PERRY, JR., associate professor of business administration;
RICHARD CLAY RICH, visiting associate professor of political science, Benjamin Banneker Visiting Professor of Washington Studies;
FERNANDO ROBLES, assistant professor of business administration;
MAURICE M. ROUMANI, visiting professor of Middle East studies;
MARY ANNE PLASTINO SAUNDERS, adjunct instructor in English;
SAMUEL SHIFLETT, associate professor of psychology;
THOMAS F. SHINE, visiting assistant professor of business administration;
DENNIS LEE SIMON, assistant professor of naval science;
LARRY G. SINGLETON, assistant professor of accountancy;
KEITH E. SMITH, assistant professor of accountancy;
LAWRENCE SOMER, visiting assistant professor of mathematics;
BARBARA D. STEFFEN, visiting instructor in education;
WILLIAM F. THOMAS, assistant professor of accountancy;
ALBAN WILLIAM URBANAS, visiting assistant professor of philosophy;
WILLIAM THOMAS WANDER, visiting assistant professor of political science;
MANNING GILBERT WARREN, III, visiting professor of law;
WILLIAM GAYNOR WELLS, JR., associate professor of management science;
DAVID NORVAL WIGTIL, visiting assistant professor of classics;
MENG-HUA YE, assistant professor of economics.

GW Music

STEINER AND GARST IN FACULTY RECITAL, OCTOBER 1

The Department of Music is sponsoring a faculty recital on Monday, October 1st, 8 pm, in the Marvin Theatre. The featured artists will be George Steiner, professor of music, on violin and Marilyn Garst, adjunct assistant professor of music, on harpsichord. They will perform works of Von Biber, Vivaldi, Porpora, Handel, Tartini, and Bach. Tickets, available at the door, will be $4-general admission; $2-GW alumni and employees; and $1-students and senior citizens.

GW ART ALUMNI EXHIBITION OPENING--Ray Wilkins (M.F.A. 1973) second from left, who received the Cecille R. Hunt Memorial Purchase Prize at the opening of the exhibition of works by GW art alumni in the Dimock Gallery, is shown with, l to r, Franz Bader, honorary chairman of the exhibition; Dimock Gallery Curator Lenore D. Miller; and Walter J. Hunt, donor of the purchase prize. The exhibition continues through October 10.

KELLOGG FELLOWSHIP APPLICATION DEADLINE IS DECEMBER 31, 1984

The Kellogg Foundation is now accepting applications from those who wish to participate in the sixth class of an annual National Fellowship Program. The program began in 1980 as a commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Michigan.

Grants of up to $30,000 will be awarded to 50 selected fellows who are in the early years of professional activity. The objective of the program is "not to help individuals deepen their expertise in any one discipline, but to stretch their perspective and better equip them to interpret the complexities of society's many problems and challenges."

Applicants must include a letter of endorsement from the chief executive officer and appropriate dean of their institutions, a statement of personal and professional goals, an outline of their plan of study, and three references detailing professional and leadership abilities. The university must agree to provide fellows with a minimum of 25 percent of released time. The Kellogg Foundation will give 12.5 percent of the annual salary of the fellow (not to exceed an aggregate amount of $12,000 for the three years) as partial reimbursement for released time. Any number of individuals from an institution may apply. The deadline for completed applications and institutional reference is December 31, 1984. For additional information, call Ext. 6217.

GW GREENHOUSE ANNUAL SALE IS NEXT MONDAY, OCTOBER 1

The GW Greenhouse annual plant sale is scheduled for next Monday, October 1, from noon to 6 pm on the platform of Lisner Hall, 2023 G Street, NW. If it rains, the sale will be held in the first floor lobby of Lisner Hall.

Semi-tropical plants, both small and large, that would thrive indoors will be offered for sale. There will also be some botanicals "that you normally can't buy" according to Greenhouse Manager Robin Milman. For those who are interested in outdoor plants, there will be chrysanthemums.

STUDENT-FACULTY BARBEQUE

At the recent Student Association-sponsored barbecue in the University Yard, F. William Rambo, director of the GW Center for Academic and Administrative Computing, left, and James C. King, professor of German, second from left, stood in line with students to sample the varied menu.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

DENNIS E. GALE, professor of urban and regional planning, was interviewed for a television program on trends in American cities. The program, "Summer Sunday - USA," was co-hosted by Andrea Mitchell and Linda Ellerbee and aired on NBC-TV on August 5. He was also interviewed for the article "When Worlds Collide," in Historic Preservation magazine, August 1984, on displacement of low-income people by inner city reinvestment trends.

THELMA Z. LAVINE, Elton professor of philosophy, was interviewed about her book, Socrates to Sartre: The Philosophic Quest (Bantam Books, 1984), on "Eye on Washington"/WDCA-TV, Channel 20, July 12. She was also interviewed about the book on "Washington Symposium"/WLTT-FM, July 18.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, gave a taped interview in June for a public radio program in Kansas on the significance of opera houses and other commercial building types in the central United States.

PUBLICATIONS

DENNIS E. GALE, associate professor of urban and regional planning, a book, Neighborhood Revitalization and the Postindustrial City, (Lexington Books, 1984). It is part of the Politics of Planning Series edited by Dr. Barry Checkoway of the University of Michigan.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, two articles: "Oceanic Pollution and the Southern Ocean: Rethinking the International Legal Implications for Antarctica," Natural Resources Journal, Vol.24, January 1984, pp.1-40; and "Anglo-Argentine Rivalry after the Falklands/Malvinas War: Laws, Geopolitics, and the Antarctic Connection," Lawyer of the Americas, Vol.15, Winter 1984, pp.467-502.

JOHN W. KENDRICK, professor of economics, an article, "Productivity Gains will Continue," The Wall Street Journal, August 29.

R. EMMETT KENNEDY, professor of European history, a review of Robert Darnton's book, The Great Cat Massacre and Other Episodes in French Cultural History, (N.Y. Basic Books, 1984) in the summer issue of the Wilson Quarterly, pp.136-137.

JAMES C. KING, professor of German, a review of Herbert Backes's book, Die Hochzeit Merkurs und der Philologie: Studien zu Notkers Martian-Ubersetzung, in Speculum, A Journal of Medieval Studies, Vol.59.2, April 1984, pp.366-368.

DEBORAH C. MASTERS, head, Reference Department, Gelman Library, co-edited Reference Sources for Small and Medium-Sized Libraries, Fourth Edition. The book is published by the American Library Association, Reference and Adult Services Division.

S.H. NASR, university professor of Islamic studies, had two book chapters and a magazine article published: "The philosophia perennis and the Study of Religion," in the book The World's Religious Traditions, F. Whaling, ed., Edinburgh, 1984, pp.181-200; "The Metaphysics of Sadr al-Din Shirazi and Islamic Philosophy in Qajar Persia," in the book Qajar Iran, Political, Social and Cultural Change 1800-1925, E. Bosworth and C. Hillenbrand, eds., Edinburgh, 1983, pp.177-198; and "Eternity and Temporal Order - A View of Evolution from the Islamic Perspective," Revista di Biologia, Rome, Vol.77, No.2, 1984, pp.211-232. Two of his books were recently translated from English into Indonesian: Ideals and Realities of Islam (2nd edition, Jakarta, 1983) to Islam Dalam Cita Dan Fakta; and Islam and the Plight of Modern Man (Bandung, 1983) to Islam Dan Nestapa anusia Modern.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

GEORGE R. BOZZINI, associate professor of English, gave lectures and conducted workshops at the Tenth Annual English Teaching Seminar in Damascus, Syria, July 29 to August 19. The seminar was sponsored jointly by the Syrian Ministry of Education, the United States Information Agency and the British Council.

ALF HILTEBEITEL, professor of religion, received a grant from the American Philosophical Society which enabled him to go to South India this summer to complete fieldwork on a study of the cult of Draupadi, the heroine of the Sanskrit epic, the Mahābhārata, who is worshipped by villagers in the South Indian state of Tamilnadu as a form of the Hindu Great Goddess. He began this study in 1974.

GARTH P. McCORMICK, professor of applied science, presented a paper entitled "Global Maximum Likelihood Estimation for Frequency Tables Involving Indirect Observation" at the 144th Annual Meeting of the American Statistical Association in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, August 15. The paper was coauthored with Dr. Sylvia G. Leaver of the Bureau of Labor Statistics and GW alumna (D.Sc.1984).

RICHARD A. STERN-BOSWELL, assistant professor of clinical law, was a guest speaker on U.S. immigration policy at the annual conference of the National Office for Black Catholics in New Orleans on August 9. His speech was the topic of a newspaper article in the New Orleans Times-Picayune on August 10.

NEIL TILKENS, associate professor of music, gave a piano concert on September 2 at the Coolfont Foundation in West Virginia. He performed works of Johannes Brahms, Charles T. Griffes, and Claude Debussy.

RUTH A. WALLACE, professor of sociology, delivered a paper at the annual meeting of the American Sociological Association on August 28 in San Antonio, Texas. The paper was entitled, "Society, Meaning and Religion: A Commentary on Niklas Luhmann."

T. THORNE WIGGERS, coordinator of Outreach and Consultation for the Counseling Center, presented a paper "Dealing with the Manana Syndrome: Some Strategies Using Cognitive, Behavioral, and Art Therapy Techniques" as part of a panel "Procrastination and University Students: Theories and Programming" at the American Psychological Association Conference in Toronto, Canada, August 24.

October 1, 1984

GW Report

(377)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE MONDALE SPEAKS AT GEORGE WASHINGTON

CANDIDATE MONDALE is shown greeting students as he left the stage of Lisner Auditorium after his September 25 address.

"Your generation will decide this race. You will live with its consequences. And you will shape the American landscape for the rest of the century," Democratic Presidential Candidate Walter F. Mondale told a large and enthusiastic audience in GW's Lisner Auditorium on Tuesday, September 25.

After a spirited introduction by Senator Gary W. Hart of Colorado, Candidate Mondale said he was glad to be at George Washington and took note of the fact that his brother, Professor of American Civilization Clarence C. Mondale, is here.

The former vice president discussed a number of President Reagan's recent public statements, calling him "the old Reagan" and "the new Reagan." "Gone is the talk of nuclear warning shots," he said. "Gone is winnable nuclear war. Gone is the evil empire. After four years of sounding like Ronald Reagan, six weeks before the election he's trying to sound like -- Walter Mondale." He said that President Reagan has changed positions in the areas of economic aid, the settlement of regional conflicts, international law, apartheid in South Africa, peace in Central America, the Camp David process, arms sales, nuclear proliferation, regular consultation with Soviet experts, and negotiations for arms control.

"This Presidential sea-change raises a crucial question," he stated and asked "How can the American people tell which Reagan would be President if he's re-elected?"

He said that, as "the underdog," he had been advised to attack Mr. Reagan personally, to ignore issues and to cut loose from history. "My answer is 'no,'" he declared and then detailed "the conventional wisdom" about the student generation. "You're said to be self-content, materialistic, and devoid of social commitment...to have no sense of history...to have an attention span no longer than a television commercial. I don't believe it. But suppose some people did," he went on. Outlining a presidential campaign based on these assumptions, he stated, "Believing you to be shallow, they would manipulate your rumored gullibility. Their message would be all sizzle, and no substance; all happy-talk and no straight talk; all blue skies, and no blue print; all television and no vision."

Enumerating what he sees as the failures of the last four years of the Reagan administration, he went on to a series of questions, all greeted with loud shouts of "No,No." Among the questions were: "Do you really want to join a party that intends to put government between you and and most private choices of your life? Do you really want women to be paid less than men for the same work? Do you really want to get us deeper into war in Central America?"

With a succession of strong statements, the candidate delineated what he believes the election is and is not about. "This election is not about sending a teacher into space," he said. "It is about improving teaching and learning here on earth." His comment,"This election is not about Republicans sending hecklers to my rallies. It is about Jerry Falwell picking Justices for the Supreme Court," brought a standing ovation.

Interrupted frequently by applause, he continued, "This election is about our values." He traced the historic importance of family values in American life as well as of helping those less fortunate.

"We need a president who knows that sometimes people need a little help... a president who leads us along the course of compassion and community...that's the kind of fight I'm waging. That's what this election

(continued on back)

GEOFFREY R. ELTON TO SPEAK AT GW, OCTOBER 9

Professor Geoffrey R. Elton, Regius Professor of History at Cambridge University and well-known expert on Tudor-Stuart English history, will speak at the university, October 9 at 1 pm, Monroe Hall in Room 307. His topic will be "Parliament and the English Civil War." The author of several books and many articles, he is best known for his studies of the Tudor constitution and of Thomas Cromwell.

Interested students and faculty members are cordially invited by the Department of History to attend.

TUITION BENEFITS NOTE

Federal legislation providing for the tax free status of educational benefits to university employees expired at the end of 1983. This expiration date raised questions about the tax status of tuition benefits available to GW employees.

The university has been advised that appropriate legislation has been approved in Congressional committee, under HR 2568, which would eliminate the concerns that these benefits might be taxable.

NEW UNIVERSITY THEATRE STAFF FOR 1984-1985

The theatre faculty of the Department of Communication and Theatre announces new staffing for the 1984-1985 season: William J. Balling, technical director; Nathan Garner, resident director; Leslie B. Jacobson, resident director; William Pucilowsky, resident costume designer; Bradley W. Sabelli, resident designer; and Alan Wade, producer and resident director.

RECORD SIZE FRESHMAN CLASS ENROLLED FOR FALL SEMESTER

The largest freshman class in the history of the university has enrolled for the fall semester.

This year's freshman class numbers 1,239 as compared to 944 last year, an increase of more than 30 percent. Preliminary analysis shows that average College Board scores are up also to 1,100, which is 10 points higher than last year.

The Registrar's Report, containing detailed information of various types, will be available in mid-October.

The overall university enrollment this fall is over 17,000.

GW Music

GW MUSIC DEPARTMENT FACULTY RECITAL, OCTOBER 8

Four members of the Department of Music will appear in a recital on Monday, October 8 at 8pm in the Marvin Theatre. The artists are: Ann-Myongsook Lee, soprano; Penelope Fischer, flute; William Wright, clarinet; and Francis Conlon, piano. They will perform works by G.F. Handel, R. Vaughan Williams, Ulf Grahn, Hugo Wolf, Albert Roussel, Aaron Copland, Eugene Bozza and John Bavicchi.

Tickets, available at the door, will be, $4-general admission, $2-GW alumni and employees, and $1-students and senior citizens.

FULBRIGHT MEETING REMINDER

The seventh annual meeting of the Fulbright Alumni Association will be held here on the GW campus on Friday, October 12. All former Fulbrighters interested in attending should contact Christine Meloni, English for International Students, Academic Center T-604, Ext.6938.

RECOGNITION--Ronald W. Howard, right, associate director of alumni relations, is shown with Michael J. Worth, vice president for development, after Howard received a plaque in a recent surprise ceremony in recognition "of 20 years of dedicated service to the University and its alumni." Ron came to the university in 1964 as an admissions counselor in the Admissions Office. He moved to the Development Office as Director of Alumni Support in 1973, joining the Alumni Relations Office in 1980.

FRIENDS RECEPTION--L to R, Provost William D. Johnson, immediate past president of Friends of the Libraries; Visiting Assistant Professor of Business Administration Thomas F. Shine, a new faculty member; and Dean Eugene W. Kelly Jr. of the School of Education and Human Development were among those enjoying the recent reception sponsored by the Friends to welcome new faculty.

MONDALE (continued from front)

must be about. And that's why I ask for your help," he concluded.

Mondale's appearance at the university was sponsored by GW's College Democrats, Student Association and Program Board. When he came out on the stage, he leaned over and shook hands with University Professor Amitai Etzioni. Media coverage of the event has been extensive.

OUTSIDE CAMPUS DIRECTORIES ARE NOW BEING INSTALLED

The Physical Plant Department informs us that approximately 20 outside campus directories will be installed at various locations on campus during the coming weeks.

Everyone is invited to inspect them and send a note to Physical Plant (attention S.G. Hamburger) with suggestions for improvements, corrections or any clarifications that are needed. Suggestions that departmental listings be added should include suggestions for suitable deletions since listing space is already filled.

Plans are to update the directories in January, 1985, and then annually unless they become markedly outdated in a shorter time.

FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE FOR OCTOBER IS CANCELLED

The October 3 First Wednesday Lecture, in the series sponsored sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office, has had to be cancelled.

Dr. John F. Latimer, professor emeritus of classics, who was to speak on "Bridging the Gender Gap in the Bible," has been called out of town.

The lecture will be rescheduled in a future series.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JOHN G. ALLEE, professor of English, was study leader of the Smithsonian Associate's clockwise tour of Iceland, July 20-August 7, and was lecturer for the Buffalo Museum of Science tour of Greenland, August 10-24. The second tour was chiefly in the Disko Bay area.

CHARLENE BICKFORD, director of the First Federal Congress Project, was presented with an "Exemplary Service Citation" by the Society of American Archivists during the society's annual meeting on August 31. The citation was in recognition of her work in organizing the advocacy effort in behalf of the National Archives and the National Historical Publications and Records Commission.

ANTHONY G. COATES, professor of geology, was invited this past summer to help organize and teach a summer course in tropical reef ecology of fossil and living corals as part of a newly-formed master's program in marine biology at the Centro de Investigacion y de Estudios Avanzados IPN, Merida, Yucatan Mexico. (He has been asked to teach the same course for subsequent summers.) At the Center, he gave a lecture on "Evolutionary Consequences of Clonal Reproduction in Corals."

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, was a commentator at two sessions of "Lincoln - 175," a conference to assess current scholarship on Abraham Lincoln, at Gettysburg College, Pennsylvania, September 14-16. The papers and commentaries will be published as a book. He participated in a Woodrow Wilson Center Radio Dialogue on "Walt Whitman, Poetry and Politics," September 21. He argued that Whitman's poetry transforms a political message into an inclusive democratic one with the bard as observer and participant rather than reformer.

JAMES DEAKIN, adjunct associate professor of journalism, participated in a panel discussion on news media coverage of the 1984 presidential campaign, at the annual convention of the American Political Science Association in August.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, was recently asked to serve on the editorial board of The Journal of Public Policy published by the Centre for the Study of Public Policy, University of Strathclyde, Glasgow, Scotland. On July 26, he was a panel member on higher education for "Biz-Net" (Business Network). On July 31, he testified before the U.S. House of Representatives Banking Subcommittee on Economic Stabilization on the topic of the Individual Training Act. He chaired a panel on nuclear war and was a discussant on a panel on the role of government at the annual meeting of the American Sociological Association in San Antonio, Texas, August 27-30. On August 31 in Washington, D.C., he was a panel member on national service at the American Political Science Association meeting.

JAMES FOLEY, professor of engineering and applied science, attended Interact '84, the first International Federation of Information Processing Societies Conference (IFIP) on human-computer interaction, in London, England, September 3-7. He presented a tutorial "How to Design User-Computer Interfaces," and chaired the session "Tools and Principles for Dialogue Design."

DENNIS E. GALE, associate professor of urban and regional planning, and JEFFREY HENIG, associate professor of political science, were each awarded a Dilthey Fellowship by George Washington University, to conduct research over the summer on demographic trends in the National Capital area. They conducted their research together.

CHRISTIAN GERHARD, associate professorial lecturer in education, attended the United Kingdom Reading Association's 21st conference, on the theme of "Reading and the New Technologies," in August. She was quoted in the London Times' Education Supplement as stressing that teachers and their pupils have different cultural backgrounds, and that those who teach reading need a broad education if they are to "bring the generations of literate and electronic man closer together."

FREDERICK GUTHEIM, adjunct professor of urban planning and American civilization, conducted a workshop on the adaptive use of historic urban parks at the Liverpool Conference on the Greening of Cities. American co-sponsors of the meeting included the National Association for Olmsted Parks of which Gutheim is a national adviser.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, has been selected to serve on the board of directors of the Antarctic Society. He was recently elected as the vice-president of the International Law Section of the International Studies Association.

MURRAY H. LOEW, associate professor of engineering, has been appointed an associate editor of the journal, Computers in Biology and Medicine. Loew and LI SHUXIANG, visiting scholar in the Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, attended the Seventh International Conference on Pattern Recognition in Montreal, Canada, July 30-August 2; Professor Li presented their co-authored paper, "The Quadcode and Its Applications."

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, spoke to the Rotary Club in Singapore on "The Importance of the Human Resource," July 31. On August 3, he spoke to the Singapore Training and Development Society on "Human Resource Development - Where It Is and Where It Is Going." On August 7, in Sydney, Australia, he spoke at the International Federation of Training and Development Organizations on "Transitions-Individual and Organizational."

PETER B. VAILL, professor of human systems, delivered the keynote address at the Federal Section Conference of the International Personnel Management Association in Rosslyn, Virginia, September 10. His subject was "Managing People in Organizations of the Future." DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, was a panel member discussing "Overload in the Personnel System" at the same conference.

ALAN WADE, associate professor of communication and theatre, appeared as a guest artist with the Actors' Ensemble of Baltimore in July playing Petruchio in Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew and Banquo in the bard's Macbeth. He also appeared as a featured reader for Jack Morton Productions at the opening ceremony of the 140th anniversary convention of B'Nai B'Rith in Washington on September 2.

PUBLICATIONS

JAMES DEAKIN, adjunct associate professor of journalism, two book reviews: Presidents and the Press: The Nixon Legacy, by Joseph C. Spear, in the August 17 issue of the London Times Literary Supplement; and The Other Side of the Story, by Jody Powell, in the September issue of The Progressive magazine.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, a book of which he was editor, The Handbook of Human Resource Development, and an article, "What Japan Learned from the U.S. - That We Forgot to Remember," California Management Review, Vol.XXVI, No.4, Summer 1984, pp.46-61.

PETER VAILL, professor of human systems, had three essays published in three books: "Process Wisdom for a New Age," in Transforming Work, John Adams,ed. (Miles River Press, Alexandria, Virginia, 1984); "The Purposing of High Performing Systems," in Leadership and Organizational Development, Thomas Sergiovanni and John E. Corbally,eds. (University of Illinois Press, 1984); and "OD as a Scientific Revolution," in Contemporary Organization Development, D.D. Warrick,ed. (Scott, Foresman and Company, 1984).

October 8, 1984 (378)

GW Report

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

JEFFREY R. HENIG TO BECOME ASSOCIATE DEAN OF SPIA

Jeffrey R. Henig, associate professor of political science, has been named to become associate dean of the School of Public and International Affairs in January, 1985.

In announcing the appointment, Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French said, "I am delighted that Professor Henig has accepted this appointment. He is an able and respected member of the faculty who is thoroughly familiar with the school and its programs. His professional interests nicely complement those of Dean-designate East. The two together represent a strong leadership team to work with the faculty toward that very bright future that we all see ahead for the School of Public and International Affairs. This is a new appointment for SPIA and can be taken as further evidence of institutional support for the school."

Professor Henig joined the GW faculty in September, 1977, as a visiting assistant professor of political science, the same year he received his Ph.D. from Northwestern University. He did his undergraduate work at Cornell University (B.A. 1973). He is currently director of the Urban Affairs Program in SPIA.

His administrative duties in the Department of Political Science have included service as coordinator for both the undergraduate and graduate programs.

He is the author of a number of publications, among them: Public Policy and Federalism: Issues in State and Local Politics, to be published in late fall of this year by St. Martin's Press; Neighborhood Mobilization: Redevelopment and Response, 1982, Rutgers University Press; and Gentrification in Adams Morgan: Political and Commercial Consequences of Neighborhood Change, monograph, 1982, GW Center for Washington Area Studies.

OPEN ENROLLMENT PERIOD FOR HEALTH CARE INSURANCE

The university is pleased to announce that all regular full-time and regular part-time faculty and staff members will have the opportunity to make changes in their current health care coverage, or to enroll, if not currently enrolled, in any of the plans during an upcoming open enrollment period. The period will begin on Monday, October 15, and will continue through Friday, November 16.

The university is adding Aetna Choice, with coverage effective January 1, 1985, to the current list of available health programs. Aetna Choice is a prepaid health care plan which combines some of the features of traditional insurance and HMOs.

Arrangements have been made for representatives from all of the health plans to appear jointly at a series of meetings shown on the following schedule. A series of presentations, to include a representative of each plan, will begin on the hour within the time frames listed. A question and answer period will follow each presentation. You are encouraged to attend one of these meetings if you have any questions regarding your current coverage or if you are considering a change in coverage.

The meeting schedule follows.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Monday, Oct.15 | 12 noon to 3 pm | Hospital Auditorium 23rd St. Entrance |
| Thursday, Oct.18 | 8 am to 12 noon | Hospital Auditorium 23rd St. Entrance |
| Tuesday, Oct.23 | 12 noon to 3 pm | Marvin Center Room 426 21st and H Sts. |
| Wednesday, Oct.24 | 8 am to 12 noon | Marvin Center Room 426 21st and H Sts. |

Announcements are being distributed on October 8 to eligible faculty and staff to include the 1985 monthly premiums for each plan. If you do not receive this announcement or if you wish further information about your coverage and the various health plan options available, please contact or visit the Records and Benefits Division of the Department of Personnel Services, Building GG, 2125 G Street, NW, between October 15 and November 16 for assistance.

The effective date of coverage or changes in coverage will be January 1, 1985.

GW FORUM INVITES COMMENTS ON OUR FUTURE UNIVERSITY

This semester, the GW Forum is extending to the entire university community President Elliott's charge to the Commission for the Year 2000, that of commenting on what the future of The George Washington University should be, what should be continued and what should be changed.

"We know that students, teachers, administrators have much to say; we urge them to say it because they

(continued on back)

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR DR. LEVY

There will be a memorial service for the late Dr. Bernard I. Levy, on Sunday, October 14, at 2 pm in the third floor Continental Room of the Marvin Center.

Professor Levy, who died at his summer home in Vermont on August 18, came to the university in 1963. At the time of his death, he was professor of psychology and director of the GW program in art therapy.

Members of Dr. Levy's family will be glad to greet friends after the service.

PRESIDENT BELAUNDE-TERRY OF PERU SPEAKS AT GEORGE WASHINGTON

President Belaunde-Terry and President Elliott

"We must try to find a common denominator to help us meet our problems in Latin America," President Fernando Belaunde-Terry of Peru said in a speech to the university community on September 27. "At the present time, we have to find a solution to the debt problem," he explained, noting that there are different aspects of the problem in different countries. "In a certain way, we need a bilateral arrangement for problems of countries that are different but we must try to find a multi-national solution, guaranteed by each of the countries and also by you (the United States)."

He referred to the depressions the world has already seen, even in the United States, and praised the Marshall Plan implemented in Europe after World War II. "Today we need such a new idea," he commented. "It is the time to design a new world plan. . . You cannot live peacefully in a world when you are very rich and other nations are very poor. This exception is always something very dangerous but I know there is sufficient experience, talent and generosity in the United States to meet this challenge," he declared.

Speaking of the problem of terrorism, President Belaunde said it is an international movement and that for years there has been an international intention to establish this force. "Now today, they do not present a front, the leaders stay hidden, they use women and children, they come at night," he explained. Asking for a common effort to restrain terrorism, he said, "We cannot fight alone a war that is not ours alone."

On the subject of leaving the Peruvian presidency when he completes his term in 1985, he said he had told President Reagan, whom he had visited earlier that morning, that he has been elected to the Peruvian Congress for life according to his country's constitution and that President Reagan had seemed "to enjoy the possibility."

Turning to the map of South America that had been placed on the stage, he referred to a recent visit to Brasilia in the heart of Brazil and described his hopes for the linking of the waterways of the South American continent with the inland waterways of the United States and with the St. Lawrence Seaway in Canada, both for commerce and security. He described the riches of the continent both in oil and gas and the possibilities he sees for hydraulic power from the many rivers which flow through the different countries.

The president talked about the effect of inflation on the housing situation in Peru and described what he called a "modest design for our present condition." This design has enabled many of his countrymen to become homeowners. By means of a wide area and time frame of payment, financed by the wealthy classes and wealthy enterprises through a small percentage of salaries and with a system of insurance that provides for a family to inherit a property without further payment if the head of the family dies, many of the formerly dispossessed now own their own homes or are on the way to becoming owners.

"When I am asked about acheivements occurring within my administration," President Belaunde said, "I only reply this, 'We only need two statistical figures: How many people were owners when I took office in '80? How many will be owners when I leave office in '85? ...Hundreds of thousands.' To me this is the most important achievement of our present administration."

(continued on back)

BELAUNDE

(continued from front)

Speaking directly to President Elliott, President Belaunde said, "Today, I just wanted to have a chance to be back at this second home, to return to a university that made my exile so pleasant, where I have memories that are unforgettable. I have everlasting gratitude to you, the faculty and our students. May God bless George Washington University."

The large number of those from both on and off campus who were present for the occasion were welcomed by Professor of Urban and Regional Planning Dorn C. McGrath Jr., who presented President Lloyd H. Elliott to welcome President Belaunde. In introducing President Belaunde before his address, Professor McGrath said the Peruvian president has "a status that cannot be conferred, that of world statesman."

At a reception following his address, President Belaunde was interviewed by Susana Zuchetti, GW lecturer in Spanish who does free-lance writing for the Spanish language newspaper Latino. Among President Belaunde's former students who came to hear him was Anne Greene, who worked on a project with then Professor Belaunde as a graduate student. She is now a Latin American analyst with the Department of the Navy.

President Belaunde's residency at the university spanned more than five years. He was visiting professor of urban history and planning in the Department of Urban and Regional Planning and of History from September 1973 to June of 1978. In 1979, the university conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service. He was elected president of Peru for the second time in 1980. His first term as president was from 1963 to 1968.

GW FORUM

(continued from front)

will be heard," say those working on the Forum. "We also urge clerical workers and staff to contribute their views," they continue, expressing the hope that members of the larger Washington community will be heard from as well.

They ask if you would like to redesign GW or change a small part of it, and what sort of GW you would like your children to attend. They encourage all individuals, whatever their concerns, to express themselves, assuring us all that The Forum and the Commission would like to hear about them. "Let us use this opportunity to help shape our future," they urge.

Manuscripts from 1000 to 2000 words in length should be sent to Professor A. E. Claeyssens, English Department, Stuart Hall, Room 407, by Monday, November 12. For further information, call Ext. 6920 or Ext. 7355.

POETRY READING SERIES

The Tuesday Noon Poetry Series sponsored by the Department of English continues with Thad Ziolkowski from GW and David Kresh from Washington reading tomorrow, October 9. Tuesday, October 16, Rob Attanasio from GW and Valerie Wohlfeld from Washington will be featured. On October 23, Jody Bolz from GW and Karen Sagstetter from Washington will appear. All readings take place in the atrium of 2000 Pennsylvania Avenue from noon to 1 pm.

GREENHOUSE SALE--Robin Milman, left, greenhouse manager, talked with freshman Nicholas Smith of Brooklyn, New York, about the care of the coleus plant he had just bought at the October 1 greens sale.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF RETENTION COMMITTEE BEING IMPLEMENTED

The final report of the University Committee on Student Retention, chaired by Assistant Vice President for Admissions and Records Joseph Y.Ruth, was submitted to President Lloyd H. Elliott in August. Implementation of the recommendations is now under way in the Dean of Students Office.

A half-time research assistant will be joining the staff to conduct exit interviews with undergraduates who have applied for transfer from GW to other colleges or universities and a formal assessment of freshmen perceptions of GW's programs and services is planned for the month of October. The American College Testing (ACT) Entering Student Survey will be used. Students will be surveyed in their English composition classes.

Both aspects of the retention project will be supervised by Assistant Dean of Students Cheryl Beil, who directs general research and evaluation for the Division of Student Affairs. Assistant to the Provost for Institutional Research Peggye Cohen will participate in the analysis of project results.

WASHINGTON STUDIES GRANTS

The GW Center for Washington Area Studies announces the availability of limited funding for faculty research grants. The funds are to support university faculty in original research on some facet of the social, political or economic characteristics of the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area.

All full-time faculty members are eligible; the Center welcomes proposals from any and all departments. The primary factors in funding decisions include the originality and appropriateness of the research design and the likely contribution to theoretical understanding, substantive knowledge or public policy making. Preference will be given to those projects in early conceptual stages and those near completion. Projects for which there is a clear need and expressed interest from local public officials or community leaders will be looked on with favor, as will studies that might be appropriate for inclusion in the GW Washington Studies monograph series.

Faculty wishing to apply should submit the following to the Center for Washington Area Studies, Building P 203B: 1) statement of research purpose and design, (proposals should not exceed four doublespaced pages); 2) budget estimation and defense; 3) prospects for additional funding (has similar research been funded and are there possibilities for outside funding?); 4) Curriculum Vita; and 5) a memorandum of support from the chairperson of the applicant's department.

Proposals must be received by Thursday, November 1. They will be reviewed and judged by the executive committee of the Center for Washington Area Studies, which may seek participation from reviewers with special expertise. A total of about $3000 is expected to be available for distribution; no grants will exceed $1000. For further information, call Ext. 6073

SEHD ACCREDITATION PROCESS COMPLETED IN THE YEAR 1984

The School of Education and Human Development has been notified by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) that all of SEHD's school-oriented undergraduate and graduate programs have been granted full national accreditation.

The accreditation decision follows a joint campus visit by members of the NCATE accreditation team and District of Columbia program approval team in the spring of this year.

The NCATE accreditation includes baccalaureate programs in elementary education (including concentration in elementary early childhood education), secondary education and special education; master's degree programs in early childhood education, elementary education, secondary education, special education, gifted and talented, reading, educational administration, supervision and curriculum, and counseling; and doctoral programs in teacher education, (elementary and secondary education) special education, reading, educational administration, supervision and curriculum, and counseling.

Program approval by the District of Columbia Board of Education includes, at the undergraduate level, the teaching majors in early childhood education, elementary education, special education, physical education, dance education and secondary education concentrations in art, biology, chemistry, general science, physics, mathematics, social sciences, music and English. At the graduate level, the programs in school counseling, reading and early childhood education were approved. The District's approval process does not cover programs in administration, supervision and curriculum, gifted and talented, nor any doctoral programs. The approval by the District of Columbia was granted according to the standards of the National Association of State Directors of Teacher Education and Certification (NASDTEC).

Program approval according to NASDTEC standards means that teacher education graduates of SEHD are automatically eligible for certification in 28 states under the terms of the interstate certification projects.

"With the combination of national accreditation and District approval, SEHD graduates of school-oriented programs are in a strong position to receive certification in all 50 states and the District of Columbia," comments SEHD Dean Eugene W. Kelly Jr.

National accreditation is effective for seven years and District approval for five years.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Division of Radiation Oncology and Biophysics. (Motivated person with strong interest in original research needed. Specific research involves the development and testing of a short-lived radionuclide generator system dedicated to orgiocardiography. Candidate will join the Physics Section, composed of four full-time (and one part-time Ph.D.) scientists and supporting personnel, with active research programs in radiation physics, nuclear medicine and radiobiology. Also may become involved with routine clinical radiotherapy dosimetry and computerized treatment planning. Requires M.S. in the physical sciences and a minimum of one year of experience in related research.) Contact Dr. Barry W. Wessels, Ph.D., The George Washington University Medical Center, Hosp. G427 B, 202, Ext.4683.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, ICU Research Unit. (Seeking RN with interest in applied physiologic research on acutely ill patients. Position requires strong background in physiology and experience in intensive care. Full-time research position requiring ability to work as part of a team. B.S. required, master's degree preferred, and a minimum of one year of directly related experience necessary. No data collection but writing skills and background in computer programming useful. Salary dependent upon qualifications.) Send resumes to Maxine Smith, ICU Research Unit, George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 K. Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmitive action employer.

October 15, 1984

GW Report

(379)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

GW WOMEN'S NETWORK HONORS FOUR GW WOMEN LEADERS

L TO R, SGBA Dean Norma Maine Loeser, Trustee Marcella Brenner, President Lloyd H. Elliott, Professor of Law Patricia Roberts Harris, University Librarian Sharon Rogers, and Columbian College Dean Clara Lovett.

The GW Women's Network honored four new women leaders, who have come to their positions at the university in the last year and half, at a tea hosted by SGBA Dean Norma Maine Loeser on Monday, October 8, in the lounge of Hattie M. Strong Hall.

Those honored were: Marcella Brenner, professor emeritus of education, who was elected to the Board of Trustees at its annual meeting in May: Patricia Roberts Harris, professor of law; Clara Lovett, dean, Columbian College of Arts and Sciences; and Sharon Rogers, university librarian. Each was asked to say a few words.

In beginning the short program, Dean Loeser observed, "With all of this woman power, I don't know how this university can do anything but succeed."

Trustee Brenner commented, "I am extremely flattered to be in this particular group" and took note of the changes that have come over the years with regard to women's education. She said that when she studied at Johns Hopkins some years ago it was not as a regular student, but that she had to be admitted as a special student in a special program.

Professor Harris said in part, "It's important to have a women's network, that we have a point of reference as women but what is is most important is to remember that a women's network must be a means of providing a real network including men. The best finds of women professionals I have ever made have been from men who understood that the time had come to release women power and to get the 51 percent producing in this society."

Dean Lovett commented, "Being dean of Columbian College is quite a challenge... It is exciting to be coming to GW at this particular time in the history of the institution. This university has a tremendous potential to become the leader in higher education in this area. I see Columbian College as very much a part of that effort, being in some ways at the center of it because we provide the teaching and scholarship in some of the fundamental disciplines that provide the underpinning for all of the efforts of our colleagues in the other schools. I'm particularly happy to meet all of you in the Women's Network and to see how diverse the group is, with faculty and staff and students at various levels."

University Librarian Rogers, who is currently serving as national president of the Association of College and Research Libraries, said that she, too, finds this an exciting time to be at George Washington. "It's exciting for us to join with you as part of the Women's Network," she stated. "I feel privileged to belong to a place where we have so much available to us and I see a lot or optimism for things that can be accomplished through libraries, particularly the Gelman Library."

In informal remarks, President Elliott said, "I simply want to say how happy I am to see GW in this, shall I say configuration? This is a good era. We have a greater era ahead of us. The leadership in this room is at the top of that era."

(continued on back)

NEW APPOINTEES TO BE HONORED AT RECEPTION ON OCTOBER 24

President Lloyd H. Elliott and Mrs. Elliott cordially invite members and friends of the university community to a reception to meet six new appointees on Wednesday, October 24, from 4 to 5:30 pm in The George Washington University Club in the Marvin Center.

The new appointees are: Maurice A. East, dean-designate, School of Public and International Affairs; Roderick S. French, vice president for academic affairs; William D. Johnson, provost; Clara M. Lovett, dean, Columbian College of Arts and Sciences; Marianne R. Phelps, associate provost; and Sharon Rogers, university librarian.

GW AND AMERICAN MEDICAL INTERNATIONAL CONTINUE CURRENT EXPLORATIONS

In the fall of 1983, following its October 21 meeting the Board of Trustees announced approval of the university's participation in a study of the possibility of joining forces with American Medical International Inc. (AMI) to operate the University Hospital.

Following the announcement, four work groups formed by the GWU Medical Center's Dean for Administrative Affairs Philip S. Birnbaum began coming to grips with the issues involved in such a venture. The questions and concerns of these four study groups were compiled by Dean Birnbaum and sent in letter form to AMI in mid-July of this year. At the end of September, the university received a response to this letter.

AMI's response answers the questions forwarded by Dean Birnbaum and offers three possible arrangements that would link the University Hospital with the for-profit chain in a mutually beneficial partnership assuring the continued growth of the GWU Medical Center as well commitment to quality patient care, education and research. The three AMI proposals include: purchase of the hospital by AMI; long-term lease of the hospital by AMI; or a joint venture arrangement whereby GW would hold a minority position in the ownership and operation of the hospital.

Vice President for Medical Affairs Ronald P. Kaufman says, "Under all three arrangements the medical staff organization, executive committee, joint conference committee etc., as it is now, would continue. AMI has suggested that the Hospital Governing Board be composed of the vice president for medical affairs, the deans of clinical, academic and administrative affairs and three AMI representatives. Therefore decisions affecting education, research, patient care and hospital, medical and nursing staff policies would follow current procedures with ultimate control by the new governing body."

Dean Birnbaum, commenting on the AMI response, says, "I believe the proposals afford the University Medical Center the appropriate safeguards to assure carrying out our mission as in the past. The decision as to options of purchase, lease or joint ownership, assuming the University Board of Trustees finds the governance proposal acceptable, appears to me to be based on fiscal considerations and the negotiations to follow."

In addition to possible purchase arrangements and the governance proposal, the letter sent in September by AMI addresses specific questions raised by the four study groups. Some of the more significant points follow.

- The hospital's name would remain unchanged.
- All hospital staff would become AMI employees and current staffing patterns would be maintained at least for the present.
- The hospital would remain a full-service teaching hospital for GWU Medical Center as well as performing existing community services to meet the needs of the area.
- Current GWU Hospital teaching affiliations would be honored and new affiliations supported where needed.
- Programs such as MRI imaging, laser surgery and cardiac catheterization would be aggressively expanded.
- A full range of integrated services would be developed including ambulatory care, general acute care, home care and tertiary care, all with AMI feeder hospitals and ambulatory care centers available for teaching programs and/or affiliations with GWUMC.

(continued on back)

WILLIAM H. DRAPER III, president and chairman of the Export-Import Bank of the United States, second from the left, is shown with, l to r, Roye L. Lowry, president of the Washington chapter of the SGBA Alumni Association; Tom Lydon, and James L. McJimpsey, president and vice president, respectively of the SPIA Alumni Association. Draper spoke at an October 3 luncheon jointly sponsored by the two alumni groups. He announced that the Export-Import Bank is engaged in a major new effort to market its programs more effectively.

GW AND AMERICAN MEDICAL INTERNATIONAL

(continued from front)

- AMI would have full financial responsibility for all capital improvements including new diagnostic and therapeutic equipment.
- Current levels of participation by GWUMC faculty in planning for and supervision of direct patient care and for graduate and undergraduate medical education and research in the hospital would be maintained.
- Any addition or deletion of services in the hospital would be subject to evaluation and approval by the governing board.

In addition to these points, AMI states that its major thrust over the next five years will be the development of a national network of regionally centered health care facilities and services. AMI would like to make hospitals such as the GWU Hospital regional hubs, affiliated with community hospitals and other free standing outpatient satellite health care delivery systems. Their feeling is that a GWU/AMI affiliation would establish the foundation for GWU Hospital to become a regional hub for the Washington metropolitan area, eventually providing an array of specialized services to the entire mid-Atlantic region.

The AMI response is now in the hands of the study groups for review and evaluation. According to Dean Birnbaum, "After the study groups' comments have been received and reviewed by the steering committee, I'll be preparing a formal report for the University Board of Trustees. It appears that we'll meet the deadline and present it to the Board at their January meeting. If the recommendation is to proceed based on current AMI proposals, the Board of Trustees would then authorize direct negotiations to arrive at financial and other considerations necessary to implement the decision."

GW WOMEN'S NETWORK

(continued from front)

In addition to President Elliott, the event was attended by Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French, the only man in the receiving line, and Vice President and Treasurer Charles E. Diehl. Phyllis Palmer, assistant professor of women's studies and coordinator of the Women's Studies Program; Cheryl Biel, assistant dean of students; and Holliday Wagner, assistant professor of biological sciences and director of the Service Learning Programs in Columbian College, who serve as coordinators of the Women's Network, were all important to the success of the occassion. A broad cross section of women at the university attended.

The GW Women's Network, now in its third year, seeks to promote professional and personal development of women faculty members, administrators and students.

"MARK TWAIN" IS COMING

"Candidate Mark Twain," in the person of William McLinn, well-known Twain impersonator and scholar, will come to the GW campus for a presidential debate on Tuesday, October 16, at 8:30 pm in Lisner Auditorium.

The present-day "Twain" is running for president along with President Reagan and Walter F. Mondale. Taking into account the fact that the two national candidates have very full schedules, Twain will debate a variety of issues with stand-ins for the two principals from GW's Young Democrats and Young Republicans. Twain's debate topics will be politics, religion, peace, the Presidency and anything else he chooses to introduce.

William McLinn began impersonating Mark Twain as part of an acting project in 1975 in seminary. Since then, he has given over 1,000 performances around the world. Combining his knowledge of Twain's writings and the knowledge gained from studies in theology and international relations, McLinn uses Twain's wit to satirize the foibles of our current society, including election campaigns.

His appearance is sponsored by the GW Program Board, College Democrats, College Republicans, Politics and Values Program and the Board of Chaplains. Admission is free with a GW ID. For more information, call Bill Crawford at Ext. 6434 or Charlotte Ericson at Ext. 7313.

FELLOWSHIP INFORMATION

The Graduate Fellowship Information Center informs us that application deadlines are nearing for a number of fellowships for the coming months. They are: the German Academic Exchange Service Awards, called DAAD, for both short-term visits and study visits (October 31); IREX for USSR Research Exchanges and Eastern European Exchanges (November 1), Travel Grants for Senior Scholars (October 31); and Lehrman Institute Research Fellowships for public policy research (October 31). For further information, contact Andrea Stewart, Ext. 6217.

WORLD FOOD DAY

This year's fourth annual World Food Day Observance, Tuesday, Oct. 16, will feature a three-hour "national town meeting" via satellite hookup, which will originate at George Washington University's Television studios. More than 130 colleges and universities in all 50 states will receive the signal and take part in the teleconference, which will discuss problems of world hunger. Sponsors believe this is the largest university teleconference ever held.

The teleconference will begin at 12 noon in the GWTV studios, and will feature a panel of six speakers, including Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block and Rep. Mickey Leland (D-Tex.), chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger. This one hour opening presentation will focus on the impact of U.S. policies on world hunger and the world food economy, the current food crisis in Africa, the role of women in agriculture, and a review of progress in hunger elimination since the 1974 World Food Conference.

This will be followed by a second hour of activities at each of the college receiving sites, and a final hour of discussion with callers at the sites phoning in to the GW studios to speak with panel members.

World Food Day, now in its fourth year and observed in 150 countries, marks the anniversary of the founding of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) in 1945. It is sponsored in the United States by the Department of Agriculture, the Agency for International Development, and a coalition of 330 private voluntary organizations which comprise the National Committee for World Food Day.

GW TO HOST GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL FAIR

Nearly 200 representatives of graduate and professional schools across the United States will gather at the university Tuesday and Wednesday, October 23 and 24, for two days of information seminars on graduate and professional school opportunities. The sessions will be held in the third floor Continental Room of Marvin Center. Hours for both days are from 2 to 7 pm.

Law schools will be the focus of the meetings on Tuesday, October 23, with representatives from 93 law schools participating. There will be two panel discussions: "How to Apply to Law School and Survive" (2:30 to 3:45 pm); and "Careers in Law" (4 to 5:15 pm).

Opportunities in business and the arts and sciences will be discussed on Wednesday, October 24. Representatives from 105 colleges and universities will participate in the sessions. Panel discussion topics will be: "Applying to and Financing Graduate School" (2:30 to 3:45 pm); and "Careers in Business and Management" (4 to 5:15 pm).

Video tapes will be shown both afternoons from 5:30 to 6:45 pm to present that afternoon's first session for those unable to come earlier.

The free sessions are open to the public. The event is sponsored by nine Washington, D.C., area universities and is being coordinated by GW's Graduate Fellowship Information Center.

GW UNIVERSITY THEATRE TO PRESENT "GREASE"

The GW University Theatre will present "Grease," the rock and roll musical by Jim Jacobs and Warren Casey, in the Marvin Center Theatre October 18 to 20, 25 to 27, and November 2 and 3 at 8 pm. There will be a 2 pm matinee on Sunday, November 4. General admission is $6, with a rate of $3 for students and senior citizens. For more information and reservations, call Ext. 6178.

INFORMAL DANCE PERFORMANCES SCHEDULED

GW students and dance faculty will appear in informal dance performances on Friday, October 19, at 8 pm in the Building K Studio. Admission is free.

TWO PHOTO EXHIBITS OPEN IN GW GALLERIES THIS WEEK

Hollywood Comes to GW: Photographs by P. Halsman from the GW Permanent Collection will go on exhibition, today, October 15, in the Marvin Center's third floor Colonnade Gallery. The show will continue through Friday, November 30, and may be viewed daily from 8 am to 11 pm. The exhibition is sponsored by the Governing Board, Marvin Center and the Dimock Gallery, Art Department. There will be an official opening reception in the gallery on Thursday, October 18, from 4 to 6 pm.

There will be a contest in conjunction with this opening, sponsored by the Dimock Gallery and the Department of Communications and Theatre. Those attending will have the opportunity to answer a five-question quiz about photographs in the exhibition. A winner will be selected, by a drawing, from among those who answer all questions correctly. The prize is a single season subscription to five shows during the GW University Theatre season 1984-85.

Contemporary Photographs from the GW Permanent Collection will open in the Dimock Gallery on Wednesday, October 17, with a reception from 4 to 6 pm. The exhibition will continue through Friday, November 9. The gallery, off the lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium, is open from 10 am to 5 pm daily. The university community is invited to both the opening receptions.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

JONATHAN D. MORENO, assistant professor of philosophy, a review, Role Playing and Identity by Bruce Wilshire for Cross Currents magazine (Winter, 1983-84).

SEYYED HOSSEIN NASR, university professor of Islamic Studies, two chapters in two separate books: "Present Tendency, Future Trends," in Islam - The Religions and Political Life of a World Community, M. Kelly, ed., (Praeger, New York, 1984, pp. 275-292); and "God is Ultimate Reality: Metaphysical Knowledge and Spiritual Realization," in God - Ultimate Reality and Spiritual Discipline, J. Deurlinger, ed., (Paragon House Publishers, New York, 1984, pp. 155-166).

ELIZABETH FORTSON WELLS, assistant professor of botany, a monograph, "A Revision of the Genus Heuchera (Saxifragaceae) in Eastern North America," published in the series of periodicals, Systematic Botany Monographs, Dr. Christine Anderson, ed., (Vol. 3, pp. 45-121).

DAVID N. WIGTIL, visiting assistant professor of classics, an article, "Incorrect Apocalyptic: The Hermetic 'Asclepius' as an Improvement on the Greek Original," in the ongoing publication, Aufstieg und Niedergang der Romischen Welt, Part II, Vol. 17.4, Wolfgang Haase, ed., (Berlin, Walter de Gruyter, 1984, pp. 2282-2297).

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Medicine. (Experience with research data organization, FORTRAN programming, and statistical packages such as SAS. B.A. or B.S. with courses in statistics and computer science. A minimum of one year related experience required. Available immmediately.) Contact Bryan Syverson, Ext. 2843.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, Full-time, Department of Biochemsitry. (Individual will carry out sterol absorption and metabolism studies in experimental animals. M.S. in biochemistry or physiology required. Experience in lipid methodology, enzyme assay, small animal surgery, and experimental design desirable. A minimum of one year related experience required.) Contact Dr. Linda Gallo, Department of Biochemistry, 2300 I Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. Ext. 3521.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, 20 hours/week, Department of Biochemistry. (Position entails studies of the regulation of cellular lipoxygenases. Experience in common biochemical and chromatographic techniques desirable. B.S. and a minimum of one year related experience required. Available immediately.) Contact Dr. Jack Vanderhoek, Biochemistry, Ross Hall, 2300 I Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/affirmitive action employer.

October 22, 1984

GW Report

(380)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

SGBA ESTABLISHES DISTINGUISHED LECTURERS SERIES

The School of Government and Business Administration (SGBA) announces the beginning of its Distinguished Lecturers Series, under the direction of Dr. Adel I. El-Ansary, chairperson of the Department of Business Administration. The series, which brings outstanding academicians to campus, complements SGBA's executive-in-residence program, which sponsors guest lecturers from the business and government sectors.

The first Distinguished Lecturer to visit the GW campus is Stephen W. Brown, president of the American Marketing Association and professor of marketing at Arizona State Univeristy. He will make two presentations: Wednesday, October 24 at 6:30 pm in Ross Hall, Room 101; and Thursday, October 25 at 9:30 am in Marvin Center, Room 410. Both lectures are open to the public. Due to limited seating, reservations are required. Call Ext.8200.

Wednesday night's lecture, on services marketing, will cover developments in transportation, hospitality/travel, health care, telecommunications, financial services, entertainment, professional services, and information processing.

Thursday's lecture, on health services marketing, will cover changes in the health services industry, the corporate culture of health care providers, and strategic use of marketing by hospitals, physicians, and the health care industry.

PRESIDENT ELLIOTT SPEAKS AT PARENTS' DAY

"The university is here to serve you," President Lloyd H. Elliott told parents at Parents' Day Saturday, October 13.

"I was talking to some students a few minutes ago," he said, "and I told them the only way you can get the Texas-Oklahoma football game at GW is by TV... We cannot offer football but we are very proud of the things here which are indeed within reach of your sons and daughters."

President Elliott noted that G Street, running from 18th to 24th, was the 5 am path for Harry Truman when he was in the White House and took his early morning walks. "This is a crossroad," he commented. "A man by the name of Gary Hart spoke here several times and a man named Mondale made a major address here. I recently pulled a coup on some of our public relations people," he told the parents, "I was looking through an old brochure and saw that one of our interns had her picture taken with a congresswoman from New York. Her name was Ferraro. It is obvious that a student here has access to the great attractions of people and personalities who are in this city." Dr. Elliott referred to the recent visit of President Belaunde-Terry of Peru and the planned dedication of the Jacob Burns Law Library at the National Law Center with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger giving the address.

"If a college student these days just wants to go to college, to go to football games and have a set college experience, then I say, 'Stay in Ohio or Omaha.' But there could be a change with that son or daughter. If he or she, in a couple of years, has some special reason for study in the most important political city in the world with all that there is here, then that young person ought to consider GW. All of us here would like to see every student somehow motivated, turned on, to use a current expression, to what's available here," he concluded.

AT PARENTS' DAY President Lloyd H. Elliott posed with Michelle Samet, left, and Hollison Kaplan, who were at the afternoon reception with their families. Both students are Columbian College freshman. Michelle plans a psychology major and Hollison is in pre-law.

ANNUAL FUND CAMPAIGN FOR 1984-85 BEGINS

ANNUAL FUND Chairman Bob Perry is shown talking with a group of volunteer chairmen at the fund's recent kick-off.

The 1984-85 Annual Fund Campaign was officially started on October 4 with the traditional kick-off luncheon held at the headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Last year the annual fund surpassed the goal of $3.5 million, reaching a total of $3,513,160. "We look forward to an equally successful campaign this year with a goal of $3.8 million," said Robert G. Perry, who is serving for the second year as National Annual Fund chairman.

Volunteer chairmen for the individual schools and divisions are: Columbian College of Arts and Sciences, Marvin Ickow; Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, Jeffrey L. Stephanic; School of Medicine and Health Sciences, Frank Miller; National Law Center, J.D. Williams; School of Engineering and Applied Science, Eric Mendelsohn; School of Education and Human Development, Harvey Snyder; School of Government and Business Administration, Mike Belyan; School of Public and International Affairs, Detta Vosar; Division of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, Harriet Little; and Faculty and Staff, John Perkins.

The luncheon was hosted by Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society, and took place in the newly renovated wing, Hubbard Memorial Hall. All deans and volunteer chairmen were invited.

GW PEOPLE APPEAR IN WASHINGTONIAN'S 100

A number of members of GW's community and alumni family appear in the listing of The 100 People Who Run the Washington Area in the October issue of Washingtonian magazine.

They are: Michael D. Barnes, U.S. House of Representatives, Eighth District of Maryland, (J.D. with honors, 1972); David A. Clarke, chairman, D.C. City Council (B.A., 1965); President LLoyd H. Elliott; Theodore N. Lerner, president, Lerner Corporation, (A.A. 1948, LL.B. 1950); and Honorary Trustee Katherine Graham, chairman, Washington Post Company; as well as Trustees Oliver Carr, president, Oliver T. Carr Company; Edwin K. Hoffman, chairman, Woodward and Lothrop; W. Jarvis Moody, chairman, American Security Bank; Abe Pollin, chairman, Capital Centre; and Robert K. Smith, president, Charles E. Smith Construction Company.

HALLOWEEN ARTBREAK

The first campus-wide Halloween Artbreak will be held on Friday, October 26, from 12 to 2 pm, on the H Street Terrace of the Marvin Center. Everyone is invited to come in costume and participate in the "Mask Making Merriment;" feathers, sequins, yarn, colored tissue and many other art supplies will be provided for the mask making. The event is being sponsored by the University Counseling Center's Art Therapy Services and the new Residence Hall Artbreak Task Force. Cider and ghoulish music will add to the festivities.

For additional information, contact Sondra Geller, coordinator of Art Therapy Services or Irma Marcellino, chair of Residence Hall Artbreak Task Force, Ext. 6550.

WORLD FOOD DAY--GWTV Executive Producer Frank J. Kavanaugh, right, conferred with host, actor Eddie Albert just prior to the national teleconference originating from GW which reached out to all 50 states in observance of the fourth annual World Food Day. Participants in the three-hour event included Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block and Rep. Mickey Leland (D-Tex.), chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger.

GW Music

GEORGE STEINER SCHOLARSHIP ESTABLISHED

The Department of Music has established the George Steiner Scholarship in Music in honor of the department's founder and first chairman.

The announcement of the new fund was made October 1, during the first of Professor Steiner's four recital appearances in the Music Department's 1984-85 Faculty Recital Series. Professor Steiner has contributed to the musical life of the university and the City of Washington over the past several decades. He first became associated with the university in 1961 as assistant professor of music.

The initial fund-raising goal is $25,000 with the hope that the first award can be made in the fall of 1985. Preference will be given to applicants who are string-instrument performers, but all qualified music majors or potential music majors in the department will be eligible.

For further information and contribution and pledge forms, contact the Department of Music, Academic Center, B-144, Roy J. Guenther, chairman.

MUSIC ARCHAEOLOGY LECTURE

Dr. Cajsa Lund, secretary general of a newly established study group on musical archaeology within the International Council for Traditional Music, will lecture on musical archaeology Tuesday, October 23, from 11:10 to 12:25 pm in Room B-120 of the Academic Center. Two bronze trumpets which date back some 2,500 years will be used as part of the lecture. Dr. Lund is appearing through the cooperation of the Embassy of Sweden. Admission is free.

NEIL TILKENS IN RECITAL

Neil Tilkens, pianist, associate professor of music, will appear in a faculty recital on Monday, October 29, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. He will perform works by Alexander Reinagle, Johannes Brahms, Charles T. Griffes, and Claude Debussy. Tickets are available at the door: $2-GW alumni and employees and $1-students and senior citizens.

J. FRANCIS EARLY TO ENTER THE PRIESTHOOD

J. Francis Early, manager of Lisner Auditorium, has begun studying for the priesthood at The Catholic University of America. He will become a priest of the Archdiocese of Washington.

He first became associated with Lisner Auditorium 19 years ago in 1965 as assistant manager when Russell Tyser was manager. He became auditorium manager in 1968 and has served in the post since then. His official last day at the university will be November 1.

RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVE IS THURSDAY, OCTOBER 25

The university sponsored Red Cross Blood Drive will be held on Thursday, October 25, in Marvin Center's third-floor Continental Ballroom between 11 am and 5 pm. Those who wish to participate should call Ext. 3999 for an appointment. The drive is being coordinated by the School of Government and Business Administration and the Student Activities Office.

MEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM "OPEN PRACTICE"

The GW Men's Basketball Team looks forward to its 1984-85 season and invites all members of the campus community to an "open practice" on Sunday, November 4, beginning at 10 am in the Charles E. Smith Center. The practice will last several hours. Men's basketball practices are normally closed.

This is an opportunity to meet Coach Gerry Gimmelstob and all the GW players. There will be a mini-clinic and picture-taking opportunities. Admission to the open practice is free.

Special faculty/staff season tickets, priced at $40 for the 14 home games, will be on sale. A group of seats will be marked with tags and anyone who likes the location of one of the specifically tagged seats can take the tag and buy a season ticket for that seat. For more information, call Ext. 6654.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

DIANE APOSTOLOS-CAPPADONA, lecturer in religion, an article, "Images, Interpretations and Traditions: A Study of The Magdalene" in Interpreting the Tradition: The Art of Theological Reflection, Jane Kopas, ed., (Scholars Press, 1984, pp. 109-122).

ROBERT GOLDFARB, professor of economics, a paper, "A Davis-Bacon Musicale: Symphony Orchestras as Migrant Labor," in the Journal of Labor Research, (Vol. 4, No. 4, Fall 1984, pp. 427-433).

MAUREEN KEARNEY, staff psychologist at the Counseling Center, an article, "A Comparison of Motive to Avoid Success in Males and Females," in the Journal of Clinical Psychology, July 1984.

JOAN KEEFE, lecturer in French, an op-ed article, "Bilingual Education Bonanza," in The Dallas Morning News, September 24. She is a member of the National Advisory Council on Bilingual Education.

DAVID McALEAVEY, associate professor of English, wrote the preface and introductory essay for and edited Evidence of Community: Writing from the Jenny McKean Moore Workshops at George Washington University, (GW Center for Washington Area Studies, 1984).

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, a paper, "Reduction Methods for Nonlinear Steady-State Thermal Analysis," in International Journal for Numerical Methods in Engineering, (Vol. 20, 1984, pp. 1323-1348), co-authored with Chad D. Balch, a research assistant, and Macon A. Shibut, a programmer analyst, both of whom work with Dr. Noor; and a paper entitled, "Mixed Models and Reduction Techniques for Large-Rotation Nolinear Problems," in Computer Methods in Applied Mechanics and Engineering, (Vol.44, 1984, pp.67-89), also co-authored by two who work with Dr. Noor, J.M. Peters, a programmer analyst, and C.M. Anderson, a senior research associate in the Department of Mathematics at the College of William and Mary in Virginia.

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, professor of psychology and director of the Counseling Center, a paper, "Research on the Use of Art Therapy in a University Setting," in the American Journal of Art Therapy, (Vol. 23), co-authored with Sondra K. Geller, coordinator of Art Therapy Services at the Counseling Center, and Mardy Ireland, currently at Outpatient Psychiatry at Kaiser Permanente, Martinez, California, who until March 1984 was a clinical psychologist at the Center.

JAMES E. STARRS, professor of law and of forensic sciences, an article, "A Miscue in Fingerprint Identification: Causes and Concerns," in the Journal of Police Science and Administration, (September 1984).

SUSAN TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, an article, "Air Bags and Regulatory Delay," in the first issue of the Natioanl Academy of Sciences new journal, Issues in Science and Technology, Fall 1984; (Other contributors to the issue were: Bruce Babbitt, governor of Arizona; George A. Keyworth, III, science advisor to President Reagan and Director of the White House Office of Science and Technology; and James C. Fletcher, former head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.) Another article, "Saving Those Wounded in our Deregulation Frenzy," appeared in the Washington Post, (Outlook section, September 23).

TARA GHOSHAL WALLACE, assistant professorial lecturer in English, edited from a manuscript, the 18th century play by Fanny Burney, A Busy Day. The book was published by Rutgers University Press, 1984, in both hard cover and paper back forms.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, gave the Charter Weekend (Homecoming) address for the 200th anniversary of the establishment of St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland, on Saturday, September 22. His theme was: "'The First Duty of a Republic:' Education in the American Scheme of Things."

CHRISTINE MELONI, adjunct instructor in English in the English for International Students Program, was invited to speak at the English Teaching Seminar sponsored by the United States Information Agency and held at the Foreign Service Institute in Arlington, VA., September 26 and 27. She presented workshops on "Teaching Writing Skills" and "Listening Comprehension Strategies."

JAMES E. STARRS, professor of law and of forensic sciences, delivered a paper on September 25 to the triennial meeting of the International Association of Forensic Sciences in Oxford, England. The paper was entitled "Once More Unto the Breech: The Fire-arms Evidence in Sacco-Vanzetti Revisited."

RICHARD F. SOUTHBY, professor of health care sciences and chairman of the Department of Health Services Administration, started his directorship of the Interagency Institute for Federal Health Care Executives on October 1. The purpose of the Interagency Institute is to provide an opportunity for the experienced, practicing Federal Health Care executive to examine current issues in health care policy and management and to explore their impact on the Federal Health Care System. Participating agencies in the Institute are the U.S. Army, U.S. Navy, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Public Health Service, and the Veterans Administration. There will be two two-week seminars held in the Washington metropolitan area. Participating faculty members will come from the George Washington University, other universities, government agencies and the private sector.

SUSAN TOLCHIN, professor of public administration, gave a speech, "Future Issues in Deregulation," at the National Association of Credit Union Supervisors' annual convention at Lake Tahoe, Nevada, September 17.

ALAN WADE, associate professor of communication and theatre, presented his one-man show "Shakespeare in Soliloquy," at Creighton University, Omaha, Nebraska, on September 27 under the auspices of the Nebraska Commission on the Humanities.

October 29, 1984

GW Report

(381)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER SPEAKS AT LAW LIBRARY DEDICATION

LAW LIBRARY DEDICATION--L to R, Chief Justice Burger, Dr. Jacob Burns, President Lloyd H. Elliott, and National Law Center Dean Jerome A. Barron after the ceremony.

"It seems to be an idea whose time has come," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger of the idea of factories with fences, instead of prisons, at the October 18 dedication of the Jacob Burns Law Library.

He described his continuing concern with the situation in United States prisons and its effects both on individuals and society. He traced his interest in what he sees as the more humane treatment of prisoners in the Scandinavian countries and in the Peoples Republic of China and referred to his travels with a group of 12 in 1981 to observe the prison systems in Scandinavia. He also singled out the states of Montana and Arizona as having forward-looking correctional systems.

The chief justice outlined the series of meetings which have led to The George Washington University's undertaking to develop a national organization to "do something about this intractable problem of corrections." He said he felt that the large response to invitations to participate in meetings at the Wingspread Conference Center in Racine, Wisconsin, and the June 18 GW conference on factories with fences co-sponsored with the Brookings Institution, which drew more than 700, could be "straws in the wind" to indicate that there is a sentiment for change in the U.S. correctional systems.

He pointed out that if only 10 percent of all the people in American prisons come out and become good citizens, "that will save tragedy and suffering and thousands of dollars for the American people."

"George Washington University is the first university in the world to undertake having a department or center on corrections," he said, pointing out that the idea has the support of the National Institute of Corrections, the National Institute of Justice, the American Correctional Association, the Federal Bureau of Prisons and the American Bar Association.

"I congratulate you, Dr. Elliott, for your leadership in launching this very much needed national activity," he said.

To Dr. Burns, Chief Justice Burger said, "I congratulate you on the development of this library which bears your name."

In responding, President Lloyd H. Elliott said, "For the George Washington University, its entire family, I thank you for your presence here today, your timely message, and I pledge to you the best efforts of this university in the enterprise which we have undertaken together."

Dr. Jacob Burns was introduced by President Elliott as "our alumnus, our trustee, our good friend, our benefactor." (He was graduated with distinction in the class of 1924. He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University in 1970.) President Elliott noted that he had come forward with the naming gift for the law library in 1967 and that his further generosity had helped put in place the "beautiful and spacious addition," which shall forever be known as the Jacob Burns Law Library of The George Washington University. "This is a thrilling day for me," Dr. Burns said. "Really, what have I done to deserve all this?" he asked. "Actually I have contributed only money to the fulfillment of the wish and plans of the administration of our university to provide the finest facilities for our great law school. My reward is the enormous feeling of satisfaction I get when I see the growth and development of our university, not only in physical facilities, but also in academic achievements and in our status among great institutions of learning and I am happy to play a role in it."

National Law Center Dean Jerome A. Barron, in brief remarks, said, "For the first time this law school has the house that the achievements of its faculty, alumni and students merit. Speaking for the faculty and the students of the school, I wish to say that we are immensely happy about these new facilities."

University Marshal Robert G. Jones gave the invocation and benediction at the dedication ceremony. An estimated 2000 people attended.

SECRETARY OF EDUCATION ANNOUNCES STUDY GROUP FINDINGS HERE AT GW

Secretary of Education T.H. Bell announced the findings of the Study Group on the Conditions of Excellence in American Higher Education at an October 22 press conference in the Marvin Theatre.

In presenting the report, Involvement in Learning: Realizing the Potential of American Higher Education, Secretary Bell said, "The report is the product of a seven member study group appointed in September of 1983 by Dr. Manuel Justiz, Director of the National Institute of Education. Unlike the National Commission on Excellence in Education, the study group did not hold hearings or take testimony. Recognized as experts in their field, the group was asked to function as a seminar to review the data available, to study previously published papers, to review testimony and reports and to work together to publish a constructively critical review of the condition of undergraduate education and to make recommendations for improvement.

"The report offers 27 recommendations for realizing what the study group considers the full potential of undergraduate education in the Nation's colleges, community colleges and universities," the secretary said. "It is important to note that 20 of the recommendations are directed to college faculty and administrators and seven are directed to graduate school deans and faculty, State legislatures and State officials, accrediting agencies, the research community and students.

"Some 'warning signs and trouble spots' identified in the report will require the prompt attention of the higher education community," he stated. "By responding promptly to these needs for reform in higher education we will avoid a major crisis that will erode public confidence and support in subsequent years."

Secretary Bell outlined what he called "some significant highlights" of the report. He noted that only about half of those who enter college with the intention of receiving a bachelor's degree do so, that those entering freshmen that have the best academic preparation are the least likely to drop out and that those colleges that require a high level of academic preparation of entering freshmen have the lower dropout rates. He said that two of the most important points in the report are the findings that the test scores of college graduates applying to graduate and professional schools have declined, some by very substantial amounts; and that more students are pursuing degrees in increasingly narrow fields, avoiding the liberal arts and sciences, frequently avoiding subjects that challenge their verbal skills and moving more and more into professional and vocational programs as undergraduates. He noted that the study group recommends the equivalent of a full two years in liberal arts which would require 60 semester or 90 quarter hours so that some undergraduate degree programs would last five years.

Further highlights of the report, as given by Secretary Bell, are the decline in the quality of physical plants and equipment and the fact that faculty salaries have not kept up with inflation. The Secretary pointed out that the plan of action presented in the report says that student involvement in learning must increase, that clear expectations and high standards for what can be accomplished must be shared by students and institutions, and that evaluation and assessment must be an integral part of academic learning.

At the conclusion of his statement Secretary Bell commented, "You know, educational institutions are a bit like people, they can grow old and top out and go to seed if they don't renew and reinvigorate themselves periodically and that's the purpose of this report--to stimulate renewal, to stimulate discussion and debate and it's a pleasure to present the report today and to commend it to American higher education for review and criticism and response."

In opening the question and answer period, the secretary introduced Dr. Kenneth Mortimer, chairman of the study group, and asked him and the other panel members (all of whom were present) to help with responses.

Secretary of Education Bell

The first question was "Why does the report place emphasis on liberal education?" To answer, Dr. Mortimer introduced panel member Barbara Lee, assistant professor at the Institute of Management and Labor Relations, Rutgers University, who said, "It is known that people change jobs five times before they are 40, that careers through a lifetime change several times and a belief has become evident that liberal arts provide people with basic skills, a range of skills and attitudes which help them in all aspects of their lives." She pointed out that the recommendation is not so much on vocational skills per se as an emphasis on the undesirability of narrow job preparation. "I think my colleagues would agree in asking that the whole undergraduate experience not be job oriented but instead the kind of education that prepares people for life," she concluded.

(contiued on back)

SECRETARY OF EDUCATION

(contiuned from front)

Asked how he expects to "sell" five years with higher costs, Secretary Bell said, "Especially in my view, getting a college degree means that a person is an educated individual. ...I am aware of the costs and I am concerned ... but if we don't become aware of the increasingly early professional encroachments of degree requirements into the liberal arts, we're going to have people that know only a narrow specialty. ...We need to have broadly educated men and women if we're going to keep this great republic working. They need to understand something about our culture and our history and they need to have a command of the language."

To the question, "Will there be money coming from the government for buildings?" Secretary Bell answered, "Our budget is $17 billion, 900 million. It was $14.7 last year. We do have some academic facilities money in that budget. We also think we help indirectly by carrying the big burden of student aid."

In response to the query, "Do you endorse the report?" Secretary Bell said he had just finished reading it the night before and that he did have some reservations with regard to the recommendation on part-time faculty, observing "I know of some part-time faculty who bring expertise you couldn't get otherwise." He said he also had reservations on the states receiving funding formulas. "We reserve the right as sponsors to differ with the report," he stated and continued, "The teacher education statement and emphasis on liberal arts are great. ...I just think it's a very, very outstanding piece of work and, along with other reports that will be coming out, will be very useful. I think American higher education is going to be better for it."

BOARD OF TRUSTEES-STUDENT RECEPTION--L to R, Trustees Andrew J. Colao and Melvin R. Laird are shown with Mike O'Reilly, a Columbian College junior majoring in criminal justice in the Sociology Department's program and a guard on the Men's Basketball Team.

FOREIGN SCHOLARS TO DISCUSS U.S. POLITICS

Three foreign scholars will participate in a panel discussion on the U.S. political campaigns of 1984, Monday, November 5, at 7 pm in Room 404 of the Marvin Center.

Members of the panel will be: B. Ramesh Babu from India, professor of politics at the University of Bombay; Rob Kroes from Holland, director of the Institute of American Studies at the University of Amsterdam; and Marcus Cunliffe from England, currently University Professor at George Washington.

Howard Gillette, GW professor of American Civilization, will moderate. The event is sponsored by the Graduate American Studies Student Organization and is open to the public.

IBM TO SHOW THEIR MICRO-COMPUTER SYSTEMS

International Business Machines will put on an exhibition of their micro-computer systems in the Center for Academic and Administrative Computing user area (Academic Center/B-107) tomorrow, Tuesday, October 30 with the focus on the needs of the faculty. Discount information will be available. For further information, contact Carol Johnson, ext. 6140.

POETRY READING SERIES

The Tuesday Noon Poetry Series sponsored by the Department of English continues with Carmen Lattimore from GW and Maxine Clair from Washington reading tomorrow, October 30. Tuesday, November 6, Linda White from GW and Ron Weber from Washington will be featured. On November 13, Gary Walton from GW and Laurie Stroblas from Washington will appear. All readings take place in the atrium of 2000 Pennsylvania Avenue from noon to 1 pm.

MEN'S BASKETBALL "OPEN PRACTICE"

Sunday, November 4, is the day the Men's Basketball Team has invited the campus community to come to "open practice," in the Charles E. Smith Center, beginning at 10 am. Admission is free. There will be a mini-clinic and photo opportunities. Special faculty/staff season tickets for the 14 home games will be available. For more information, call Ext. 6654.

OPENINGS AVAILABLE FOR ANNUAL "MESSIAH" PERFORMANCE

The Music Department invites the community to join in the December 7 performance of Handel's "Messiah," either in the chorus or in the orchestra. The annual Glee Club Yuletide Concert and "Messiah" Sing-Along, under the direction of Catherine Pickar, will take place at 8 pm in the Marvin Center Theatre. The rehearsal dates for the "Messiah" are as follows:

CHORUS
3 rehearsals and one dress rehearsal

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Tues. Nov. 20 | 5:45-7 pm | Academic Center/B-120 |
| Tues. Nov. 27 | 5:45-7 pm | Academic Center/B-120 |
| Weds. Dec. 5 | 5:45-7 pm | Marvin Center Theatre |
| Thur. Dec. 6 | 7:30-9:30 pm | Marvin Center Theatre |

ORCHESTRA
4 rehearsals and one dress rehearsal

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Sun. Nov. 4 | 6-8 pm | Academic Center/B-120 |
| Sun. Nov. 11 | 6-8 pm | Academic Center/B-120 |
| Tues. Nov. 20 | 7:30-9:30 pm | Academic Center/B-120 |
| Tues. Nov. 27 | 7:30-9:30 pm | Academic Center/B-120 |
| Thur. Dec. 6 | 7:30-9:30 pm | Marvin Center Theatre |

The department asks that all participants have prior familiarity with the score. Call Ext. 6245 if you are interested; space is limited.

JAPAN FOUNDATION FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

The Japan Foundation, a non-profit organization whose objective is to "promote international cultural exchange and mutual understanding between Japan and countries overseas," offers two kinds of fellowships: professional fellowships and dissertation fellowships.

Professional fellowships are for academic faculty and other professionals who wish to carry out research in Japan. Nineteen professional fellowships will be awarded in 1985-86.

Dissertation fellowships are intended for doctoral candidates in the social sciences and in the humanities. Candidates in the areas of political science, law, economics, business, anthropology and journalism are especially encouraged to apply.

Although proficiency in the Japanese language is desirable, it is required only in cases where it is neeeded to complete a research project successfully. Fellowships will be granted for both long-term and short-term periods. The deadline for applications is Thursday, November 15. For more information, call the Graduate Fellowship Information Center, Ext. 6217.

FACULTY WOMEN'S CLUB INVITES MEMBERS

The Faculty Women's Club of The George Washington University, a group of professors, administrators and wives of professors and administrators, invites inquiries from those interested in becoming members.

Meetings are held on the second Friday of each month from October through April, with the exception of January. This year's programs include: a dinner-theater at the university; an "arm-chair" tour of Australia; a briefing at the World Bank; and tours of Woodlawn and Hillwood. The club also sponsors interest groups in areas such as book discussion, bridge and needlework. Dues are $10 annually which includes a monthly newsletter and a membership directory. For more information on joining, call Joyce P. Hobbs at 892-4685.

RISA JARASLOW AND DANCERS IN LECTURE-DEMONSTRATION

Risa Jaraslow and Dancers of New York City will appear in a lecture-demonstration in the Building K Studio, 817 23rd Street, NW, on Wednesday, October 31, from 2 to 4 pm. The event, sponsored by the GW Dance Program, is open to the public without charge.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEW

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, was interviewed in London for a historical program, "Timewatch," (broadcast on BBC TV, October 3), on Gore Vidal's Lincoln.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

HERB DAVIS, associate professor of business administration, completed an assignment as Senior Fulbright Scholar at the Institute of Business Administration, The University of Dhaka last summer. He was the first Fulbrighter in his discipline to go to Bangladesh.

DAVID McALEAVEY, associate professor of English, gave a poetry reading at the Ear Inn in New York City on September 29. Recently, he has been elected to membership in P.E.N. (International Society of Poets, Editors, Essayists, and Novelists), which, among other activities, attempts to free incarcerated writers around the world and sponsors the P.E.N./Faulkner award out of the Folger Shakespeare Library.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, served as editor for the section on International HRD (Human Resource Development) for the October issue of the Training and Development Journal.

MICHAEL S. SHAPIRO, associate professor of museum studies and American civilization, conducted a seminar "The Museum and the Public: Some Unanswered Questions," on September 21 in the Smithsonian's on-going Nineteenth Century Seminars series. The seminar was held in the conference room of the original Smithsonian Institution building.

CARL STEINER, professor of German, participated in and gave a paper at the Ninth Annual Colloquium at West Virginia University, September 27-29. The paper was entitled, "Rebellion for a Cause: Heinrich Bölls Ansichten eines Clowns." The discussion theme at the colloquium was "Rebels, Aliens, and Outsiders: The Nonconformist in Society."

RICHARD Y.C. YIN, associate professor of economics, Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies, testified before the House Special Subcommittee on U.S. Trade with China on September 12. His testimony concerned the special economic zones of China.

November 5, 1984

GW Report

(382)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

AMERICAN ITALIAN HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The American Italian Historical Association will hold its 17th annual conference in Washington, DC, November 9 through 11. The conference, which is being held with the cooperation of The George Washington University and the National Italian American Foundation, has as its theme, "Support and Struggle: Italians and Italian Americans in Perspective." Conference chairman is Joseph L. Tropea, GW associate professor of sociology. Columbian College Dean Clara M. Lovett will give the welcoming address.

Discussion panels will cover a variety of topics, including the media, religion, labor, women, entrepreneurship and Italian involvement in early America. Conference sessions will be held at the Quality Inn-Capitol Hill.

"Scenes of Southern Italy," a special exhibit of photographs and drawings, done by GW assistant professor of photography Jeffrey Stephanic and Diana Horowitz of Temple University, will be on display Friday, November 9, from 1 to 6 pm at the Quality Inn-Capitol Hill.

Members of the GW community participating in the conference, in addition to Professors Tropea, Stephanic and Dean Lovett, will be: Professor of History William Becker; University Professor Marcus Cunliffe, who will chair the panel on early America; Professor of Business Administration Salvatore Divita; Associate Professor of American Civilization and Director of the GW Center for Washington Area Studies Howard F. Gillette, Jr., who will lecture November 10; Assistant Professor of Women's Studies and Coordinator of the Women's Studies Program Phyllis M. Palmer, who will chair the panel on women; and Associate Professor of History Leo Ribuffo.

The American Italian Historical Association was founded in 1966 by a group of educators and social scientists, dedicated to research, collection, preservation and popularization of the experience of Italians who immigrated to the Americas. The National Italian American Foundation is a non-profit, non-partisan foundation, organized in 1976 by Italian Americans representing the professions, business, labor, arts, sciences, academia and politics.

For further information on the conference, call Professor Tropea at Ext. 6897.

NOVEMBER FIRST WEDNESDAY TO BE A MUSICAL EVENING

"An Introduction to the GW Music Department: Its Faculty and Facilities" is the theme of the November 7 First Wednesday Lecture, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office.

Following opening remarks by Music Department Chairman Roy J. Guenther, there will be brief performances by members of the music faculty. Those performing will be: Myrna Sislen, guitar; Jane White, soprano; George Steiner, violin; and Marilyn Garst, harpsichord. In addition, there will be visits to the department's pipe organ studio where faculty member Eileen Morris Guenther will be giving demonstrations on the organ. Teresa Sly, a recent music graduate, will also be performing on the organ.

The musical evening, scheduled for 8 pm in the Music Department, level B-1 of the Academic Center, Rome Hall entrance, is open to the public without charge. Reservations are requested. Call Ext. 6435. Dinner will be served, beginning at 6:30 pm in the GW University Club, for both members and non-members. Call the club directly, at Ext. 6610, for dinner reservations.

CONSULTATION--Barry Kane of Drew University, left, talked with Jim Rounsevell of Falls Church, Virginia, October 24 during Graduate and Professional Days. Nearly 200 representatives of graduate and professional schools gathered at GW for information sessions.

LECTURE, EXHIBIT ON HISTORY OF DC ITALIAN COMMUNITY

SHOE STORE--This turn-of-the-century shoe store is typical of one of many opened by Italians in the inner section of the City of Washington. The picture is one of a group collected from Italian families which will be shown November 10 at Holy Rosary Church and then November 13 through December 31 at the Martin Luther King Library.

The GW Center for Washington Area Studies will present a public lecture and exhibit on the history of Washington's Italian community from 1890 to the present, at the Holy Rosary Church, 3rd and F Streets, NW, on Saturday, November 10, at 6 pm. Admission is free.

The program, which is being presented as part of the 17th annual conference of the American Italian Historical Association, (November 9-11, in Washington, DC) has been funded by a grant from the District of Columbia Community Humanities Council. The exhibit will be moved to the Washingtoniana division of the Martin Luther King Library where it may be seen from November 13 through December 31. Oral histories, collected as part of the preparation for the lecture and exhibit, will be placed on permanent deposit at the King Library.

The November 10 lecture will be presented by Howard F. Gillette, Jr., director of the GW Center for Washington Area Studies and associate professor of American civilization, and Alan Kraut, associate professor of history at American University.

Professor Gillette says that although Washington never attracted the same concentration of immigrants as other cities which industrialized, still a sizeable number of Italians migrated to the city at the turn of the century and entered a range of skilled building trades as the capital modernized, as well as a number of service industries such as shoemaking, groceries and produce. Newcomers congregated in the inner sections of the city near the location of the new Union Station. As their numbers grew, they formed their own associations, including an Italian parish, Holy Rosary, which has provided a focal point for community activity for 70 years. Dr. Gillette observes that although Italians have long since dispersed throughout Washington's metropolitan area, they have retained a number of associations and traditions, which make them a distinctive community within the larger area.

DIMOCK GALLERY TO PRESENT SIMON DE PURY IN LECTURE

Simon de Pury, curator of the Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection, Lugano, Switzerland, will present an illustrated lecture on the collection, Tuesday, November 16 at 6:30 pm, in the Lower Level of Lisner Auditorium. The Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection is considered a gem of the art museum world. Curator de Pury's lecture is sponsored by the International Exhibitions Foundation and The Dimock Gallery, Art Department in cooperation with the Embassy of Switzerland. A reception will follow the lecture. The event is open to the public but reservations are suggested; call Ext. 6157.

NORTHERN INDIAN CLASSICAL MUSIC CONCERT

Mahmud Mirza of India will present "The Art of Raga: North Indian Classical Music" on the sitar, Tuesday, November, 13, at 8:15 pm in the Academic Center/B-120. His music has been described by the New York Times as "Profoundly pleasurable...poetic...dazzling."

The performance is presented by the Foundation for Traditional Studies and the Department of Music. Tickets, which will be sold at the door, are $7-general admission and $4-students. Seating is limited. For further information, call Ext. 5705.

RECEPTION--Assistant Registrar for Scheduling Helen E. Stetter, left, greeted Vice President for Academic Affairs Roderick S. French and Mrs. French at the recent reception hosted by President and Mrs. Lloyd H. Elliott for new appointees in the GW University Club.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR PROFESSOR GREEN

There will be a memorial service Monday, November 12, for the late Marvin D. Green, associate professor of mathematics, who died on September 12 of this year. The service will be held at 12:15 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre.

Professor Green came to George Washington in September of 1966 as assistant professor of mathematics. He became assoicate professor in 1970. He was born June 19, 1936. All three of his degrees were from the University of Cincinnatti (B.S. 1961; M.S. 1962; and Ph.D. 1965). Prior to coming to George Washington, he was an instructor at the University of Cincinnatti from 1962 to 1966. He served in the United States Army in an airborne division from 1953 to 1955, entering the service at age 17. He was an airplane pilot and his hobbies included parachuting and water skiing.

He was a resident of Riva, Maryland, near Annapolis. He is survived by his wife, Eva.

MASTER'S ACTING COMPANY IN FIRST PERFORMANCES

The newly formed Master's Acting Company of the Department of Communication and Theatre will give its first performances on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 8, 9 and 10, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre, presenting three one-act plays.

The plays are: "Patio" and "Porch," both by Jack Heifner; and "Change at Jamaica," by Ronni Brenner, a former GW student. "Patio" and "Porch" are described as studies of loves (sister and sister, mother and daughter) and of the demands made by such love and relationships. The patio is an escape from a world that is empty. The porch is a spot from which one can watch the emptiness pass by. The plays are said to be designed to present the characters as real people, both good and funny, but beyond laughter, to leave the theatregoer with a feeling of love and sadness for the four women portrayed.

continued next column

"Change at Jamaica" examines the conflict of contemporary women trying to combine family and career and explores the variety of ways in which women communicate with one another. Playwright Brenner received her B.A. in dramatic art from George Washington (Columbian College) in 1972. She and her husband, Dr. Ira Brenner, also a GW graduate (B.A. 1972, Columbian College with a major in pre-med) now live in Rosemont, Pennsylvania with their two daughters. "Change at Jamaica" was most recently produced at West Chester University, West Chester, Pennsylvania.

Tickets are $6 general admission and $3 for students and senior citizens. For more information and reservations, call Ext. 6178 on weekdays between 10 am and 4 pm.

COLLONADE GALLERY TO SHOW ARTWORK OF NON-ARTISTS

"Are you a non-artist artist?" an announcement now being circulated asks. The reason for the question is that there will be an exhibition of artwork of non-art faculty and staff members of the university in the Marvin Center's third-floor Colonnade Gallery from December 6 to January 31, 1985.

The upcoming exhibition is being sponsored by the Governing Board of the Marvin Center. Work in any medium may be submitted as long as it is of original conception. The works chosen may not be larger than 60 inches wide, including framing if any, nor more than 60 inches tall. Weight must not exceed 50 pounds if the works are wall-hung. For free-standing sculpture, the base must not exceed three square feet. Identification of artist must be placed on each piece submitted. A selection jury, composed of professionals from outside the George Washington University community, will determine quality and the size of the show, since the Colonnade Gallery space is limited. A work may be offered for sale, if an artist wishes.

The drop-off date for submissions is Tuesday, November 13, between 2:30 and 6:30 pm. The location is the Governing Board office second floor, Marvin Center. The selection process will be completed by Thursday, November 15, and pick-up hours will be from 2:30 to 6:30 pm that day, from the same location. All members of the GW faculty and staff are eligible except those already affiliated with the Art Department. Questions? Call Jeanne Trombly at Ext. 7470.

GELMAN SHOWS BOOKS DESIGNED BY LOCAL ARTISTS

The Gelman Library is hosting an exhibition of books designed by local artists through Friday, November 30. The 20 books are on display in the exhibition cases of the library's first floor.

The exhibition has been organized by the Washington Project for the Arts and funded by the National Home Library Foundation. It is one of five exhibitions of artists' books to be presented at libraries in the Washington area. The other four exhibitions are at the University of Maryland, American University, Georgetown University and the Martin Luther King Library. At the conclusion of the exhibitions, the books will be donated to the libraries where they have been on display during the exhibition period.

POST OMBUDSMAN TO SPEAK AT PHI BETA KAPPA EVENT

The George Washington University Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, in conjunction with the Phi Beta Kappa Association of the District of Columbia, is sponsoring a presentation by Sam Zagoria, ombudsman of the Washington Post, on the workings of a major metropolitan newspaper. He will speak in the GW University Club at approximately 1:30 pm on Wednesday, November 14. Admission is free and the event is open to the public. Reservations should be made, however, by calling Elaine P. Rosenthal at 966-8127.

A luncheon in honor of Zagoria is planned at 1:00 pm in the GW University Club. Reservations for the luncheon can be made by sending a check for $10, made out to Phi Beta Kappa Associates, to Elaine P. Rosenthal, 4000 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, DC, 20016, before November 8.

ALUMNI RELATIONS OFFICE SPONSORS TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The Fall 1984 Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office, is scheduled for Saturday evening, November 10, from 8 pm to 12 midnight. Open to faculty, staff, students and alumni, the tournament will take place at the Arlington Y Tennis and Squash Club. Cost is $10 for each participant. For an entry form or more information, call Ext. 6435.

LIDO CLUB AWARD TO GW STUDENT LAWRANCE BINDA

The Lido Club of Washington, DC, an organization of professional and business men of Italian ancestry, has made a scholarship award of $1000 to GW student Lawrance Binda.

Binda, who comes from Rutherford, New Jersey, is a senior majoring in political science in the Columbian College of Arts and Sciences. He is a member of Phi Eta Sigma freshman honor society, Psi Chi honor society in psychology, and Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. His future plans include further studies in Soviet-U.S. foreign policy.

Four universities participated in the scholarship competition for this year: American University; the Catholic University of America; Georgetown University; and the George Washington University. Eligibility required that candidates be of Italian-American heritage, be enrolled in a full-time undergraduate program, have a demonstrated financial need, and have a permanent domicile within a 50-mile radius of Washington, DC. Two scholarship awards were made this year, the one to Binda, and another to a student at Catholic University.

PERSONNEL NOTICE

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, temporary, full or part-time, The Biostatistics Center. (Person will assist biostatisticians with management and analysis of medical research studies. Must have B.A./B.S., experience with SAS programming, medical research experience, and a minimum of one year related experience.) Send resumes to Sonnia Tidwell, The Biostatistics Center, 7970 Old Georgetown Road, Bethesda, MD 20814. No phone calls, please.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

MASK MERRYMAKING--Sandy Geller, left, and Irma Marcellino, of the Counseling Center, masked themselves and enjoyed watching the participants in the first Halloween Artbreak, "Mask-Making Merriment," held Friday, October 26, on the Marvin Center H Street Terrace.

November 12, 1984

GW Report

(383)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

DANZANSKY AMPHITHEATRE CLASSROOM IS DEDICATED

L to R, President Lloyd H. Elliott, Mrs. Ethel E. Danzansky, Dean Jerome A. Barron

"This classroom is a living memorial to the vitality and spirit of the late Joseph B. Danzansky," said National Law Center Dean Jerome A. Barron at the November 1 dedication of the Joseph B. Danzansky Amphitheatre Classroom. Following an invocation by the Reverend Professor Robert G. Jones, university marshal, Dean Barron welcomed the approximately 80 friends of the Danzansky family and university officials who had gathered for the 9 pm ceremony.

In his remarks, Dean Barron recalled that Mr. Danzansky was graduated both from the Columbian College (B.A. 1935) and from the GW Law School (J.D. 1936) and that he was appointed to the Board of Trustees in 1972. The dean noted that as president and chairman of the board of Giant Food Incorporated, Danzansky had pioneered consumer innovation and achieved a well-deserved reputation for extending the company's service to the needs of the community, that he served twice as president of the Metropolitan Washington Board of Trade, twice as chairman of the United Way of the National Capital Area and that he had given "outstanding service" to the community in his concern for and his care for the victims of the 1968 riots in Washington.

"Friends," Dean Barron said, "This evening we dedicate a classroom in honor of a man who was a lawyer in the best sense of that word. He looked beyond what he could do for himself to what he could do for the world around him."

In response, Mrs. Ethel B. Danzansky said, "I wish to thank all of you for coming and for your part in making this facility possible. It is indeed a fitting tribute to Joe. Joe loved the law. He loved every day of his 25 years of practice. He loved young people. He loved justice and fairness and he loved his university. So you can see that this amphitheatre, at this university, is a memorial of love--Joe's love for everything I just mentioned and your love for him. It is said that the way to be immortal after we leave this earth is to live on in the lives and thoughts of others. This amphitheatre accomplishes that for Joe."

(continued on back)

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR JAMES C. DOCKERAY

There will be a memorial service for the late James C. Dockeray, professor emeritus of finance and former dean of the School of Government and Business Administration, on Friday, November 16, at 12:15 pm in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. He died September 30 at his home in Maitland, Florida.

Prior to joining George Washington, Dean Dockeray taught at Ohio State University, James Millikin University in Illinois, Iowa State Teachers College and the University of Maryland.

He first became associated with the university in 1946 as a lecturer in economics while he was an economist with the Small Business Administration. In 1955, he became professor of finance and chairman of the Department of Business Administration. In 1964, he was appointed assistant dean of the School of Government and Business Administration and was made dean in 1966. He retired in 1973.

Born in Grand Rapids, Michigan, he earned a bachelor's degree at Ohio Wesleyan University, and a doctorate in economics from Ohio State.

He is survived by his wife, Isabel of Maitland, Florida; two sons who live in Maryland, George C. of Olney, and William F. of Columbia; a daughter, Susan R. Peterson of Arlington, Texas; and three grandchildren.

VOTERS IGNORE PROJECTIONS ADAMS' SURVEY LEARNS

The TV networks' early projections of President Reagan's election victory had virtually no effect on voter turnout, according to a study directed by William C. Adams, associate professor of public administration.

Adams announced November 8 that his election-night survey of 1,256 voters and non-voters in Oregon found that only a miniscule fraction of the non-voters blamed their failure to vote on early TV pronouncements of a Reagan sweep.

"We could find no evidence that the early announcement depressed turnout to anywhere near the extent that has been popularly believed," he said. "This is an emotional issue and millions of Americans object to the networks projecting the winner hours before the polls close in many parts of the country, however, our research was unable to uncover any sign of significant damage in Oregon due to projections."

Professor Adams' telephone survey contacted 639 eligible, registered voters who did not go to the polls. Fewer than three percent of them attributed their decision not to vote on the network verdicts. This proportion would represent no more than one-fourth of one percent of the electorate. Adams estimated, therefore, that projections could theoretically only affect Congressional races decided by fewer than 200 votes.

Contrary to widespread assmuptions, the small number of people who said they were dissuaded from voting by projections did not consist overwhelmingly of disappointed Democrats; slightly more favored Reagan over Mondale.

"Projections do not have the power that critics have claimed," Professor Adams concludes.

The project was funded by the university through the Committee on Research.

JAPANESE DIET MEMBER TO DISCUSS U.S.-JAPAN TRADE

The Honorable Chikara Higashi, member of the Diet (Parliament) of Japan and founding president of the Exploration Center for International Affairs, will speak on "U.S.-Japanese Trade Relations: The View from Tokyo," at 2 pm on Tuesday, November 13, in the lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium. Admission is free and everyone is invited.

Dr. Higashi is a George Washington University alumnus (Doctor of Business Administration 1982). He earned a Bachelor of Economics from the University of Tokyo in 1965 and the Master of Economics university equivalent from the Japanese Ministry of Finance in 1968.

A member of the Diet since December, 1983, Dr. Higashi has served in a number of positions with the Ministry of Finance, most recently as a Special Advisor to the Minister of Finance (1981-1982). He has worked with the World Bank and spent three years as a guest scholar at the Brookings Institution. He serves as an advisor to more than one dozen of the largest Japanese corporations. The author of numerous articles on U.S.-Japanese trade relations, Dr. Higashi had a book published last year titled "Japanese Trade Policy Formulation" (Praeger).

OFFICER OF THE QUARTER Security Patrolman Lavend James, left, is shown with Director of Safety and Security Edward D. Kenney. He was selected to receive the Officer of the Quarter award for the period July, August, September of this year for his "dependability, reliability and maturity."

DANZANSKY

(continued from front)

In dedicating the classroom, President Lloyd H. Elliott said, "On behalf of the Board of Trustees, on which Mr. Danzansky served so faithfully, I hereby declare The Danzansky Amphitheatre Classroom shall forever be a part of The George Washington University."

The prayer of dedication and benediction was given by University Marshal Jones, who said, in part, "With gladness, we accept what generous hearts have offered to support the study of the law."

The Danzansky Amphitheatre Classroom, in the third floor of Lerner Hall, seats 118 students and features useful and contemporary innovative techniques in classroom planning. Tiered to improve vision, it has full video capability and the most advanced sound system available.

The bronze plaque which has been placed in the classroom reads, "The Danzansky Amphitheatre Classroom is a fitting memorial for Joseph B. Danzansky, J.D. '36, who gave so much to the city, this community and this university. This gift was made possible through the generosity of the Joseph B. Danzansky Commemoration Committee and the Danzansky Family."

WELCOME--Judy Schwartz, left, director of student activities at the Hillel Jewish Student Center, and Rabbi Gerald Serotta, director of the center, talked with Father Bob Keffer, right, newly appointed chaplain of the Newman Catholic Student Center, at the recent reception sponsored by the Board of Chaplains to welcome him.

TUITION BENEFITS UPDATE

During the week of October 29, President Reagan signed a bill, P.L. 98-611, which makes Section 127 of the tax code retroactive to January 1, 1984, and extends it through December 31, 1985. This was the section of the code that had expired at the end of December, 1983, and which had provided for the tax-free status of educational benefits to university employees. The new law puts a limit of $5,000 on the amount of tuition benefits an employee can receive but assures their tax exempt status. Tuition benefits for employee dependents are unaffected by this legislation, however, and are not subject to the limitation.

TURKEY TROT FUN RUN

You are invited to offset your Thanksgiving feasting in advance by taking part in the First Annual GWU Turkey Trot Fun Run on Saturday, November 17, at 1 pm. The event involves running three times around the reflecting pool at the Lincoln Memorial, a distance of less than three miles. The winners will be those who can run the race in the time period closest to the time they guessed they could run it.

The fun run, open to all faculty, staff and students, is sponsored by the Department of Recreation and Intramurals in the Charles E. Smith Center, Room 103. For further details, call Ext. 6250.

STUDENT-FACULTY DANCE CONCERT IS NOVEMBER 15-17

The George Washington University Student-Faculty Dance Concerts are scheduled for Thursday, Friday, Saturday, November 15 through 17, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. Sponsored by the GW Dance Production Group, headed by Maida Withers, associate professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, the program includes two works by guest-artist-in-residence Daniel McCusker.

McCusker, a New York City-based dancer and choreographer, has created a dance entitled "Place" for GW dance students selected by audition. He will perform in a duet excerpted from a 30-minute piece entitled "Common Places."

Kathy McCarthy, an alumna of the Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies Dance Program, (Master of Arts in Education, Dance, 1981) and a member of McCusker's New York dance company, will appear with him in the excerpt from "Common Places." She is acting as his assistant during his residency.

Members of the dance faculty presenting works at the concerts will be Kathy Robins Siegel, Roberta Rothstein and Lucinda Hall. Students who will present works are Lisa Howard and Marina Grut.

Tickets, available at the door, are $4.50 general admission and $3.50 for students. For more information, call Ext. 6280.

FELLOWSHIP DEADLINES

The application deadlines for three important fellowships are Friday, November 30.

The Lady Davis Fellowships are for study, research or teaching on the graduate, post-doctoral or professional levels at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and the Technicon-Israel Institute of Technology, Haifa.

The German Marshall Fund Fellowships are for "scholars with advanced degrees whose proposed research projects promise to contribute to a better understanding of significant contemporary problems common to industrial societies."

The National Wildlife Federation and the American Petroleum Institute are sponsoring Environmental Conservation Fellowships primarily to support research by master's or doctoral candidates.

Further information is available from the Graduate Fellowship Information Center, Ext. 6217.

ANNUAL STUDENT SHOW OPENS THURSDAY IN DIMOCK

The Annual Student Show, which presents works by graduate and undergraduate students enrolled in the Fine Arts and Art History Programs of the Art Department, opens Thursday, November 15, in the Dimock Gallery.

The exhibition, sponsored by the Dimock Gallery, Art Department, will run through Friday, December 7. Gallery hours are 10 am to 5 pm weekdays. The show will be representative of all media including painting, drawing, sculpture, ceramics, photography, printmaking, visual communications and design. Some of the works will be for sale.

TROUBADOURS IN CONCERT SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 18

The GW Troubadours will appear in concert on Sunday, November 18, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. Their program will consist of unaccompanied vocal arrangements ranging from Victorian part songs to American vocal jazz. A reception will follow the concert. Tickets are $2 general admission and will be available at the box office before the performance or from members of the Troubadours.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

Simon de Pury, curator, Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection, Lugano, Switzerland, will present an illustrated lecture on the collection on Tuesday, November 13, at 6:30 pm in the lower lounge of Lisner Auditorium. Admission is free but call Ext. 7157 for reservations.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part time, Department of Economics. (Editing project for the United States Information Agency requires a graduate research assistant in economics. Completion of at least one year of graduate work in economics, with some background in international economics, preferred; SPIA students acceptable if they have a strong background in international economics. Applicants must be able to run word processor. Up to 20 hrs/week during the school year. Need to start project by mid or late November.) Send resumes to Professor Robert M. Dunn, Department of Economics, Building C, Ext. 7379.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Medicine/Gastroenterology. (Duties include performing chemical or immunological assays designed to measure pancreatic inflammation or function, including anylase, trypsinogen, lipase, ect.; animal surgery to cannulate and/or perfuse the pancreas. Bachelor's degree, preferably in science, required as well as a minimum of one year relevant experience.) Contact Dr. Steinberg, Ext. 4213 or 2964.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, part time, Department of Biochemistry. (Position involves identification of tumor induction in irradiated tissues/organs. A graduate degree in biochemistry or medicine and a minimum of one year related experience in research or college level teaching is required. Preference will be given to the candidate with experience in tumor biology, radiation therapy and basic knowledge of molecular biology of the oncogenes.) Contact Dr. Ajit Kumar, Ext. 4415.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part time, Department of Biochemistry/Division of Rheumatology. (Bachelor of Science degree and one year related experience required as well as experience with chromatographic and common biochemical techniques. Position available immediately.) Contact Dr. David Borenstein, Ext. 4416.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part time, Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences. (Individual will work on a research project to test the impact of social skills (assertion) training in the psychosocial environment of older and younger persons with severe physical disabilities. Responsibilities include development of assessment packages, validation of training materials, recruitment of participants and trainers, and liaison with agencies serving persons with disabilities, and scoring assessment results. Bachelor's degree in a behavioral science area is required, Master's degree preferred. A minimum of one year related experience, including counseling, psychology, and/or training experience on psychological assessment, test construction and basic psychometrics required; experience in rehabilitation settings and in outreach/recruitment preferred.) Send resumes to Judy Piemme, Ross Hall, Room 613. No phone calls please.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part time, Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences. (Person will work on same type of project as above, responsibilities and requirements differ. Responsibilities include development of training packages, manual development, administration of assessment packages, training of trainers, monitoring training and data analysis. Bachelor's degree in a behavioral science or related area required, Master's degree preferred. A minimum of one year related experience required, including counseling, psychology and/or training experience and basic statistics; experience in social skills training and in work with persons with disabilities preferred.) Facility with SPSS, BMO and SAS computer packages. Send resumes to Judy Piemme, Ross Hall, Room 613. No phone calls please.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

November 19, 1984

GW Report

(384)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

DR. CHIKARA HIGASHI CALLS FOR FREE TRADE

"We have to ask the United States to be fully conscious of its global responsibilities and to restrict its protectionist measures to temporary measures," said Japanese Diet member, the Honorable Chikara Higashi in a speech in Lisner Auditorium on U.S.-Japanese trade relations on November 13.

Dr. Higashi is a George Washington University alumnus having received the degree of Doctor of Business Administration here in 1982, the same year he was the founding president of the Exploration Center for International Affairs in Tokyo. He was elected to the Japanese Diet in 1983. In introducing him, Provost William D. Johnson commented that U.S.-Japanese trade relations have never been more important and said the university is proud to claim Dr. Higashi as an alumnus.

"We want to maintain the freedom of free trade systems," Higashi said in a wide-ranging speech that touched on a number of subject areas. He described the initiatives undertaken by Japanese Prime Minister Nakasone in his travels and in reaching out to other nations. He said that, in January 1983, the prime minister came to the United States to confirm that Japan-U.S. relations are most important on both sides of the Pacific and that the two countries must make all possible efforts to keep peace in Asia, particularly in the North Pacific. "Japan and the U.S. are the two richest countries in terms of trade and capital," he pointed out. He emphasized the importance of China, which, although a communist country is not apparently so interested in friendship with the Soviet Union. Observing that only 15 years ago China was hostile and that now the U.S. and Japan are the closest friends of China, he said this indicates the importance of constant maintenance of relationships since today's enemies can be tomorrow's allies and vice versa.

Dr. Chikara Higashi

"One month ago, I was in Moscow on a conference between Japan and the Soviet Union," he told his listeners. He said the Soviets welcomed the members of the conference cordially. "The first day I was pretty impressed by the welcome speeches and the use of the words peace, wisdom and friendship. However I soon noted that these key words were repeated. Everybody brought them up."

Dr. Higashi said that through interviews with

(contiued on back)

THREE MUSICAL EVENTS —MONDAY, NOVEMBER 26—

The Department of Music is sponsoring three events on Monday, November 26.

A lecture-demonstration on early music, "The Renaissance Style of Improvisation and Ornamentation," will be given by Tina Chancey from noon to 1 pm in Room B-120 of the Academic Center. Ms. Chancey is a well-known performer, teacher and scholar in the area of performance practice on historic instruments and reproductions. Admission is free.

A faculty recital by George Steiner, violin, and Gail Delente, piano, is scheduled for 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. The artists will perform works of Boccherini, Brahms, Beethoven and Faure. Tickets, available at the door, are: $4 general admission; $2 GW alumni, faculty and staff; and $1 students and senior citizens.

The GWU Jazz Band will perform in George's, fifth floor cafe of the Marvin Center, at 9:15 pm. Admission is free.

INTERNATIONAL SERVICES TO BECOME INTERNATIONAL STUDENT SERVICES, JAN.1

Effective January 1, 1985, the International Services Office, currently under the direction of Dr. Patricia J. McMillen, will become International Student Services, according to an announcement by Dean of Students Gail Short Hanson. Dr. McMillen will transfer to Personnel Services to assume a new role as coordinator for international faculty, scholars and personnel.

During recent years, the university's international student population has grown to include approximately 2,600 students and the presence of international faculty and staff has increased as well, Dean Hanson observes. Last year, in an effort to enhance student services and programs, an advisor was added to the International Services staff. With the January 1 dedication of the office exclusively to student service, the objective of expanding support programs for GW's international student community will be further enhanced, the dean says.

Applications are being accepted for the positions of Director and Assistant Director of International Student Services through Monday, December 3. Send letters of application and credentials to Personnel Services-Employment, attn. Ms. R. Lubeley.

DISTINGUISHED LECTURERS NOVEMBER 28, 29 AND 30

The School of Government and Business Administration will present two international academicians in its Distinguished Lecturers Series for November. They are Raymond Vernon, Clarence Dillon Professor of International Affairs Emeritus, Harvard University; and Jean-Marie Choffray, professor of marketing and management science, Ecole Superieure des Sciences, Economiques et Commerciales, Paris.

The lecture schedule follows: Raymond Vernon, "Where Are Our Protectionist Policies Headed?" 6 to 8 pm, Room 310, Building C, Wednesday, November 28; Raymond Vernon, "Do Codes of Conduct for Multinationals Have a Future?" 10am to noon, Room 413, Marvin Center, Thursday, November 29; Jean-Marie Choffray, "Computer Assisted Creative Sessions for New Product Ideas," 4 to 6 pm, Room 405, Marvin Center, Thursday, November 29; Jean-Marie Choffray, "Pre-Launch Forecasting for New Industrial Products," 10 am to noon, Room 404, Marvin Center, Friday, November 30.

Admission to all the lectures is free.

IRANIAN SOPRANO TO APPEAR IN CONCERT

Pari Zanganeh, Iranian soprano, will appear in a recital of Persian folk songs on Friday, November 30, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. Critics have praised her "crystalline top notes ... and smooth pianissimos." Tickets will be available at the door and are $15 general admission, $10 for students. For further information, call Ext. 5705.

NAVY COMMISSIONING FOR GW NROTC

On Wednesday, November 21, at 11:30 am, The George Washington University NROTC Unit will be commissioned. A Navy commissioning ceremony marks the acceptance of a ship or unit to the forces of the United States Navy. Principal speakers will be President Lloyd H. Elliott and Vice Admiral William P. Lawrence, Chief of Naval Personnel. The ceremony will be held in the Dorothy Betts Marvin Theatre. All the members of the George Washington University community are invited.

NASA OFFICIAL TO DISCUSS COMMERCIAL USE OF SPACE

Jon Michael Smith, senior marketing development specialist with NASA, will speak on the "Commercial Use of Space" at an 8 am breakfast meeting of The George Washington University School of Government and Business Administration Alumni Association on Tuesday, December 4. The breakfast meeting will be held in the GW University Club. Tickets are $6 per person and the meeting is open to alumni and members of the university community. Reservations are suggested by November 30. For more information and reservations, call Ext. 4803

WOMEN'S STUDIES PROGRAM OPEN HOUSE

The Women's Studies Program will have an open house on Wednesday, November 28, to celebrate their new office space. All staff, students and faculty are invited to the celebration in Stuart Hall, Room 203. For more information, call Jennie McKnight, Ext 6942.

IT'S TIME TO VALIDATE UNIVERSITY ID'S FOR 1985

The blue or pink photo identification cards currently held by eligible GW faculty and staff will become invalid on January 1, 1985.

A schedule has been set up for the 1985 validation of these identification cards.

For the university, the location will be the Smith Center Main Ticket Office Lobby.

| Date | Time |
|---|---|
| Monday, Nov 26 | 9 am to 4 pm |
| Tuesday, Nov 27 | 7 am to 3:30 pm |
| Wednesday, Nov 28 | 9 am to 4 pm |
| Thursday, Nov 29 | 7 am to 4 pm |
| Friday, Nov 30 | 9 am to 4 pm. |

For the medical center, the location will be the Hospital Cafeteria.

| Date | Time |
|---|---|
| Monday, Dec 3 | 7 am to 4 pm |
| Tuesday, Dec 4 | 9 am to 5 pm |
| Wednesday, Dec 5 | 7 am to 4 pm |
| Thursday, Dec 6 | 9 am to 5 pm |
| Friday, Dec 7 | 7 am to 4 pm. |

Each individual must bring his or her current blue or pink university photo identification card to the designated location. There a staff member of the Department of Personnel Services will verify eligibility and affix a 1985 validation sticker to the blue or pink card.

At this time, the only part-time on-campus faculty for whom 1985 validation stickers will be issued are those who have been appointed through the 1985 spring semester. Others should wait until they receive a spring semester letter of appointment from the Vice President for Academic Affairs before requesting 1985 stickers.

If you have lost your current photo identification card, please contact the Records and Benefits Division of Personnel Services, Ext. 4480, for assistance.

The validation process will involve a large number of faculty and staff. Every effort will be made to ensure a smooth process. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

DR. CHIKARA HIGASHI

(continued from front)

high officials, he learned some of the things the Soviets particularly want. He said they want to develop their oil and natural gas resources and to find consumers of natural gas. He depicted the Soviets as very anxious to get Japanese technologists and to build factories for high technology products. He said they wish these factories to be controlled by machinery such as computers. Dr. Higashi stated that the Soviets feel that the Europeans are more flexible and smarter in getting around American regulations than Asians and that, in exchange for high-tech transfer, the Soviets would be willing to expose their own technology.

"President Reagan's emphasis on the Pacific Basin is particularly timely," Dr. Higashi commented. "It should remain a friendly, flexible association where individual countries can retain their independence. The Japanese government hopes for economic expansion within the region."

At the beginning of his remarks he commented on the Japanese whaling industry and said that it had existed for decades and "no matter what a minority the whalers are, still they are faced with the loss of the job they have had for 100 years." He said that the Japanese would prefer any decision to be based on scientific data and not on an emotional approach.

About trade, Dr. Higashi said, "The Japan trade policy has drastically changed from being very closed to one of the most open," adding that Japan has remarkably simplified import procedures. "We in Japan sincerely believe that the free trade system is the best in the long run," he declared. "The time is right that Japan and the U.S. should come to conference. We have to act together to secure world peace and economic security."

NROTC OPEN HOUSE--L to R, Mary F. Bayliss, executive associate, Office of Planning and Budgeting; Captain G.E. Fisher, USN, chairman/commanding officer, Naval Science Department; and Vice President for Student Affairs William P. Smith at the recent NROTC Open House in Samson Hall.

FELLOWSHIP OPPORTUNITIES - DEC.1 DEADLINES -

The application deadlines for these important fellowship programs are December 1, 1984.

The Robert S. McNamara Fellowships awarded by The World Bank are for full-time work at the post-graduate level in fields related to economic development and institution building.

The White House Fellowship Program, highly competitive and available to 13 to 19 persons, provides an opportunity to participate in and learn about the Federal Government.

Wellesley College offers the following fellowships for graduate study at institutions other than Wellesley. They are open to women graduates of any U.S. instituion: the Alice Freeman Palmer Fellowship is for study or research abroad or in the United States; the Mary McEwen Schimke Scholarship is a supplemental award for the purpose of giving relief from household and child care while pursuing graduate study; the M.A. Cartland Shackford Medical Fellowship is for the study of medicine with a view to general practice, not psychiatry; and the Harriet A. Shaw Fellowship is for study or research in music and allied arts, in the United States or abroad.

Further information is available from the Graduate Fellowship Information Center, Ext. 6217.

ALUMNI HERITAGE EXCURSION TO LANCASTER, PA

The Alumni Relations Office is sponsoring an excursion to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, Saturday, December 1. The schedule includes a stop at the Wilton Factory Outlet (which offers dinner, gift and cookware in Armetale metal), a tour of the Donegal Mills Plantation (an authentic restoration of American life in the 1700s), and a candlelight dinner at the Plantation Inn.

The tour bus will depart at 12:30 pm from the corner of 22nd and H streets and will return there after 10:30 pm. Complimentary parking will be available in the university garage.

The $38 fee includes bus transportation, guide, tours, dinner, taxes and gratuities. Reservations deadline is Wednesday, November 28. For more information, call Ext. 6435.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, four reviews: The Papers of George Washington, Colonial Series, W.W. Abbot, ed., vols. 12: Journal of American Studies 18 (April 1984), pp. 129-130; The Papers of Thomas Jefferson, Julian P. Boyd and Ruth E. Lester, eds., vol. 20: Journal of American Studies 18 (April 1984), pp. 154-155; America and the Patterns of Chivalry by John Fraser, Journal of American History 71 (June 1984), pp. 144-145; and Cincinnatus: "Gorgeous George" by Gary Wills in New York Review of Books, October 11, pp. 47-50.

NADINE NATOV, professor of Russian, an article: "L'image de l'Allemagne dans les oeuvres de Tourgueniev" in Cahiers Ivan Tourgueniev et Pauline Viardot, No. 7- "Tourgueniev et l'Europe," Paris, 1984. A second article: "The meaning of the image of the mask and masquerade in A. Blok's poetry" in the Proceedings of the Alexander Blok Symposium, Milano: Universita degli studi di Milano, 1984.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

WILLIAM C. ADAMS, associate professor of public administration, gave the keynote address for the public affairs lecture series at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy in New London, Connecticut, September 20. He also presented a paper on the power of media status conferral at the annual meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology in Toronto, in August.

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, participated as a panel member on "Career Training for Non-Profit Managers" at the annual conference of The Washington Council of Agencies at the Washington Convention Center, September 24.

WILLARD E. CALDWELL, professor of psychology, attended a 25-hour workshop in clinical neuro-psychology at the Marriott Hotel in Roslyn in July. The workshop was conducted by Dr. Ralph M. Reitan and his associates and included basic training in the administration and interpretation of the Halstead-Reitan batteries for adults and children. Dr. Reitan, one of the outstanding experts in clinical neuro-psychology, teaches at the University of Arizona.

EILEEN MORRIS GUENTHER, studio lecturer in organ in the Department of Music, presented a solo organ recital in the Methuen Memorial Music Hall, north of Boston, October 3. This is one of the few concert halls in the world built solely to house a pipe organ, and the organ itself was the first large concert pipe organ in the United States, dating from 1863. The recital series on the Methuen organ has been considered one of the most prestigious in the United States over the last 40 years. This October, Dr. Guenther is celebrating her tenth anniversary as host of "The Royal Instrument," a weekly program of organ music broadcast by WGMS-AM/FM. The program is one of a few such programs that exist on American Radio.

JAKE HUDSON, director of the Information Systems Specialist Program at CCEW, addressed the National Association of Legal Secretaries, District of Columbia Chapter this month. His topic was "The Computer Revolution."

THELMA HUNT, professor emeritus of psychology, was the recipient of the 1983 International Personnel Management Association's Warner W. Stockberger Achievement Award. The award was presented at the Association's Awards Luncheon on October 24 in Miami Beach. She was recognized as a "skilled innovator whose career has been devoted to the development of personnel psychology and public administration," according to the front-page article about her in the International Personnel Management Association journal, September 1984 issue.

EDITH KRAMER, adjunct associate professor of art therapy, had a collection of her paintings, collages and drawings on display at the Arts Club of Washington until November 8.

THELMA Z. LAVINE, Elton professor of philosophy, presented an explanatory introduction to the two-hour documentary film, Simone de Beauvoir (produced in France in 1982) before the film was shown on August 17 in Baird Auditorium of the Museum of Natural History.

NEIL TILKENS, associate professor of music, conducted a master class for the Montgomery Music Teachers Association at the Stone Ridge School, Bethesda, September 18. The Bach Concerto in G Minor was the featured musical work, being the required work for a concerto competition to take place in 1985, the year of the 300th birthday anniversary of J.S. Bach. Tilkens dealt with the performance practice of the 18th century as applied to the playing of harpsichord music on the modern piano.

JOHN MICHAEL VLACH, associate professor of American civilization and of anthropology, spoke on "Folk Arts and Crafts in the Black Community" in Nashville, Tennessee, September 30, in a program sponsored by Fisk University's Learning Library Program. He gave a lecture on October 1 at Western Kentucky University on "Southern Folk Art."

DAVID N. WIGTIL. visiting assistant professor in the Department of Classics, presented a paper, "The Translation of Acrostics in Religious Texts," at the Classical Association of the Atlantic States' annual meeting, September 28.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANTS, two positions, Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. (First position will involve the preparation of media for in vitro fertilization, processing semen, embryo culture and hybridoma technology. Bachelor's degree and one year's experience in tissue culture are the minimum requirements. Second position will entail protein purification, immunoaffinity chromatography, gel electrophoresis, Western blot procedure and fertility of mice and rabbits. Minimum qualifications: bachelor's degree with one year experience in immunologic/biochemical techniques and animal handling. Both positions are temporary but likely to contine indefinitely.) Contact Dr. Rajesh K. Naz, In vitro fertilization Lab, Room 454, Ross Hall, The George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 I Street, Washington, DC, 20037, 676-5086.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

December 3, 1984

GW Report

(385)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

GW NAVAL RESERVE OFFICERS TRAINING CORPS IS COMMISSIONED, NOVEMBER 21

"You have been carefully selected through an intense, competitive process of evaluating whole-person qualities," Vice Admiral William P. Lawrence, USN, chief of Naval Personnel, told the battalion of midshipmen at the commissioning of George Washington's Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps Unit on November 21 in the Marvin Theatre. The 73 midshipmen are students at George Washington, American, Catholic, Georgetown and Howard Universities, the University of the District of Columbia and the University of Maryland.

"We have selected you because you have demonstrated the potential to be effective leaders in a very complex and demanding profession," he continued. "You have demonstrated that you will be able to develop that intellectual foundation to be able to perform the broad, diversified duties that a naval officer has to perform during his or her career, . . . that you'll have the mental and physical stamina to fulfill the rigorous duties at sea, in war and peace, that you have the moral courage to do what is right regardless of the consequences, that you have that deep sense of patriotism and dedication to country that will enable you always to put the interests of the nation and the welfare and safety of your subordinates above all others," he said.

Admiral Lawrence began by saying that his remarks would be addressed to the midshipmen since he felt it was "their day." Referring to the proud tradition of strong leadership in the Navy and Marine Corps, he stated, "We've always attached a great importance to our officers having a broad range of qualities, what we refer to today as the whole-person concept." He said he felt this had been well articulated by Captain John Paul Jones whose words were, "It is by no means enough that an officer of the Navy be a capable mariner. He must be that, of course, but a great deal more. He should be a gentleman of liberal education, fine manners, punctilious courtesy and the nicest sense of personal honor." He pointed out that Captain Jones had failed to foresee that women would become an integral part of the Navy in the 20th century and that he should have said "a lady and gentleman" of those qualities.

"You are joining the Navy at a very exciting time," he told the midshipmen and commented that he had never seen the Navy in a higher state of peacetime readiness. "There's a morale and spirit that pervades the Navy today that's certainly a reflection of the resurgence of patriotism in our country in recent times," he observed. Admiral Lawrence said that in his more than 30 years of naval service he has had the opportunity to travel or serve in more than 50 nations of the world and in that time he has come to the conclusion that no nation in the world offers its citizens the freedoms and opportunity that we have in the United States. He remarked that he took pride in having a part in the commissioning ceremony and that he felt that participation by all the universities here in this area in the GW NROTC unit will set a good example for the entire country. Admiral Lawrence is a George Washington University alumnus having received the degree of Master of International Affairs in 1974 from the School of Public and International Affairs.

President Lloyd H. Elliott, in his remarks officially welcoming the unit to the university, shared his memory of his last participation in a similar ceremony during the last months of World War II at the decommissioning of the U.S. Naval Base at Mers- el- Kebir, Algeria, and commented, "nostalgia, therefore, accompanies my participation today."

(continued on back)

CAKE CUTTING--L to r, Vice Admiral William P. Lawrence, USN, chief of Naval Personnel; Captain Gordon E. Fisher, USN, chairman/ commanding officer, Naval Science Department/NROTC; Midshipman Shawn Mangum, battalion commander, GW NROTC; and President Lloyd H. Elliott are shown at the reception following the NROTC commissioning ceremony.

NORMA MAINE LOESER GIVEN DEAN OF THE YEAR AWARD

Dean Norma Maine Loeser, professor of business administration and dean of the School of Government and Business Administration, received the Dean of the Year Award at the annual meeting of the Academy of International Business in Cleveland, Ohio, October 18.

The award, the first of its kind, is given by the Fellows of the Academy of International Business whose membership of 35 includes leading academicians in the field of international business. Fellows are elected by their peers, the 1,500 members of the Academy of International Business.

The award is presented to the dean of an American business school who, in the estimation of the Fellows, has made the greatest contribution to the advancement of international business studies.

Dean Loeser was cited as having one of the most outstanding international business programs in the nation; for encouraging the development of internationally oriented courses in all degree programs; and for supporting the faculty in international research, travel, publication and attendance at professional meetings in the United States and abroad.

The SGBA doctoral program was given special recognition at the meeting. In a survey conducted by Dr. Robert J. Kuhne of University of North Carolina, the breadth, scope, and flexibility of the GW program were noted and the SGBA doctoral program in international business was specifically recognized.

POST OMBUDSMAN ZAGORIA OUTLINES HIS ROLE

Washington Post ombudsman Sam Zagoria described his role at the paper for those attending the recent joint luncheon meeting of the GW chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and the Phi Beta Kappa Association of the District of Columbia.

He said he does a daily critique of the paper, which is available to everyone there through their computers; writes a weekly column, which appears on the op-ed page; and listens to complaints and comments from all segments of the community which can run from 50 to 100 a week. The way the two-year position is set up, it is impossible for the ombudsman to succeed himself.

Zagoria commented that recent improvements he sees in the paper are shorter articles, clearer labelling of opinion, and more prompt and clearer corrections and clarifications. He said that of 517 news people, 127 are now assigned to metropolitan news coverage.

FIRST WEDNESDAY LECTURE

John K. Pleacher, 1983 Virginia Teacher of the Year, will be the speaker at the December 5 First Wednesday Lecture, sponsored by the Alumni Relations Office. He will speak on "What Good Teaching is About" at 8 pm in the Marvin Center, Room 410-415. A George Washington alumnus, he received a B.A. in Ed. in 1949. Admission is free but reservations are suggested. Call Ext. 6435.

Dinner will be available before the lecture, for both members and non-members of the GW University Club, beginning at 6:30 pm. Call Ext. 6610 for reservations.

1984 UNITED WAY CAMPAIGN IS NOW UNDER WAY AT GW

The 1984 GW United Way Campaign began November 26 and will continue through Monday, December 10.

"You are doing a very important service for this university. Thank you for being willing to take on this assignment," President Lloyd H. Elliott told a meeting of coordinators for the campaign. "I take a great deal of pride in the fact that GW has been in the forefront in recent years. This is something which speaks to the entire Washington area, which says to the higher education community of the country that GW indeed recognizes its corporate institutional citizenship."

Richard King, director of the United Way of the National Capital Area told the coordinators, "It's important to get new givers. Try to persuade those not giving to participate."

Co-chairmen of the campaign are James E. Clifford, director of Personnel Services, and Michael M. Barch, administrator, GWU Medical Center. Marlena Wilson of the United Way of the National Capital Area is serving as a loaned executive for the GW campaign.

GW GLEE CLUB CONCERT/ MESSIAH SING-ALONG IS THIS FRIDAY

The annual GW Glee Club Yuletide Concert and Messiah Sing-Along will be Friday, December 7, at 8 pm in the Marvin Theatre. Admission is free and members of the entire university community, including our Foggy Bottom neighbors, are invited.

GW STUDENT ARTISTS Faika Atallah of Tunisia, left, and Ade Wawo-Runtu of Indonesia are shown at the opening of the Dimock Gallery's Annual Student Show with Associate Professor of Ceramics Turker Ozdogan. Faika's stoneware works are "Shell I" and "Fish Box," left and right, foreground. Ade's stoneware "Turtle" is seen at the left rear of the display. The gallery's exhibition runs through Friday, December 7.

NROTC IS COMMISSIONED

(continued from front)

The 11:30 am ceremony was attended by a number of ranking naval officers and government officials, among them Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Manpower and Reserve Affairs) Chase Untermeyer. Music at the ceremony was provided by the United States Navy Band.

Captain Gordon E. Fisher, USN, Chairman/Commanding Officer, Naval Science Department/NROTC, came to his present post in May of this year, from the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

1984 VIRGINIA TAX EXEMPT STATUS EXPIRES 12/31/84

Virginia tax form VA-4a states, "I certify that I incurred no Virginia State income tax liability for taxable year __, and anticipate that I will incur no liability for Virginia State income tax for taxable year _____ ." Any exemption from withholding authorized by form VA-4a, which is currently on file in the University Payroll Office, will expire on December 31, 1984.

If you live in Virginia and this form will apply to your tax status for 1985, you may complete a new form beginning now. Forms VA-4a are available in the University Payroll Office, first floor, Rome Hall, as well as in the Records and Benefits Office of Personnel Services, Building GG.

Please note that this form is used mostly by students. It is not the standard form, used for claiming dependents, which remains in effect until changed by the employee.

NOTE: Federal Tax Exempt Status will expire 2/15/85; may be renewed after 1/1/85. Maryland Tax Exempt Status will expire 4/30/85; may be renewed after 4/1/85.

ART BY NON-ART FACULTY

Art works in all media done by members of the GW faculty and staff not associated with the Art Department will be on exhibition in the Colonnade Gallery of the Marvin Center from December 6 through January 31, 1985. Some of the works will be for sale. Hours of the gallery, on the third floor of Marvin Center, are 8 am to 11 pm daily.

There will be a reception in conjunction with the beginning of the show on Tuesday, December 11, from 4 to 6 pm.

NEWSNOTES

INTERVIEWS

WILLIAM C. ADAMS, associate professor of public administration, was interviewed about the media coverage of the 1984 campaign on a nationwide, hour-long program on C-SPAN, August 2; the Wall Street Journal, August 19; on "Panorama"/WTTG-TV on October 5; WKCR-AM in New York, August 14; Gannett New Service, July and August; Richmond Times-Dispatch, August 20; and Post-Newsweek TV News Service, October 8.

LEO P. RIBUFFO, associate professor of history, was interviewed by the Voice of America about the history of the presidency on October 3.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, gave the keynote address at the 30th anniversary conference of the Great Lakes American Studies Association (GLASA) on October 12 at Kent State University in Ohio. His theme was "The Great Evasion: Treatments of Class and Race by 19th Century American Writers."

DENNIS H. HOLMES, associate professor of education, delivered a paper, "Evaluating Organizational Change: Implementation Studies in the

(continued next column)

CONVERSATION--Richard Rodriguez, left, author of Hunger of Memory, an autobiographical memoir, talked with Linda Blair, a Ph.D. candidate in American literature, on a recent visit to the campus when he conducted a workshop and lectured under the sponsorship of the English Department and the Jenny McKean Moore Fund for Writers.

Corporate World" at the Evaluation Research Society's annual meeting in San Francisco, October 12. In August, Dr. Holmes developed a training program for the U.S. Department of Education project officers in program evaluation methods. The department published a training manual, Evaluation Techniques for Program Officers, also developed by Dr. Holmes.

CARL A. LINDEN, professor of international affairs and political science, Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies, was consultant for the seminar for "Democracy in the Contemporary World," September 11, at the Inter-American Defense College. On October 2, he gave a paper, "Ghosts in the Kremlin: The Search for Legitimacy" at the Fall Symposium on "The Soviet Succession in Historical Perspective," organized by the D.C. Chapter of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies, held at Georgetown University. October 12, he chaired a panel for the Southern Conference on Slavic Studies on "Succession in the Soviet Union" at the Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor or architectural history, has been elected to the Committee of One Hundred for the Federal City, which is a citizens group devoted to overseeing the planning and policy issues concerning the physical aspects of Washington, D.C. He gave a lecture, "San Francisco versus L.A.," for the School of Architecture, Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, September 25. He delivered three lectures for the Smithsonian's Resident Associate's Seminar on the history of American architecture at the National Museum of American History on October 1 and 2. He also spoke on the potential value of historic preservation for Silver Spring's commerical center at the Silver Spring Community Forum, October 15.

AKBAR MONTASER, associate professor of chemistry, organized and chaired four symposiums on "Advances in High Temperature Plasma and New Source Emission Spectroscopy" for the 1984 Meeting of the Federation of Analytical Chemistry and Spectroscopy Societies held in Philadelphia, September 16-21. At the conference, R. Van Hoven, a graduate student in chemistry who works with Dr. Montaser, and Dr. Montaser presented a paper entitled, "Reduction of Heat Losses in a Low-Gas-Flow Torch for ICP Atomic Emission Spectroscopy."

NADINE NATOV, professor of Russian, participated in the International Conference on the Russian Symbolist Poet Andrey Bely, September 14-16 in Bergamo, Italy. She also participated, at the invitation of the Italian Slavists, in the first international conference dedicated to the writer/playwright, Mikhail Bulgakov, held in Gargnano, Italy, September 17-23. She chaired a session and presented a paper entitled, "The Problem of Guilt in the Works of Mikhail Bulgakov."

MAIDA WITHERS, associate professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, participated on a panel on "The Social Role of the Critic" at a National Conference (Social Theory and Politics and the Arts), October 12-14 at the National Endowment for the Arts headquarters. The conference was sponsored by the University of Maryland.

AHMED K. NOOR, professor of engineering and applied science, gave a keynote talk entitled, "New Computing Systems and Their Impact on Structural Calculation," at the Army Symposium on Solid Mechanics, October 1-3, in Newport, Rhode Island.

RAYMOND L. PICKHOLTZ, professor of engineering and applied science, chaired the Symposium on Local Area Networks Technology sponsored by the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association and the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers, September 26. He also presented results of his own work on "Priority Channel Protocols." He has arranged for a related symposium to be held at GW in November under co-sponsorship with the General Services Administration.

HENRY M. STEINER, professor of engineering adminstration, attended the American Society of Civil Engineers' convention in San Francisco, October 1-5. He presented a paper entitled, "Quantifying Organizational Goals in Project Planning" with a co-author.

JEANNE SNODGRASS, professor and chair, Department of Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies, spoke on "Wellness and the Take Care of Yourself Program," October 9 at the Thomas House in Washington, D.C. She spoke to promote the concept of wellness and report on recent information available related to exercise, nutrition and general fitness as well as extend the visibility of the university's Take Care of Yourself Program.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, Department of Anatomy. (Individual must have knowledge of neuroanatomy, experience in microsurgery and the ability to use BIOQUANT and related computer programs. A bachelor's degree is required and a minimum of one year's relevant experience.) Send resumes to Dr. Ernest N. Albert, Ross Hall, Room 205, Ext. 3515/3750.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, part time 60%, Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Science. (Person will function as Training Coordinator in the Rehabilitation Research and Training Center. Individual will: coordiante training and research dissemination activities related to Rehabilitation and Training Research; assist with and coordinate seminars, conferences and workshops; conduct needs assessments; form and conduct program advisory committee meetings; prepare program agendas; develop materials necessary for course credits; develop, conduct and document program evaluations; develop and carry out a comprehensive research dissemination program including developing materials based on center research, creative marketing of materials to rehabilitation and health professionals, including journals, articles, video tapes and books. Must have abilities to organize, plan, accomplish and evaluate programs and products and have excellent writing and editing skills. Master's degree and a minimum of one year's directly related experience required.) Send resumes to Dr. Donald Dew, Rehabilitation Research and Training Center, George Washington University Medical Center, 2300 I Street, NW, Washington, D.C., 20037. No phone calls.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

December 10, 1984

GW Report

(386)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

HILLEL FOUNDATION UNVEILS PLANS FOR NEW BUILDING

HILLEL PLANS--L to R, Donald Wolpe, chairman of the fund raising committee of the GW Hillel Board of Governors; Sharon Eisenkraft, student president of GW Hillel; Carl Gewirz, president of the GW Hillel Board of Governors; Father Reginald G. Blaxton, special assistant for religious affairs to Mayor Marion Barry; and Rabbi Gerald Serotta, director of GW Hillel, are shown with the architectural model for the new center.

The B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation unveiled plans for a new Jewish Student Center to be built on the GW campus at a reception on Sunday, December 2, in Room 202 of the Gelman Library.

A model of the building was displayed at the event. The facility, to be constructed at 23rd and H Streets, NW, will reflect Jewish and Middle East themes and will be accented with Jerusalem stone.

Hillel Foundation Director Rabbi Gerald Serotta said, "The architectural concept of the new building is to provide a home away from home so necessary on every campus, but especially so in the urban setting of Washington."

President Lloyd H. Elliott, speaking of the plans, has said, "The Hillel Foundation has for many years made an important contribution to campus life at GW. This new home will relieve the crowding, allow expanded programs and continue the tradition from which we have all benefitted."

Hillel has provided Jewish student services at the university for more than 40 years. The new center is expected to be completed by the fall of 1985.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS SHOWS MAJOR GIFTS TO UNIVERSITY

Three major gifts to the university are on display in the Special Collections area of the Gelman Library.

The library's one millionth volume, a manuscript ledger of property owned by Samuel Blodget, a real estate speculator active in Washington during the 1790s and early 1800s, is shown in a separate presentation, titled "Mr. Blodget Goes to Washington." The ledger was presented to The George Washington University by Mr. Albert Small of Washington, D.C. Other materials relating to Samuel Blodget and the early development of the District of Columbia form part of this exhibit.

A second presentation, titled "A Chesapeake Product--Early History of Tobacco," features library volume number one million one, "A Defense of Tabacco," (London, 1602), attributed to Roger Marbecke. The book bears the signature of a famous former owner, John Evelyn, and is significant as the first defense of smoking in English. It was given to the university by B.H. Blackwell, Ltd. of Oxford, England. This exhibit is highlighted by a third major gift to the university, a rare 18th century French snuff box, presented by Mrs.Walter A. Bloedorn.

Special Collections is located in Room 207 of the Gelman Library and is open to the public from 8:30 am to 5 pm Monday through Friday.

GAA OFFERS OFFICIAL UNIVERSITY WATCH

The GW General Alumni Association has appointed the Seiko Time Corporation to create a limited issue of an official George Washington University watch.

The watch is being made available exclusively to alumni and to parents of currently enrolled students. A detailed three dimensional re-creation of the university seal appears on the 14kt. gold-finished dial of each watch. The timepiece has the precision electronic Seiko Quartz movement that never needs winding and carries the corporations's full one-year limited warranty. There are three styles: ladies' wrist watch; men's wrist watch; and pocket watch. The wrist watches are $180 each and the pocket watch is $195.

Further information and order forms are available from the Alumni Relations Office, Alumni House, 714 21st Street, NW.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION OBSERVES 30TH BIRTHDAY

GW's Public Administration Department held its 30th anniversary celebration on November 30 at the Washington Marriott. The reception, featuring a special tribute to founding faculty member, David S. Brown, professor of management, drew a crowd of 400 faculty, staff, students and alumni.

Speakers included Norma Maine Loeser, professor of business administration and Dean of the School of Government and Business Administration; Astrid Merget, associate professor of public administration and chairman of the Public Administration Department; and Stephen R. Chitwood, professor of public administration.

Several program graduates gently roasted Professor Brown about his Maine "Down-easter" background, his prolific publishing and his story telling. The former students expressed appreciation for the concern and interest he showed for them during their years in the program. This group of speakers included the Honorable Gilbert Gude, director of the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress; Harry W. West, deputy comptroller of the United States Army; J.D. Brown, a consultant; very recent graduates Virginia Levin (D.P.A 1983) and John Butts (M.P.A. 1984); and Captain Frank Caldwell, USN. Professor Brown's most recent interest has been the development of the master's program in association management.

DANCE PROGRAM SPONSORS SATURDAY CENTER FOR CHILDREN'S DANCE

The Saturday Center for Children's Dance, sponsored by the GW Dance Program, is offering a new program of dance classes for children. The intent is to stimulate the children's creative potential through the language of dance.

Three classes will be offered. For ages 5 and 6, "Creative Ballet," between 9:30 and 10:30 am is designed to meet the needs of the child to explore movement and rhythm in a creative environment. For ages 6 and 7, "Introduction to Ballet," between 10:45 and 11:45 am, will introduce the child to the fundamental movements of ballet. For ages 7 and a half to 9, "Ballet I," from noon to 1 pm, will give the child professional training in the techniques of ballet.

All classes will be taught by Kathy Robens-Siegel with Teddy Klaus providing rhythmical accompaniment on piano and percussion instruments. Ms. Robens-Siegel, who received her M.A. in Dance Education from Columbia University, has taught in children's programs developed by noted specialists Elizabeth Waters and Susan Schickele and was selected an Artist-in-Education in Ohio from 1982 to 1984. She is currently actively involved in creating dance works here in Washington.

Klaus is music director of Primary Movers, a Washington children's modern dance company and library theatre. He has performed throughout the D.C. area schools with Dancers of the Third Age and Liz Lerman. In the summer of 1984, he collaborated with Liz Lerman in performances for children at the Theater in the Woods, Wolf Trap Farm Park Center for the Performing Arts. He has composed numerous works of music for dance.

Children will be admitted to the program through audition. For more information, call Nancy Johnson at Ext. 6629.

MARVA A. GUMBS IS CAREER SERVICES ASSISTANT DIRECTOR

Marva A. Gumbs has been appointed assistant director of the Career Services Center. Her responsibilities include serving as liaison to the School of Government and Business Administration. She joined the center on November 26.

She previously worked as a vocational counselor for the Psychiatric Institute of Washington, D.C., and before that she was associated with The George Washington University Residence Life Program. She holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from Rutgers University and a master's of rehabilitation counseling degree from George Washington.

DIMOCK GALLERY TO SHOW CHARLES POLLOCK'S WORKS

Recent paintings by Charles Pollock will be on exhibition in the Dimock Gallery from December 13 through January 11.

Pollock, who has had a long career in America as an artist and a teacher, is now living and working in Paris. Like some painters of the Washington Color School, he uses color in pure, chromatic configurations. There is a tendency in his work towards tall, vertical formats. Pollock preceded his younger brother, Jackson Pollock, to New York and studied with Thomas Hart Benton. His work is represented in such major collections as that of the National Museum of American Art. A traveling exhibition of Pollock's works was sponsored in England by the Arts Council of Great Britain. There has been a recent showing of his works in New York, some of which will be included in the Dimock Gallery's exhibition.

The exhibition is sponsored by the Dimcok Gallery/Art Department. Gallery hours are 10 am to 5 pm weekdays.

FACULTY WOMEN'S CLUB SUPPORTS GWU THEATRE

The Faculty Women's Club of The George Washington University attended the Master's Acting Company in Concert production by the GW University Theatre on November 9 and, following the performance, made a $75 donation to the University Theatre. Alan G. Wade, associate professor and chairman of the Department of Communication and Theatre, accepted the check.

--PHYSICAL PLANT NOTE--

The Physical Plant Department (PPD) informs us that over the next few months there will be a program of replacing old, yellowed lenses in the florescent lighting fixtures in the classrooms and public areas of Monroe Hall and the Hall of Government with new tubes. This will be done in the early mornings and on weekends. PPD people will also be putting new fixtures in Classroom B104 of the Hall of Government. These fixtures will be equipped with energy saving electronic ballasts and spectacular silver reflectors according to PPD Director Robert F.Burch.

PPD people will make every effort to be unobtrusive and to leave areas neat. However, thousands of tubes will be handled during this time. If things trouble you, please call Mr. Wynkoop, building manager, at Ext. 6906, and give him the facts so he can set things right.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

PUBLIC SERVICES LIBRARIAN, Law Library. (Duties will include managing interlibrary loans and performing reference services. M.L.S. required with ability to communicate and work effectively with students and faculty; experience with computer databases desirable. Position may require evening and weekend hours.) Contact Anita K. Head, The George Washington University Law Library, Washington, DC, 20052.

COLLECTION DEVELOMENT LIBARIAN, Law Libary, available April 1, 1985. (Individual will be responsible for collection development and acquisitions functions of the library, assisting with selection of new materials, dealing with prospective donors, and supervising two or more support personnel. M.L.S. and experience with collection development in an academic setting required; experience with legal publishers and knowledge of legal bibliography preferred.) Contact Anita K. Head, The George Washington University Law Library, Washington, DC, 20052.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.

NEWSNOTES

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

WILLIAM C. ADAMS, associate professor of public administration, has accepted an invitation from the Chancellor of Vanderbilt University to serve on the Board of Visitors of the Vanderbilt Television News Archive.

MUSICAL EVENING--Eileen Morris Guenther, studio instructor in organ and piano, explains a point to some of the alumni who attended November's First Wednesday Lecture, an evening in the Department of Music. She was one of a number of faculty members giving musical demonstrations.

EDWARD D. BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, delivered the keynote address to a meeting sponsored by the National Association of Protection Advocacy Systems in Dallas, Texas on September 30. On October 19 in New Orleans, he delivered a paper on "Overarching Lessons of Disability Policy" at a session of the Sixth Annual Research Conference of the Association for Public Policy Analysis and Management. He was selected by the National Rehabilitation Association as a Mary Switzer Scholar and asked to participate in the Ninth Switzer Memorial Seminar, held in New York City, November 28-30. He also has signed a contract with the Department of Education to take part in a study of cost-benefit analysis in vocational rehabilitation.

CHARLENE BICKFORD, director of the First Federal Congress Project, has been voted president-elect of the Association for Documentary Editing (ADE), a national professional organization. She will chair the ADE's 1985 program committee.

JAMES M. BROWN, professor of law, delivered a talk on "The Value of Simulation in Resolving Land Use Controversies" in Tallahassee, Florida, October 10. The meeting was sponsored by the Lincoln Institute of Land Policy and the Joint Center for Environmental and Urban Problems of the Florida Atlantic University/Florida International University.

WILLARD E. CALDWELL, professor of psychology, recently accepted an invitation to become a charter member of The American Registry of Licensed Psychologists and Mental Health Providers. One of the purposes of the organization is to provide an up-to-date registry and make it available to hospitals, clinics and professionals throughout the nation. It also provides diplomate status to eligible members.

PETER CAWS, university professor, gave two lectures in October. The first, "Moral Certainty in Tolstoy," at the City University of New York's colloquium on philosophy and literature, and the second, "Realist Discourse: Putting Nature in Our Own Words," at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro.

JONATHAN CHAVES, associate professor of Chinese, gave a paper, "Moral Action in the Poetry of Wu Chia-chi (1618-84)," at the Mid-Atlantic Region AAS Meeting, Princeton University, November 10. He also served as consultant on one of the meeting's panels, "Politics and Poetry: the Theme of Martyrdom in Chinese Literature."

MORRIS S. CLARK, associate director of marketing, Division of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, spoke before the Washington, D.C chapter of the American Society for Industrial Security on October 10 and the National Classification Management Society, October 30. At both, he discussed the security management and the development of GW's newest, off-campus master's program in security management.

JOSEPH J. CORDES, associate professor of economics, ROBERT S. GOLDFARB, professor of economics, were the presenters and ROBERT RYCROFT, associate professor of public affairs and political science, WILLIAM GRIFFITH, professor of philosophy, and Warren Schwartz from Georgetown University were the discussants at the session "Compensation for Losses Caused by Changes in Government Policy," sponsored by the Program in Public Policy of the Graduate School, October 19.

AMITAI ETZIONI, university professor, served as chairman and moderator of the 8th Annual Meeting of the Committee on Developing American Capitalism (CODAC), October 18. October 19, he delivered the Jane Globus Distinguished Lecture at Baruch College, New York. He has also been invited to serve on the editorial board of the forthcoming Journal of the American Association of University Administrators. The journal is tentatively scheduled to begin publication in Fall 1985.

JONATHAN D. FIFE, professor of education, made a presentation on the use of information resources concerning higher education at the National Conference on "Higher Education and the Citizenry: Reciprocal Responsibilities," sponsored by the Association for General and Liberal Studies and the Association for Inegrative Studies in San Francisco, October 27.

DONALD GROSS, professor of operations research, was invited to give a talk to a graduate operations research seminar at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, October 19. He spoke on "Some Common Interests Among Reliability, Inventory, and Queuing."

WALTER HAHN, futurist in residence, has been appointed by the Council of State Planning Agencies (CSPA) as Chairman of the National Scanning Board of the State Scanning Network. The network is a CSPA program designed to help governors, their policy staffs and other state policy makers identify and understand emerging conditions and their implications for a state government's roles and responsibilities.

THELMA HUNT, professor emeritus of psychology, and Clyde J. Lindley, conducted roundtable discussions respectively on "Organizational Climate and Productivity" and "Techniques for Training Oral Examination Members" at the annual conference of the International Personnel Management Association in Miami, Florida, in October.

CYNTHIA C. JONES and ROBERT R. ENGLE, associate directors of marketing, Division of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions, participated in the Montgomery County Executive's Consensus for the Commission in Higher Education in Science Technology, October 10. Jones and SUSAN M. HART, director of marketing and administrative services, attended the Maryland Teachers Association Conference in Ocean City, Maryland, October 19 and 20.

KATHLEEN ANNE JORDAN, assistant director for Residence Life, was awarded the "Advisor of the Year" award for the North Atlantic Association of College and University Residence Halls. The award was announced at the National Conference at Pennsylvania State University and given November 10 at Kent State University. GW was awarded three University Program of the Month awards and the National Communications Coordinator, ANITA RUSSELL, from Munson Hall, received a silver pin award for excellence in college student programming at the regional (North Atlantic) level.

ANDREA W. STEWART, director of the Graduate Fellowship Information Center in the Gelman Library, served as On-Site Coordinator of the MBA Forum, held at the Washington Marriott, September 28-29. The MBA Forum is administered by the Graduate Management Admission Council and is held in four major metropolitan areas in the United States each year. There were over 78 business/management graduate schools in attendance, including GW's School of Government and Business Administration and over 1200 people attended.

(continued)

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, addressed the World Association of World Federalists in New York City on November 7. His topic was "Antarctica and 'The Common Heritage of Mankind' in Light of International Law."

FRANK KAVANAUGH, Airlie Professor of Communications and executive producer of GW television, was guest lecturer for two classes, Script Writing and Television Production, at Mary Baldwin College on November 12.

JAMES C. KING, professor of German, chaired the section on "German Literature to 1700" at the annual meeting of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association in Atlanta on November 8.

GEORGE M. KOEHL, professor emeritus of physics, was invited to give an address at the American Association of Physics Teachers' regional fall meeting held in Baltimore on November 3. His topic was "Waves-Demonstrations."

HAROLD LIEBOWITZ, professor of engineering and applied science, has been appointed to the International Scientific and Editorial Board of an International Guide Book on Structural Analysis Software to be published by Pergamon Press under the editorship of Dr. A. Niku Lari of CETIM, France. It is planned that the guide book will be published once a year and will provide the engineer with the most up-to-date information on the structural analysis systems existing in the world.

RICHARD LONGSTRETH, associate professor of architectural history, presented a paper entitled "The Uneasy Relationship Between Old and New Architecture" at the 38th Annual Preservation Conference, sponsored by the National Trust for Historic Preservation in Baltimore, October 24-27. At the conference, he also served on a panel discussing the role of preservation in design; he chaired the Society of Architectural Historians' affinity group session on "The Role of the Architectural Historian in the State Preservation Office;" and served on the first annual Design Charrette awards jury. At the annual board meeting of the National Council for Preservation Education, held in conjunction with the conference, he was appointed to the Programs Committee.

CLARA M. LOVETT, professor of history, is serving on the Marraro Prize Committee of the American Historical Association and has been nominated for a position on the association's Committee on the Profession. On October 11 and 12, she served as one of seven consultants who are reviewing, under the auspices of the Research Division of TIAA/CREF, a comprehensive study of the American professoriate by Howard Bowen of the Claremont Graduate School. She is also serving as consultant on a faculty internships project to the Washington Center for Experiential Learning and to the Research Division of the American Council on Education.

CONNIE K. McCARTHY, assistant university librarian for collections, and SHARON ROGERS, university librarian, spoke on "The Politics of Collection Management" at the Mid-Atlantic Regional Library Federation meeting in Baltimore, October 23.

DORN C. McGRATH, professor of urban and regional planning, addressed the Capitol Hill Restoration Society on the current status of the Comprehensive Plan for the District of Columbia, October 8.

CHRISTINE MELONI, adjunct instructor in English, attended the 7th annual meeting of the Fulbright Alumni Association held in the Marvin Center on October 12. She is the secretary-treasurer of the local chapter of the Fulbright Alumni Association and was responsible for the arrangements to have the meeting at GW. She presented a paper entitled "Understanding Arab Students in U.S. Colleges and Universities" at the fifth annual convention of the Washington Area Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages held at Northern Virginia Community College in Alexandria, Virginia, October 13. She is the immediate past president of the organization.

LEONARD NADLER, professor of education, was listed as sixth among the top ten people whom readers of the magazine Training: The Magazine of Human Resource Development listed in response to the statement, "You will be allowed to take (to the moon) the phone numbers of three experts in the training of human resources development field whom you can call via satellite relay for consultation and advice."

S.H. NASR, university professor, participated in an all-day conference on the relations between Christianity and Islam at the Divinity School of Harvard University, October 16. The whole program will be broadcast on the educational station, WGBH. October 17-19, he participated in a conference held at Temple University under the title of "Towards the Universal Theology of Religion." The text of the conference will appear in book form.

PHYLLIS M. PALMER, assistant professor of women's studies and American civilization, presented a paper on "Eleanor Roosevelt and the National Youth Administration" in a panel on Eleanor Roosevelt and Social Policy as part of the Eleanor Roosevelt Centennial Symposium sponsored by the National Museum of American History, October 20.

E. LAKIN PHILLIPS, director of the Counseling Center, presented a paper, "Improving Psychotherapy Service Delivery Through the Study of Attrition" at the conference of Association of University and College Counseling Center Directors in New Orleans, October 20-22.

LEO B. RIBUFFO, associate professor of history, delivered a lecture, "Nativism, Anti-Semitism, and the Far Right in International Perspective" at the annual fall conference of the Weekend College, Wayne State University in Detroit.

HONEY NASHMAN, assistant professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, gave a lecture on "Stress and Burnout" and participated in The Executive Stress Management Seminar, a workshop presented by Psychological Consultants International, November 2.

RICHARD H. SCHLAGEL, professor of philosophy, was the moderator and commentator on a paper entitled "Behavioral Limits of Meaning," presented by Professor W.V. Quine, professor emeritus of philosophy at Harvard University, at the November 10 meeting of The Washington Philosophy Club.

NOZER D. SIGPURALLA, professor of operations research and of statistics, was selected as the recipient of the 1984 Wilks Award for Contributions to Statistical Methodologies in Army Research, Development and Testing. The award was bestowed by the Army Mathematics Steering Committee and presented at the Thirtieth Conference on the Design of Experiments in Army Research, Development and Testing, held at New Mexico State University, October 17-19.

JEANNE SNODGRASS, professor of human kinetics and leisure studies, presented a seminar, "Pre-retirement Planning," November 5, at an Alpha Delta Kappa (international women's honorary group) meeting. She presented a session, "Fit for Life" for the School of Education and Human Development Alumni Association's New Directions IX Conference, November 3. She also presented a session, "Food, Fitness and Fun" for the D.C. Therapeutic Recreation Branch of the D.C Recreation and Park Society, November 8.

JOHN MICHAEL VLACH, associate professor of American studies and anthropology, recently attended the national meetings of the American Folklore Society in San Diego where he chaired a session on folk art and presented a paper entitled "Plain Paintings: The Folkness of Easel Painting." He presented a paper, "Afro-American Architecture and the Landscape of Slavery" at the meetings of the Virginia Folklore Society held in Charlottesville, November 3.

RUTH A. WALLACE, professor of sociology, served as a discussant at a session on "Studies in Religion and Ethics" at the annual meeting of the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion held in Chicago, October 26-28.

INTERVIEWS

MARCUS CUNLIFFE, university professor, was interviewed on the history of the presidency for Night Watch, CBS, on election day, November 6.

CHRISTOPHER C. JOYNER, assistant professor of political science, was interviewed on November 8 by Science '84 Magazine regarding the legal implications of establishing an international regime for overseeing scientific activities on the moon. He was also interviewed on October 17 by KUTV on "The Threat of Terrorism in Washington, D.C. and the Reagan Administration's Response." The interview was broadcast in the Salt Lake City and Denver areas.

LEO B. RIBUFFO, associate professor of history, on November 7, was interviewed on the television program "A.M. Canada" about the results of the presidential election.

PUBLICATIONS

EDWARD D. BERKOWITZ, associate professor of history, two essays, "History, Public Policy, and Reality" in Journal of Social History, Fall 1984 and "Undermining Indifference" in Federation Reports, Vol. 7, No. 4. The second essay is on the colloquium on the humanities and public life held last spring at the university.

PETER CAWS, university professor, an article, "Flaubert's Laughter" in Philosophy and Literature, October 1984.

AMITAI ETZIONI, univeristy professor, an article, "The Democrats Need a Unifying Theme" in The New York Times, October 5.

M.M. GUPTA, associate professor of mathematics, three articles: "A Single Cell High Order Difference Scheme for the Convection Diffusion Equation with Variable Coefficients," co-authored with R. Manohar and J.W. Stephenson, International Journal of Numerical Methods in Fluids, Vol. 4, 1984, pp. 641-651; "A Fourth-Order Poisson Solver," Journal of Computational Physics, Vol. 55, 1984, pp. 166-172; and "Single Cell High Order Difference Schemes for Viscous Flows," Advances in Computer Methods for Partial Differential Equations - 5, R. Vichnevetsky and R.S. Stepleman, eds., IMACS, New Brunswick, N.J., pp. 114-118.

KATHLEEN A. JORDAN, assistant director for residence life, an article, "Performing Arts in Residence: Project PAIR," in the Journal of College Student Personnel, Vol. 25, No. 6, November 1984.

ALI M. KIPER, professor of engineering, an article, "Impinging Water Jet Cooling of Very Large Scale Integrated (VLSI) Circuits," in the International Communications in Heat and Mass Transfer, Vol. 11, No. 6, November-December 1984, pp. 517-526.

CLARA M. LOVETT, professor of history, a book, Contemporary Italy: A Selective Bibliography, now in press at the Library of Congress and, with the Task Force on Professional Growth of the American Association of Higher Education, an article, "Vitality without Mobility: The Faculty Opportunities Audit," in Current Issues in Higher Education, No. 4, 1983-84.

PHYLLIS M. PALMER, assistant professor of women's studies and American civilization, a chapter, "Housework and Domestic Labor: Racial and Technological Change," in My Troubles Are Going with Me. Everyday Trials and Triumphs of Women Workers, Karen Brodkin Sacks and Dorothy Remy, eds., Rutgers University Press, 1984.

LEO B. RIBUFFO, associate professor of history, an essay review, "Viewing the Fifties from the Eighties," in Reviews in American History, September 1984.

December 17, 1984

GW Report

(387)

for the George Washington University community
Office of News & Public Affairs

Jane Lingo, editor (202) 676-6460
Anne N. Suydam, assistant editor

GW WELL REPRESENTED AT MAYOR'S IMPROVEMENT AWARDS CEREMONY

For the second year in succession, the university has received recognition in the form of an institutional award from the city for the beauty and general appearance of our grounds.

At the 1984 Environmental Improvement Awards Ceremony on December 5 at the University of the District of Columbia, Physical Plant Director Robert F. Burch and Grounds Supervisor Louis L. Smith accepted the award for the university. The certificate of commendation reads, "Presented to The George Washington University in recognition of exemplary interest and involvement in environmental improvement/ neighborhood beautification."

Speaking at the ceremony, Mayor Barry said he looks forward to the time when the District of Columbia will be considered the most beautiful city in the world. Both he and Councilman John A. Wilson expressed appreciation to those receiving awards and emphasized their pride in the citizens who are working to clean up and beautify the city.

An individual special merit award went to GW Professor of Mathematics Hewitt Kenyon for his continuing efforts in cleaning up and maintaining the bicycle path along the Rock Creek Parkway which is used steadily by cyclists.

Mrs. David S. Brown, wife of Professor of Management D.S. Brown, also received a special merit award for her work towards increasing the beauty of the Georgetown area.

The 7-Eleven Store at New Hampshire Avenue and I Street, NW, which borders on the university, received an award in the commercial category. Co-owner Sue Burkey, known to many members of the University Community, accepted the award.

University neighbor Mary E. Healy is serving as chairman of Mayor Barry's Citizens' Advisory Committee for Neighborhood Beautification and presided at the awards ceremony. The committee made the nominations for the approximately 300 awards, which were given in the categories of residential, commercial, institutional and special merit.

HOSPITAL WOMEN'S BOARD GIVES FIRST VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR AWARD

The first recipient of the Volunteer of the Year Award, to be given annually by the GW Hospital Women's board, is Mrs. S. Laszlo Sommer (Monta). The award was presented in a ceremony at the hospital on December 5.

Mrs. Sommer joined the Women's Board in 1947 when the hospital opened at its present location and has given continuous service ever since on the book cart, the shopping cart and in the Gift Shop, maintained by the board, in the ground floor lobby of the hospital.

Letters of congratulation to Mrs. Sommer from President Reagan and President Lloyd H. Elliott were read at the ceremony. President Reagan said that he appreciates the work of volunteers and wanted to send his thanks for all that the board does. President Elliott's letter said, in part, "The fact that you are a George Washington graduate, as well as your husband and your two sons, and that your father, Dean William C. Ruediger, served the University as Dean of the then Teachers College gives a special meaning and relevance to your receiving this award."

Mrs. Sommer received a Bachelor of Arts in Library Science in 1934 and her husband, an Associate in Science in 1930. One son, Peter R. Sommer, received a Bachelor of Arts in 1962 from Columbian College and is now associated with the National Security Council.

His undergraduate studies centered on history and political science. Another son, Michael S. Sommer, is remembered as a GW football star and holds two degrees from GW, a Bachelor of Arts (1959) with a major in psychology and an M.D. (1970).

VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR Monta Sommer, left, is shown with (l to r) son Michael, her husband S. Laszlo Sommer, and son Peter after receiving the Hospital Women's Board award.

SYMPOSIUM ON ELECTION FEATURES HELEN THOMAS, ROGER MUDD AND DAVID BRODER WITH GW EXPERTS

ROGER MUDD of NBC News, right, talked with GW students Amy Schreiber, Maribeth Bowlds and Steve Kaufman following his appearance on the Election '84 panel.

"Election '84 - Aftermath and Prologue" was the discussion topic at the Stephen Holly Bronz Memorial Symposium on the nomination and electing of U.S. presidents and the role of the media in this process held recently here at the university.

Sponsored by the Journalism Department and the Committee on the Political Communications Interdisciplinary Major Program, the 1 to 4 pm symposium consisted of a panel discussion followed by an address.

Moderating the panel was James Deakin, GW adjunct associate professor of journalism, former White House correspondent for the St. Louis-Post Dispatch and author of a recent book, "Straight Stuff." Panel members were Roger Mudd, chief poliitcal correspondent, NBC News; Michael J. Robinson, GW visiting associate professor of political science and of political communications, author of the book "Over the Wire and On TV;" and Helen Thomas, chief White House correspondent, United Press International. The address at the symposium was given by David Broder, associate editor, columnist and chief political correspondent, the Washington Post.

Deakin opened the panel discussion on a note of levity remarking, "Ronald Reagan has won the election hands down and Walter Mondale has been elected president of Minnesota." He asked the panelists to state what one factor above all else they felt had contributed to the landslide election of President Reagan. Helen Thomas named the economy and the Reagan personality. Robinson's answer was the economic recovery and the Reagan personality plus Reagan policies. Mudd said, "On the one hand you have a president who's well liked and puts money in voters' pockets opposed by a man on the other hand who is not so well liked and who promised to raise taxes." Moderator Deakin added that he felt that Reagan had captured the middle class.

The wide-ranging discussion drew a large, attentive and courteous audience, full of intelligent questioners.

Helen Thomas seemed particularly concerned because she feels that Reagan is such an inaccessible president. She said, "If you think he was inaccessible in his first term, you ain't seen nothin' yet." Deakin added that Reagan equals former President Richard Nixon in holding the least frequent press conferences. Pointing out that President Reagan had no formal press conferences from July 24 to November 4, Helen Thomas stated, "A nation ignorant and free is no democracy." Referring to studies on the correlation between unemployment amd Reagan's popularity by GW Associate Professor of Public Administration William Adams, Michael Robinson quoted a remark by Richard Scammon: "There's nothing wrong with the Democratic Party that a 12 percent inflation rate wouldn't cure." Robinson noted that after 24 months in office, Reagan had the lowest favorable rating in the polls of any recent president and attributed this to the high unemployment figures at that time.

David Broder, in his address said, "Presidential campaigns are pretty much the property of the candidates.

(continued on back)

---SAFETY AND SECURITY REMINDER---

Members of the University Community are reminded to be even more careful than usual about personal belongings of value during this period. A number of incidents of theft have been reported, and everyone is urged to keep valuables secure in offices and around the campus.

COLUMBIAN WOMEN--Dean Clara Lovett of Columbian College, left, talked with Columbian Women scholarship holder Minnie Harmon at a recent reception. Ms. Harmon, formerly secretary to Dean Henry Solomon of GSAS, is now a Columbian College junior majoring in English literature. The Columbian Women, founded in 1894, are now assisting 18 GW women students with scholarship aid.

SYMPOSIUM ON ELECTION

(continued from front)

During a campaign the subject at hand is what those running are doing instead of case studies of the administration. ...Reagan ran different campaigns in 1980 and in 1984 ... Nobody this afternoon is very sure what the president is going to do," Broder declared.

The symposium was made possible by an endowment by his family in memory of Stephen Holly Bronz, son of George Bronz, Esq., and Dr. Pearl Holly Bronz, both of Washington, DC. Stephen H. Bronz, a graduate of Western High School and Oberlin College, held a master's degree in history from Columbia University and was a Ph.D. candidate there. He and photographer Martin Weaver were killed in 1971 in a car crash in Taos, New Mexico, while they were working on a book on the modern American cowboy. The author of "Roots of Negro Racial Consciousness," he was senior editor of "The Challenge of America" and co-author of the history text of "The Towns of America."

PHYSICAL PLANT ILLUMINES CAMPUS FOR THE HOLIDAYS

The Physical Plant Department is brightening the GW campus with outdoor illumination in a number of locations. Two pairs of evergreen trees at opposite ends of I Street Mall wear winking white lights. On the other side of 23rd Street, colored lights have been strung in the trees in front of Milton Hall. The brick-paved courtyard of the Academic Center is lighted by small white lights in all the slender trees and a symmetrical metal tree form, entwined with red tinsel and holiday lights, has been erected on the campus-side terrace of Lisner Hall. Two tall trees at the left of the entrance to Lisner Auditorium are light-entwined. There are lighted trees in the courtyard leading into Ross Hall, in front of Rice Hall, beside Woodhull House and on the 21st Street side of the Marvin Center. Garlands decorate Rice and Monroe Halls. The illumination will be with us until early January.

GW MAIL SERVICE MOVES

The University Mail Service has been relocated to 2025 F Street, NW, on the lower level of the new university support building as of this past Friday, December 14.

Mail Service Manager Agnes M. Harrison points out that this location will place the operation somewhat away from the central part of the campus and will therefore necessitate revamping some of the delivery routes. "However," she says, "we do not expect any interruption of service to the University Community."

Manager Harrison says that if your office experiences late delivery of mail during this transition period, your indulgence is requested. She adds, "It is anticipated that this will only be a temporary situation while we adjust to changes in delivery schedules and routes."

FELLOWSHIP APPLICATION DEADLINES - JANUARY 15

Tuesday, January 15, is the deadline for applying for the following grants and fellowships: postdoctoral grants to women enrolled or planning to enroll in a Ph.D. program in science, offered by the Association for Women in Science; 1985-86 IBM Postdoctoral and Junior Faculty Research Fellowships in Mathematical Sciences; and Rockefeller Fellowships for Minority-Group Scholars for policy-oriented social science and humanistic research on problems in education, employment, housing and civil rights. Further information is available from the Graduate Fellowship Information Center, Gelman Library 621D, Ext. 6217.

NEWSNOTES

PUBLICATIONS

DAVID S. BROWN, professor of management, a chapter, "William Ashby Jump: Pioneer in Professional Public Administration," in Federal Public Policy: Personal Accounts of Ten Senior Civil Service Executives, T.W. Taylor, ed., Lomond Publications, Mt. Airy, MD, 1984, pp. 169-194 and a review in R&D Digest (November 1984, pp. 8-9), "A Plea for Greater National Teamwork," of the book, The M-Form Society: How American Teamwork Can Recapture the Competitive Edge by William Ouchi. He also reviewed the book Changing Bureaucracies: Understanding the Organization Before Selecting the Approach by William A. Medina, in The Bureaucrat, Fall 1982; the review was entitled, "Presidential Power and Managing the Bureaucracy."

DIANE M. DePALMA, assistant director of the Couseling Center, a paper, "The Development of an Instrument for Measuring Leadership Behaviors in Therapy Groups," published in Group, Fall 1984. The paper was co-authored with Kathryn G. Gardner, R.N., M.S., and Thomas R. Zastowny, Ph.D., both of the University of Rochester.

SAR A. LEVITAN, research professor of economics, a book, Beyond the Safety Net: Reviving the Promise of Opportunity in America, co-authored with Clifford M. Johnson, Ballinger/Harper & Row, 1984.

S.H. NASR, university professor of Islamic studies, a chapter, "Die Prinzipien der islamischen Architektur and Probleme der heutigen Stadt," in Das Abenteuer der Ideen, Berlin, 1984, pp. 207-218.

RUTH PETERSON, professor of education, a paper, "Developing Good Communication Skills: What Should Teacher Know?" in Greater Washington Reading Journal, Vol. IX, 1984, published by the Greater Washington Reading Coucil.

BERNARD T. PITSVADA, associate professorial lecturer in public administration, an article, "Making Sense of the Federal Budget the Old Fashioned Way - Governmentally," in Public Administration Review, co-authored with Frank D. Draper, September-October 1984, pp. 401-406.

SONYA A. QUITSLUND, assistant professor of religion, an article, "A Christian Feminist Critique of the Doctrine of Indemnity," in Restoring the Kingdom, D.W. Ferm, ed., Paragon House, 1984, pp. 123-138.

ALAN WADE, associate professor of communication and theatre, a theatre review of "Accidental Death of an Anarchist" (Arena Stage, February 1984) in Theatre Journal, October 1984, pp. 416-17.

T. THORNE WIGGERS, coordinator of outreach and consultation, Counseling Center, a paper, "The Saga Continues: Stress, Strain and Burnout Among Career Development Professionals," co-authored with Dea Forney, Journal of College Placement, Fall 1984.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

JONATHAN D. FIFE, professor of education, participated on a panel concerning the future of publications in higher education at the national Conference on Postsecondary Education sponsored by the Association for the Study of Higher Education and the American Educational Research Association - Division J (Postsecondary) held in San Francisco, October 30.

PETER HILL, professor of history, gave a paper, "Smuggling as a Fine Art: Americans in the French Antilles in the 1780s," at the fall meeting of the Washington Area French Historians, December 1 at GW.

JOHN M. LOGSDON, professor of public affairs and political science, in September, lectured to the faculty and the students of the Air Force Academy. In October, he spoke at the European Institute of Business Administration, Fontainbleau, France and at the 35th Congress of the International Astronautical Federation in Lausanne, Switzerland.

PERSONNEL NOTICES

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, 35 hours/week, Regional Rehabilitation Continuing Education Program. (Person will assist co-director of the Regional Rehabilitation Coninuing Education Program in planning and coordinating training conferences. Knowledge about the vocational rehabilitation system, bachelor's degree and graduate coursework or recent experience in rehabilitation required. Position terminates June 30, 1985.) Send letter of application and resume by January 7, 1985 to Dr. Donald Linkowski, Co-Director, Regional Rehabilitation Continuing Education Program, The George Washington University, 624 Park Lane Building, Washington, DC, 20052.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part time, Department of Biochemistry. (Position entails studies on mitochondrial bioenergetics and cellular calcium homeostasis. Minimum of one year experience in atomic absorption spectrometry and other techniques in analytical chemistry and B.S. required. Available January 7, 1985.) Contact Dr. Gary Fiskum, Department of Biochmeistry, 2300 I Street, NW, Washington, DC, 20037.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, part time, Department of Biochemistry. (Individual will study the relationship of prolactin to the immune system. Requires experience in in vitro and in vivo immune responses, tissue culture, radioimmunoassay, two years post graduate work in biochemistry and neuroimmunology, and B.S. Available January 1, 1985.) Contact Dr. Allan L. Goldstein, Department of Biochemistry, 2300 I Street, NW, Washington, DC, 20037.

TECHNICAL ADMINISTRATOR, Diagnostic Radiology, Department of Radiology. (Requirements: registration by the ARRT; M.S. in business, public or hospital administration; and five years experience as a radiology department administrator. Available immediately.) Send resumes to Rosemary Lubeley, Personnel Services, 2125 G Street, NW, Washington, DC, 20052.

RESEARCH ASSOCIATE, part time, Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science. (Position involves conducting research in the area of computer graphics and human computer interaction. Candidate must have M.S. in computer science, systems science, electrical engineering or a closely related field. Partial tuition benefits are available.) Send resumes to Associate Professor John L. Sibert, Department of Electrical Engineering and Computer Science, School of Engineering and Applied Science, Academic Center, Room T-624B.

George Washington University is an equal opportunity/ affirmative action employer.